PRESIDENT ASKS CONGRESS TO JOIN HIM IN BALANCING BUDGET, WORKING FOR PEACE

CORONER'S JURY RULES HOMICIDE IN THE DEATH OF MRS. MONTAGUE

Verdict Is Returned After 25 Minutes of Deliberation — Husband at Inquest Into Strangling Case.

A coroner's verdict of homicide was returned today at an inquest into the death of Mrs. Charles E. Montague, whose mutilated body was found on the rear floor of her automobile Wednesday.

Her husband, who spent 23 hours with police investigators yesterday and Wednesday, testified at the inquest. However, he was asked only a few routine questions after Public Defender Milton Metz told Deputy Coroner Joseph M. Quinn: "This man is ill and has been a ward of the Veterans Administration. It is my firm belief he should not be called upon to testify."

The verdict found that the cause of Mrs. Montague's death was "strangulation suffered at the hands of party or parties unknown." The jury deliberated 25 minutes before returning the verdict.

Taken to Headquarters.

Following the inquest, Montague, a 34-year-old laboratory technician, was taken to police headquarters by detectives. Metz accompanied him.

When Capt. Maurice O'Neill, head of the homicide squad, sought to question Montague, Metz reiterated his belief that Montague should not be questioned. The lawyer told O'Neill that he did not think Montague should answer and O'Neill halted his questions. Montague then was allowed to leave.

In explaining his appearance at the inquest Metz said he received a telephone call from the Veterans Administration yesterday asking him to represent Montague. He said he was asked to advise Montague and appear on his behalf. Montague was treated for a mental condition at a Veterans Administration hospital in Illinois in 1957, the hospital reported.

Montague wore a heavy tan overcoat throughout the inquest. He did not remove it even while testifying, although the coroner's courtroom was rather warm.

He appeared red-eyed but was fairly calm. After testifying, he returned to a front bench and listened with interest to later testimony.

Montague, who lives at 3261 Suson Court, has been unable to suggest to police any reason why his wife was killed.

Policeman's Testimony.

Special Officer Vincent Sweeney of the Hampton avenue district testified that he arrived at the scene where the body was found at 11:30 a.m. Wednesday.

He said he found Mrs. Montague's body with the dress slightly above the knees, and her shoes nearby on the floor of the car.

The ignition was in locked position, without a key, he said.

Sweeney added, under further questioning, that the driver's seat was broken and the door was sprung and standing ajar about one inch.

Next was Patrolman William Bufalo of the Hampton Avenue station. He testified that he received a radio report at 11:27 a.m.—"Woman in a car at 4940 Columbia," and when he arrived two special officers were already there.

Bufalo repeated a description of the position in which the woman's body was found. As for the shoes found in the back, he was asked if he examined them for scuff marks. He said he did not.

MAN FOUND DEAD IN FOREST PARK, WEAPON IN HAND

Bullet Wound in Head of Body Bearing Papers of Tax Consultant Facing Trial.

The body of a man possessing papers bearing the name of Paul B. Radloff, income tax consultant, was found in an automobile on Carondelet drive near the Field House in Forest Park today.

There was a bullet wound above the right temple and a .38 caliber revolver in the right hand. Police also found a note, written on cardboard, saying: "My head pains—impossible." The body was slumped over the steering wheel of the car.

Radloff, 58 years old, and his secretary, Mrs. Marianna Hitzfeld, had been scheduled to go to trial Monday in United States District Judge Roy W. Harper's court on charges of evading $54,943 in income taxes for the years 1951 through 1953.

Mrs. Hitzfeld appeared in court today and pleaded guilty on a seperate charge—failing to file an income tax return for 1955. When Radloff did not appear in the other case involving himself and Mrs. Hitzfeld, a bench warrant for his arrest was requested. Judge Harper was in the process of preparing the warrant when he was informed of the death.

The body was found by Michael Boyce, a postal clerk, 322 Edgewood drive, Clayton, as he was driving through the park.

Police said there were powder burns on the head. Papers examined by police included a driver's license issued to Radloff and various documents bearing his name in a brief case, found in the automobile. The car's license plate had been issued to Radloff.

The Radloff home is at 12 Fairwinds court, Olivette. His offices were at 2024 Olive street.

The sentencing of Mrs. Hitzfeld in her individual case was deferred until Feb. 6, pending a pre-sentence investigation by the probation office.

The case in which she and Radloff were co-defendants involved income taxes of Radloff and his wife. Mrs. Hitzfeld assisted in preparing the returns. The Government contended that the Radloffs understated their income for the three years by an estimated $112,188.

U.S. STUDYING KHRUSHCHEV'S NOTE MIKOYAN GAVE DULLES

Document, Hitherto Undisclosed, Said to Contain Nothing New — Eisenhower Talks Reported Advanced.

By MARQUIS W. CHILDS
A Washington Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

(Copyright 1959, Pulitzer Publishing Co.)

WASHINGTON, Jan. 9—Top officials have been giving intensive study to a lengthy document signed by Nikita Khrushchev which Anastas I. Mikoyan left with Secretary of State John Foster Dulles when the two held a 95-minute talk on Monday.

The existence of this document—not hitherto disclosed—has been verified by the Post-Dispatch. Officials who confirmed the fact that a document had been left with Dulles said careful study showed it contained nothing essentially new in the Russian position on major issues of the cold war.

They continue to believe that when Mikoyan, who is now touring the country, returns here for talks with President Eisenhower and Dulles, he will submit some specific new proposals.

The talk with Mr. Eisenhower was set for Jan. 19. However, it now appears likely that the date will be advanced to Jan. 16 or 17. This is in order to leave ample time for a full discussion that might go on for several days and to avoid a conflict with another visitor.

On Jan. 20 President Arturo Frondizi of the Argentine republic will arrive as a guest of state and his visit will absorb President Eisenhower in a round of conferences and official ceremonial engagements.

More Time Allotted.

The probable advance in the date of the meeting with Mr. Eisenhower is considered significant of a desire to explore as fully as possible the prospects for future negotiation with the Russians. To wait until Jan. 19 would mean that only one formal conversation with the No. 2 man from the Kremlin would be possible.

Mikoyan's trip is on a wholly informal basis. He announced that he was coming to the United States to visit Soviet Ambassador Mikhail Menshikov. This means that there are no protocol necessities surrounding his stay and the President can give him as much or as little time as he desires.

While State Department officials continue to say that they have yet seen nothing new in what Mikoyan has put forward, or in the memorandum from Khrushchev, they believe that out of the visit will come a high level conference. This is likely to take place in the early spring, probably at the foreign ministers' level.

It is clear the conference could be a twosome since both from Mikoyan directly and in hints thrown out by Soviet diplomats here and abroad the Russians desire to deal with the United States alone. It might even be a repeat of talks between Mikoyan and Dulles or perhaps between Mikoyan and Vice President Richard M. Nixon. Mikoyan is first deputy premier, a position that theoretically is equivalent to that of Nixon.

No Allied Objection.

From all advance indications America's Allies would not object to such an arrangement. French Ambassador Herve Alphand has informed the State Department that France feels so much stronger and more secure under Gen. Charles de

CIVIL RIGHTS BACKERS LOSE IN TEST VOTE ON FILIBUSTERS

60 36 Roll Call Is Major Setback for Bipartisan Bloc and Victory for Johnson's Forces.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 9 (AP)—The Senate today turned down a key proposal designed by civil rights advocates to make it less difficult to end filibusters.

The roll call on a motion to table, and thus kill, the proposal was the first test of strength in the fight over rules touched off with the start of a new Senate session two days ago.

The count was 60 to 36 with 40 Democrats and 20 Republicans supporting the tabling motion and 22 Democrats and 14 Republicans opposing it. It was a victory for the Democratic majority leader Lyndon B. Johnson of Texas and other Democratic and Republican Senate leaders backing a compromise offered by Johnson.

Conversely, it was a major setback for Vice President Richard M. Nixon and a bipartisan anti-filibuster bloc of northern and western Senators.

On Anderson Resolution.

The vote came on a motion by Johnson to table a resolution by Senator Clinton P. Anderson (Dem.), New Mexico. Anderson's aim was to establish that each new Senate has the right to adopt its own rules by majority vote at the start of a session.

(United Press International said the result on this test vote indicated that Johnson's compromise proposal on the filibuster issue probably would be adopted.)

The anti-filibuster forces were still far from giving up.

Nixon had expressed the opinion that the Senate has a constitutional right to make new rules each session, but he said it was an issue that would have to be decided by the Senate itself.

Leaders of the anti-filibuster forces regarded the Anderson motion as important. Its adoption would have paved the way for them to seek a debate-limitation rule free from the restrictions of rules in prior sessions of the Senate.

Johnson's Argument.

Johnson and other opponents argued that the Senate, with only a third of its members elected every two years, is a continuing body with rules carrying over from one Congress to another.

They said Anderson's motion would leave the Senate without any rules and open up a Pandora's box of confusion.

Shortly before the vote, Anderson obtained consent to revise his resolution in an effort to meet this argument and pick up additional votes.

He added a new section to provide that the rules of the Senate in the present Congress should be identical with those in the previous Congress except for Rule 22 which spells out how debate may be cut off.

Defeat of Anderson's proposal left before the Senate the compromise advanced by Johnson with the support of other Democratic and Republican Senate leaders. Many Southern Senators want no change in the rules.

Southerners' Tactic.

Those advocating curbs in the filibuster argue that in the past Southerners have been able to block civil rights and other so-called liberal legislation desired by a majority of the Senate by unlimited talk that also held up other legislation.

Johnson's proposal would permit filibusters to be shut off by two-thirds of the Senators present and voting, instead

(Text of Message on Page 8A)

By RAYMOND P. BRANDT
Chief Washington Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 9—President Eisenhower today invited the heavily Democratic Eighty-sixth Congress to cooperate with the Republican executive Administration in meeting the Communist threat to peace and in balancing the budget for the next fiscal year.

In a State of the Union address broadcast by all national radio and television networks, the President said that "one basic purpose unites us—to promote strength and security, side by side with liberty and opportunity."

The Republican Chief Executive recently announced he will submit a balanced budget in the general area of 77 billion dollars for the next fiscal year, which he said today was "expected to be the most prosperous year in our history."

He reminded the joint session that Congress alone has the power of the purse and the ultimate responsibility for determining the scope and amount of federal spending.

Mention of 'Tax Reforms.'

He held out this vague promise to the Democrats and "liberal" Republicans who have clearly indicated they will seek appropriations beyond his recommendations:

"By working together, the Congress and the executive can keep a balance between income and outgo. If this is done there is real hope that we can look forward to the time in the foreseeable future when needed tax reforms can be accomplished."

The 5000-word address was partisan only in its implications and there was no denunciation of "spenders" and "radicals" as in his comment after the devastating Republican congressional defeats in November.

He did, however, answer his Democratic critics, notably Senate majority leader Lyndon B. Johnson and Senator Stuart Symington of Missouri that his budgetary recommendations and his military and scientific organizational plans are inadequate for this space age.

He Says Threat is Continuous.

Asserting that "our military and scientific progress has been highly gratifying," he continued:

"We must guard against feverish building of vast armaments to meet glibly predicted moments of so-called 'maximum peril.' The threat we face is not sporadic or dated: it is continuous. Hence we must not be swayed in our calculations either by groundless fear or by complacency. We must avoid extremes, for vacillation between extremes is inefficient, costly and destructive of morale. In these days of unceasing technological advance, we must plan our defense expenditures systematically and with care, fully recognizing that obsolescence compels the never-ending replacement of older weapons with new ones.

"The defense budget for the coming year has been planned on the basis of these principles and considerations. Over these many months I have personally participated in its development.

"The aim is a sensible posture of defense. The secondary aim is increased efficiency and avoidance of waste. Both are advanced by this budgetary plan."

Threat From Communism.

Two themes dominated the address — the dangers of international Communist aggression and domestic inflation.

The Communists, he said, regard international agreements as "scraps of paper." As proof of this disdain, he cited Soviet Russia's announced intention of abandoning its responsibilities in Berlin.

To meet this Russian challenge and to maintain our "recognized leadership of the free world," he announced that our 1960 commitments for our armed forces, the Atomic Energy Commission and military assistance would exceed 47 billion dollars.

"In the foreseeable future," he continued, "they are not likely to be significantly lower. With an annual population increase of 3,000,000, other gov-

MISSING PLANE WITH 10 ABOARD FOUND CRASHED

KINGSPORT, Tenn., Jan. 9 (UPI) — The wreckage of a Southeast Airlines plane missing since Thursday night with 10 persons aboard was spotted today about 400 feet from the top of one of the Holston mountains. Some of the peaks rise to 5000 feet.

There was no sign of life.

An Air National Guard plane pilot sighted the wreckage about 10 to 15 miles east of Holston dam in the rocky, heavily forested East Tennessee area.

The pilot said the impact split the plane into three parts and a flash fire apparently burned the fuselage.

The fuselage was in one section, the tail assembly in a second and one wing in the third.

Two Tennessee Highway Patrol helicopters flew to the scene. They carried R. C. Murray, a Federal Aeronautics Administration official, and William Graham, chief pilot and director of operations for Southeast Airlines.

Capt. Robert A. Jackson of the Civil Air Patrol led a mobile unit to the scene. He was accompanied by 15 members of the Greenville (Tenn.) rescue squad.

It was believed that it would take the rescuers several hours to reach the scene.

The last report from the plane's pilot was at 7:32 p.m. (St. Louis time) Thursday that he was coming in on instruments to the Tri-Cities Airport that serves Bristol, Johnson City and Kingsport.

The flight originated in Memphis and made stops in Nashville and Knoxville on its

HAGGLING ON BILL HOLDS UP RUSH CALL FOR DOCTOR

CHICAGO, Jan. 9 (AP)—Coroner Walter McCarron yesterday ordered an investigation of the Chicago Medical Society's emergency service after receiving a report that a telephone operator at the service haggled for some time about who was going to pay the doctor's bill before a physician was sent.

McCarron said Mrs. Ethel Beck, a clerk in the county assessor's office, collapsed yesterday, and the emergency service was told to send over a physician at once.

Lt. Harold Prohaska, of the Fire Commissioner's Office, said he talked to the switchboard operator at the emergency service.

"The woman kept asking me who was going to pay for the doctor's call," Prohaska said. "I got pretty mad. I told her we needed service, and never mind about the money."

About 25 minutes after the first call, a doctor, Robert R. Mustell, chairman of the service, arrived, and pronounced Mrs. Beck dead.

OUTLINE OF MAIN POINTS IN PRESIDENT'S MESSAGE ON STATE OF THE UNION

WASHINGTON, Jan. 9 (AP) HERE in outline are the main points of President Eisenhower's State of the Union Message today:

Over-all objective: "To promote strength and security, side by side with liberty and opportunity."

Lines of approach:

1. Seek to prevent war at any place in any dimension by assuring strong armed forces without useless expenditures.

2. Maintain a strong and expanding economy, fighting inflation and providing better opportunities for Americans.

3. Pursue a foreign policy dedicated to building a permanent and just peace in a world community of strong, stable independent nations.

4. Strengthen individual freedoms by new legislation in the fields of civil rights and labor-management relations.

5. Work for the cause of freedom under law throughout the world.

Views on Berlin and Economy Stir Both Parties — President Fit and Alert.

By GEORGE H. HALL
A Washington Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 9—The President Eisenhower's State of the Union message got a moderately warm reception from congressional Republicans today, but the Democrats who dominate both houses by two-to-one majorities heard it with little evidence of approval.

The President, speaking clearly and firmly, was applauded 28 times with varying degrees of intensity. On many occasions the applause was confined to the Republican side of the aisle. Mr. Eisenhower spoke for 41 minutes.

The President looked fit and alert. He was wearing a gray suit, white shirt and blue tie, and responded to a one-minute standing ovation when he entered the crowded chamber of the House of Representatives by smiling, holding his arms aloft and waving his eyeglasses.

Extends Birthday Wishes.

During the applause, he turned and chatted briefly with Speaker Sam Rayburn (Dem.), Texas, and Vice President Richard Nixon who presided jointly. Putting the affair on an informal tone, the President opened his remarks by congratulating the two men on their birthdays. Rayburn was 77 last Tuesday, Nixon 46 today.

An impromptu plug for statehood for Hawaii followed. Noting the presence of two Senators and one House member from Alaska, Mr. Eisenhower said he hopes he has "the opportunity and the great satisfaction of seeing a fiftieth star in the flag before my term ends."

Judging by their reaction, Republicans liked best the sections of the address in which Mr. Eisenhower spoke of the necessity of holding down expenditures and preventing labor racketeering. Both parties applauded the expression of his determination to defend Berlin and to pursue meaningful settlements of international disputes.

At one point a single Senator clapped loudly when the President stated schools are "operated under the authority of local communities and states." He was Richard B. Russell of Georgia and he displayed no embarassment over his lonely role.

The one instance of appreciation

BOMBERS COST MORE THAN THEIR WEIGHT IN GOLD

WASHINGTON, Jan. 9 (AP) — President Eisenhower said today the United States is buying "certain bombers that cost their weight in gold." Actually, he understated the facts.

Both the Air Force B-58 and the Navy's A-3J cost more than the worth of their weight in gold.

Gold is valued at $35 a troy ounce or about $500 a pound when translated into the 16-ounce pound used in weighing airplanes.

The White House gave these figures:

The A-3J weighs 27,000 pounds and costs $17,600,000 or $650 a pound.

The B-58 weighs 47,000 pounds and costs $26,700,000 or $567 a pound.

Senators Twit Humphrey About His 'Filibuster' With Khrushchev

WASHINGTON, Jan. 9 (AP) —Colleagues suggested jokingly yesterday, that Senator Hubert H. Humphrey (Dem.), Minnesota, foe of Senate filibusters, may have filibustered himself in his eight and one-half hour talk with Soviet Premier Khrushchev.

Senator Richard B. Russell (Dem.), Georgia, on the other side of the rules change issue from Humphrey, remarked in debate that "it is so easy for me to understand how Mr. Khrushchev asked the senior Senator from Minnesota one question, and then for eight hours heard a lot of good, Democratic capitalistic doctrine."

At this point, Senator Clinton P. Anderson (Dem.), New Mexico, broke in to add:

"Some one wanted to know how it was that Mao Tse-tung decided to drop out as leader of the Chinese people. It was because he found out that he was next on Senator Humphrey's calling list."

U.S. TURNS DOWN AIR FORCE PLAN FOR INCREASING I.C.B.M. FORCE

Budget Is Said to Provide for Only 130 Missiles by 1962 — Russia Could Have 500 to 1000 by Then.

By RICHARD WITKIN
© New York Times News Service

NEW YORK, Jan. 9—In the face of warnings of a fast-developing "missile gap," the Administration has rejected Air Force recommendations for increasing the planned force of intercontinental ballistic missiles, informed sources disclosed yesterday.

The proposed budget for fiscal 1960 is said to contain no money to expand the I.C.B.M. force beyond the 13 squadrons previously authorized.

The Administration's overall defense proposals already have provoked strong criticism from a number of influential members of Congress in both parties. The issue of the I.C.B.M. force promises to provide much of the ammunition in the defense debate now getting under way in Congress.

The proposed budget figure for fiscal 1960 has been held, in the interests of budget balancing, to $40,900,000,000. This is about $100,000,000 more than the expected total for the fiscal year that ends June 30.

Less in 1960 Than in 1959.

Administration critics argue that, if inflation and military payrolls are considered, the 1960 proposal may provide less than the 1959 budget for military hardware.

The 13 I.C.B.M. squadrons authorized to date include nine of the Atlas and four of the Titan.

The Atlas is a 1½ stage missile due to reach initial combat status this summer. All three rocket engines fire at take-off. Two of them drop away after expending their fuel. The Titan is a two-stage I.C.B.M. slated for operational duty starting about mid-1961. Both missiles are designed to carry large thermonuclear warheads a distance of 6325 statute miles in less than 30 minutes.

At some 10 missiles a squadron, 13 squadrons would give the nation a total I.C.B.M. force of 130 by about 1962. A number of observers with limited access to intellegence data have warned repeatedly that by 1962 the Russians would, or at least could, have an I.C.B.M. force totaling 500 to 1000 missiles.

These observers fear that the huge disparity between such a force and that planned by this country might tempt the Soviet Union either to launch an all-out attack or blackmail the West with the threat of such an attack.

More Squadrons Sought.

The Air Force is said to have urged authorization in the 1960 budget of at least seven additional I.C.B.M. squadrons.

A majority of experts reject the view that the "missile gap" could be filled either by the Navy's fleet ballistic missile, the submarine-based Polaris, or the Minuteman, a third-generation Air Force I.C.B.M. to be produced in large numbers.

Neither, it is argued, could be available in significant strength until 1963 or later.

Those urging increased Atlas-Titan funds insist that the money must be voted in the 1960 budget if the enlarged force—missiles plus launching sites— are to be ready for the 1961-1963 "gap" period.

Administration spokesmen have rejected the "gap" thesis on grounds that the figures for Soviet I.C.B.M. production are hypothetical. It appears to take the position that there is no need to increase this nation's force until hard evidence is available that Russia is producing I.C.B.M.'s in large quantities.

Critics answer that there is considerable intelligence evidences of Russia's capacity to produce 500 I.C.B.M.'s or more by 1961 or 1962. They add that, by the time confirmation is obtained of actual volume production, it may be too late to produce the required counter-force in time to deter a missile blitz.

Plot by Batista Men to Kill Castro Is Reported Foiled

HAVANA, an. 9 (UPI — A rival revolutionary group said today that one of its patrols had foiled an attempt by Batista collaborators to assassinate Fidel Castro on his triumphal entry to Havana.

Officers of the Revolutionary Directorate(a rebel organization separate from Castro's forces, said the patrol seized five followers of ex-President Fulgencio Batista who were preparing to ambush Castro with tommyguns yesterday.

The announcement came as signs of friction developed between Castro forces and rival revolutionary groups over the theft of 500 rifles and 80,000 bullets.

Castro's forces took steps today to disarm all persons except guards authorized to carry weapons. The order by the provisional government covered the Revolutionary Directorate which was believed to have taken the rifles and ammunition in a challenge to Castro's authority.

Batista Sympathizers.

Directorate officers said the attack on Castro was planned to take place as the rebel chieftain rode in a victory parade into the capital. They said the patrol recognized the Batista sympathizers as they moved through suburban Marianao toward the city. The patrol captured the five men and turned them over to Castro's forces at Camp Columbia, the Directorate said.

The leader of the alleged ambushers was identified as Lutgardo Martin Perez Jr., known as "Tiger." He is the son of a Batista police colonel.

The provisional government, in a move to avert gunfights and further bloodshed, announced that arms would be taken away from all persons except authorized guards on duty. The move seemed likely to provoke new friction between Castro's forces and rival revolutionary groups.

Castro, in a radio speech from army headquarters at Camp Columbia, promised to exhaust every effort to recover the stolen arms. He warned that from now on the "greatest crime will be to upset the peace" in Cuba.

(The Associated Press quoted Castro as saying the weapons and ammunition were seized from Havana's San Antonio barracks Tuesday by dissident elements. It said the rebel hero appealed to public opinion to halt contraband traffic in arms and leave "the little leaders" without troops.)

Indorsement Delay.

The revolutionary directorate has declined thus far specifically to indorse the presidency of Manuel Urrutia, the Castro choice for the job.

The group, containing many students, organized a second front in Las Villas province in mid-Cuba when the bulk of Castro's forces were fighting in Oriente province. They were the first to seize the presidential palace and delayed Urrutia's arrival there for some time.

In another development, two members of the American military mission in Havana, Cols. Clark Lynn and Samuel Keill, visited Camp Columbia, accompanied by Gen. Camilo Cienfuegos, new chief of the Cuban armed forces, and Dr. Raul Chibas. Castro remarked Wednesday that Cuba does not need the help of the American mission which aided the defeated Cuban army.

Newspapers were filled with pictures and stories of revolutionary justice: Arrests, accusations, summary trials, manhunts and executions.

STATE-OF-UNION SPEECH PRAISED IN BOTH PARTIES

Democrats, However, Voice Reservations on President's Call for Strict Economies.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 9 (UPI) —Democrats joined Republicans today in commending President Eisenhower's State of the Union address, but voiced reservations on his call for strict government economies.

Speaker Sam Rayburn, (Dem.), Texas, told reporters he concurs in the President's call for a curb on federal spending, but added that "we can't do it at the expense of essential programs."

Senate Democratic majority leader Lyndon B. Johnson of Texas said the President's hope for a balanced budget is problematical. For its part, he said, Congress will try "not only to balance the fiscal books of the nation but to balance the books of our public trust as well."

Senator Harry F. Byrd (Dem.), Virginia, a leading economy advocate, hoped the President's speech would touch off "a grass roots crusade for reduction of non-essential expenditures." "There is no hope for sound tax reduction with continuing deficits," Byrd said.

Praised by Halleck.

House Republican minority leader Charles A. Halleck of Indiana and Representative Joseph W. Martin of Massachusetts, whom Halleck replaced as party leader, applauded the President's speech.

Halleck described as a "fiscal victory" the President's promise of a balanced budget. He said Congress alone can control federal spending and it alone can determine whether "we can achieve tax cuts in the future."

Martin said that, unless Congress "puts our finances in order, we could well face disaster from runaway prices in an inflation which would destroy the savings of millions."

Senate Republican minority leader Everett M. Dirksen of Illinois called it "a sound, timely and heartening message . . . a clear and ringing answer to those shouting for leadership."

Other comments:

Senate Democratic whip Mike Mansfield of Montana said that if the President is serious about curbing inflation he might well consider restoring curb on credit and installment purchase of automobiles and other products.

Senator Styles Bridges (Rep.), New Hampshire — "The . . . message, taken as a whole, is an exeellent declaration of human rights and a well-considered blue-print for maintaining them."

Senator Warren Magnuson (Dem.), Washington — The President was "hesitant, uncertain and inconclusive" on domestic issues and too many were "dismissed with bare mention and vague reference to legislation promised later."

Senator Leverett Saltonstall (Rep.), Massachusetts—A "dynamic message . . . a challenging statement which will inspire confidence among us all."

Chairman John L. McClellan (Dem.), Arkansas, of the Senater Labor Rackets Committee— said he agreed in general with what Eisenhower said about labor legislation. He said he agreed with other parts of the message, too, except for the statement on civil rights.

BELGIUM STARTS INVESTIGATION OF RIOTING IN CONGO

Nine - Man Committee Going to Leopoldville, Where Fatal Violence Has Flared.

BRUSSELS, Jan. 9 (AP)— The Belgian Parliament is sending a nine-man committee to Leopoldville, capital of the Belgian Congo, to investigate this week's rioting there.

"We have been on the verge of a catastrophe in Leopoldville and I urge the House to be fully aware of the importance of the recent events which took place in the Congo capital," Maurice van Hemelrijck, minister for the Congo, told the House of Representatives.

Van Hemelrijck said violence flared when police tried to break up an unauthorized meeting of Abako, the association for the lower Congo, called to demand independence from Belgian rule.

He said authorities had been expecting trouble in the Congo, a primary source of uranium, but had not expected it before Jan. 13. On that date the government is due to announce a new policy, promising political privileges for Africans in the Congo.

The minister said the government contributed to the tension by delaying the announcement on the Congo's political future, but he also blamed unemployment and foreign radio broadcasts. He did not elaborate on the broadcasts, but much Communist propaganda has been directed at the Congo.

Van Hemelrijck read a report from the Governor of Leopoldville which said 42 Africans had been killed. Unofficial reports have put the death toll as high as 175.

(Donald Grant, a staff correspondent of the Post-Dispatch on the scene, reported yesterday that 62 had been killed.)

Leopoldville authorities said 208 Africans and 49 Europeans were injured as the mobs turned their fury on the European quarter.

Van Hemelrijck said police were forced to use their weapons "to prevent further looting, to protect themselves from attack and to free Europeans threatened by Africans."

He said 14 schools, 11 missions and 35 stores and public buildings were burned or ransacked.

African Mayors Demand Withdrawal of Belgian Troops.

LEOPOLDVILLE, Belgian Congo, Jan. 9 (UPI)—African mayors demanded today that Belgian authorities withdraw their troops from native villages where rioting occurred this week.

Mayors of the municipalities of Matete, St. Jean, Kinshasa, Ngiri-Ngiri, Bandalungwa, Kalamu, Kintambo, Ndjili and Barumbu made their demands in a memorandum sent last night to Governor General H. Cornelis and to Leopoldville's Governor Henry Bomans.

They also asked that a complete death toll in the riots be published, that a communal police force be formed to keep the peace and that the curfew be shortened.

The mayors told newsmen they would suspend all co-operation with the authorities, and even resign, if their demands were not met soon.

"While condemning looting, robberies and violations we firmly back the lawful longing of the Congolese population for independence and social justice without racial discrimination in our country," they said.

Mikoyan in Chicago, Terms Demonstrations 'Comedies'

Soviet Deputy Premier Greeted at Midway Airport by More Booing Pickets, Flying Eggs.

CHICAGO, Jan. 9 (AP) — Soviet Deputy Premier Anastas I. Mikoyan, greeted in Chicago by more booing pickets and flying eggs despite President Eisenhower's call for courtesy, shrugged off the demonstration today as unimportant.

He told a press conference he attaches no importance to the disturbances accompanying his visits to Cleveland, Detroit and Chicago. He told reporters that lack of trust is the greatest obstacle to ending the cold war.

The demonstrations, he said, "I regard as more or less comedies. They do not represent the opinion of the American people."

Pickets were on hand at Midway airport when Mikoyan's plane arrived from Detroit. Another group congregated at the Conrad Hilton hotel where he is staying. A heavy police guard kept the crowd back at both places.

Refugee Pickets.

A spokesman identified the pickets as refugees from Hungary and other countries behind the Iron Curtain.

Mikoyan, affable and smiling, said he expected his reception in the United States to be good "but it was even better than I expected."

The Soviet official said he believes his visit has been worthwhile—that some of the prejudice between the United States and Russia has fallen away as the result of his visit.

He was asked about the cold war and the chances for ending it.

The biggest obstacle, he replied, is "the lack of trust, the suspicion that exists."

When he was asked who was to blame for the cold war, he answered:

"Your people are trying to blame us for the deterioration of relations after the war. It is our view you are to blame."

He added that discussions of blame only lead to further deterioration.

"Let's forget the question of blame and try to improve our relations," he said.

The Red leader said he had no special purpose in mind in coming to the United States. "If I manage to explain our position and learn the position of the other side, that is good enough," he added.

Friendship Moves.

Mikoyan said he has not tried to reach any agreements with United States officials, although he has had good talks with the persons with whom problems were discussed. He said that representatives of the business world seem well inclined toward friendship with Russia.

The picket demonstrations were carried out in Chicago and yesterday in Detroit despite President Eisenhower's call for a show of courtesy to visitors from abroad.

Eggs were hurled at him in both places. They missed in Detroit. An egg splashed on the top of his automobile as he was driven from Chicago's Midway airport under heavy police escort.

Mikoyan was greeted at the plane ramp by Edward L. Ryerson, former chairman of the Inland Steel Co., and Thomas Coulter, chief executive of the Chicago Association of Commerce and Industry.

Inside the Detroit Club last night Mikayon attended a private dinner given in his honor by Walker Cisler, president of the Detroit Edison Co., electric utility. Some 60 leaders of business and finance of this automotive capital of the world listened attentively to an appeal by Mikoyan for an end to the cold war and the beginning of a "hot peace" between the Soviet Union and the United States.

Mikoyan held a press conference this morning, the first of his trip.

"A salesman sometimes names a higher price than he expects to get for his goods," he told reporters regarding Russia's proposal that all troops be pulled out of Berlin.

He quickly added that the U.S.S.R. had no such thought in mind and regards its proposals for a settlement of the Berlin problem as "good and reasonable."

AIRLINE STRIKE SETTLEMENT IS BELIEVED NEAR

U. S. Mediator Reports Approval in Principle of Terms to End 21-Day Walkout.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 9 (AP) —The Government today announced a settlement in principle of the 21-day American Airlines strike. Final details remain to be worked out.

Chairman Leverett Edwards of the National Mediation Board said he hopes specific language covering broad principles already agreed on can be worked out tonight.

"I hope that by Saturday night the airline can begin recalling its people and possibly resume operations early next week," Edwards said.

Edwards emphasized, however, that representatives of the carrier and the striking Airline Pilots Association could still run into a hitch.

The main stumbling block has been the pay rates to apply when the pilots begin flying the new jet airliners.

The striking union said it has summoned its master executive council here for a session tomorrow to be ready to ratify the final agreement. Paul Atkins, chairman of this council, sat in on the final negotiations.

Edwards said that details of the settlement were being withheld until the completed contract can be disclosed.

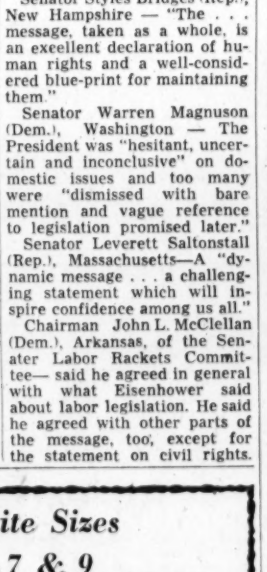

Edwards said the agreement in principle was reached last night and considerable progress already had been made in buttoning down the details.

End of the American Airlines strike could clean up the last of the airline walkouts that has plagued the industry for the last several months. The outbreak has led to proposals from several Congressmen for a law barring strikes on the airlines and requiring that airline labor disputes be settled by binding arbitration.

Present pay for American's pilot ranges from $400 a month for junior co-pilots to a top of $1602. The agreement is expected to boost the pay schedule for senior captains on jets to a maximum of around $2400 a month.

It was believed, too, that American will agree as Eastern Air Lines did recently, to increase crew requirements from the two pilots and engineer aboard present four-engine piston planes to three pilots and an engineer for the new jets.

FREEHOLDER AID SEEKS TO DRAFT CONSOLIDATION PLAN IN MONTH

Board Member Says Counsel's Promise Will Not Deter His Drive for District Setup, However.

Robert H. McRoberts, counsel for the Metropolitan Board of Freeholders, will try to complete within one month a draft of a plan for consolidating St. Louis and St. Louis county, he told the freeholders in a letter last night.

However, the assurance will not dissuade Freeholder Harry L. Simmons from his previously-announced intention to push for simultaneous development also of a district plan, Simmons said today. He said he feared the more complex consolidation proposal might not be perfected in the four months remaining before the freeholders must submit their recommendation to the voters.

Delays Two-Plan Proposal.

Simmons said, during the board's televised meeting at Educational Station KETC last night, that he would not move at that meeting for development of two plans because four of the 19 freeholders were not present. He said today he had enough supporters among the members present to have pushed through such a motion.

"But one of the absentee members is against my proposal," Simmons said. "I want him to be present when I make the motion, so that no one can say I took unfair advantage of absentees."

McRoberts's aid in drafting the consolidation plan was sought after Simmons vehemently protested in a closed meeting of the freeholders last Monday over the board's delay in "getting a plan on paper."

He scored the freeholders' seeming intention to shun technicians expert in governmental affairs and charter drafting. Simmons pointed out that under the freeholders apparent "do-it-yourself" policy, eight months of the board's allotted one-year life had elapsed without any proposal having been drafted in detail.

Charles F. Vatterott Jr., freeholder chairman and advocate of city-county consolidation, later asked McRoberts to undertake the job of drafting a proposal.

Closed Meeting Held.

The freeholders held a closed meeting at the television station last night before going on the air, to hear McRoberts's written reply.

The counsel is reported to have said he would proceed immediately on a rough draft of a consolidation proposal, in hope he could present the first sections of the plan next week for the freeholders' consideration, and additional parts in successive weeks, with the task to be completed in 30 days.

Some freeholders said McRoberts warned, however, that there would be some blank spaces in the draft, particularly in those sections dealing with controversial matters. The freeholders, as a matter of policy, must decide their own course before those clauses can be written, McRoberts indicated.

The counsel said today he had written the letter to the freeholders, outlining his views, but had not been notified of their acceptance of his terms. McRoberts said he had stated his undertaking the task was contingent upon the freeholders' permission to enlist technical and legal aid in preparing some parts of the plan.

To Seek Assistance.

He said today that he planned to invite Roberts P. Elam, who was counsel for the transit board of freeholders of 1953-54, to assist in drafting some sections of the consolidation proposal. McRoberts said, however, that he intended to do most of the drafting personally.

During and after the freeholders' closed meeting last night, some members were reported to have continued their efforts to persuade Simmons to abandon his intention to seek development of both a consolidation plan and a district government plan. They urged him to give up the idea to preserve "unanimity," it was said.

Simmons's determination to push the matter was viewed by advocates of the consolidation plan as a serious threat to their position. He was one of the 10 members of the board who voted to develop a consolidation proposal, to the exclusion of the district plan favored by the remaining nine members.

Simmons has never publicly stated which plan he prefers.

Freeholder Bryan Purteet, author of the district proposal shelved by the board, said today he was hopeful the freeholders would reconsider their action.

"My plan was presented in clause-by-clause detail, ready for the board's study and revision, when the freeholders decided to draft the consolidation plan that is yet to be written," he said.

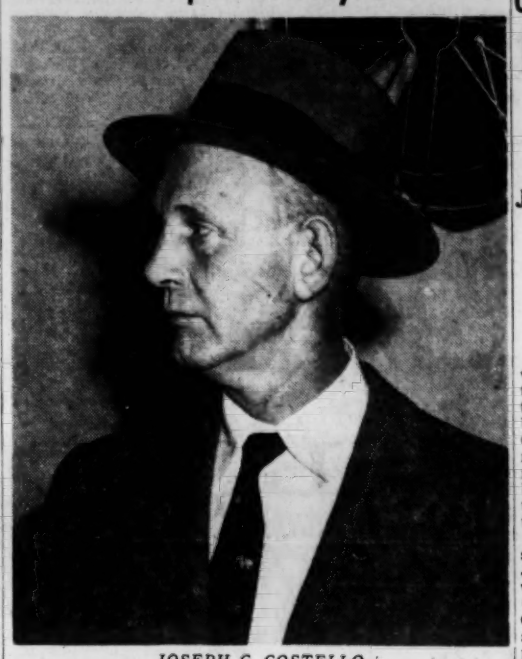

Under the consolidation plan, the city and county would be merged into one governmental entity. Present municipalities would retain their identities, but would have few if any powers.

Purteet's plan called for a district authority which would administer a limited number of public services commonly needed throughout the area. Except for those services given over to the district authority, such as traffic and mass transit control, local governments would still retain their present powers.

Dean Milton D. Green of Washington University's School og Law appeared before the board during the televised session. Representing the Legal Aid Society of St. Louis and St. Louis county, he urged that any charter developed b ythe board include adequate provisions for legal services for indigent persons.

The freeholders, with no other business ready to be taken up during the meeting, questioned Green at length on legal aid practices in other cities, budgets, manpower and other statistics.

Pleas Rejected by Court

COSTELLO LOSES LAST EFFORT TO AVOID PRISON

Judge Overrules Motion for Suspended or Reduced Sentence and Probation.

Joseph G. Costello, ex-convict head of the Ace Cab Co., today lost his last legal effort to stay out of federal prison. United States District Judge George H. Moore overruled his motion for a suspended or a reduced sentence and for probation on his 30-month sentence for conspiracy to violate the firearms act.

The judge also overruled a similar motion filed by Joseph J. Cannella, an Ace Cab Supervisor, who was convicted with Costello in the firearms case. Cannella was sentenced to serve 18 months in a federal penitentiary. They are to start serving their sentences next Tuesday.

Morris A. Shenker, attorney for Costello, told the court his client was the main support of his family and had recently been in a hospital. This was a reference to Costello's having been in Barnes Hospital for three days suffering from the effects of an overdose of a barbiturate. He was released from the hospital yesterday.

Judge Moore remarked: "Costello looks better today than I've ever seen him look."

"The strain of an investigation and a trial are often greater than the strain of life in prison," Shenker said.

"He will have to accept the inevitable," the judge said. "After his trial, Costello told me I was a fair judge. I also have a duty to be fair to the prosecution and to society."

In the case of Cannella, Judge Moore said he did not think the punishment was excessive.

Costello and Cannella were convicted last summer of transporting from Illinois to Missouri three revolvers. Statutes prohibit a person who has been convicted of a felony from shipping firearms in interstate commerce. Costello served a term for burglary in 1936.

After the hearing, Shenker told a reporter: "We have lost the last step. There's nothing we can do until after they start serving their sentences."

He indicated he would study recent decisions concerning illegal search. During the trial Shenker was overruled every time he attempted to claim the search of Costello's automobile for the revolvers was illegal.

Reported Threats Investigated.

Reports that Costello had uttered threats against Mrs. Mae Traynor, retired brothel operator, while he was in the hospital, were being investigated by police.

Lt. Frank Burns said he had been informed of Costello's alleged threat and had assigned members of the squad to keep a close watch on Mrs. Traynor's home at 4021 Forest Park boulevard.

Burns said Costello apparently blamed Mrs. Traynor in part for his nervous and despondent condition. She had filed a $35,000 damage suit against Costello and his wife, Barbara, charging that she was fraudulently induced to release a deed of trust she held on Costello's home at 2626 Gurney court.

CITY GOING AHEAD ON GARAGE PLAN, MAYOR ASSERTS

Will Seek Site Near Auditorium Despite Post Office Deal for Same Location.

Mayor Raymond R. Tucker said today the city "is going to proceed" with efforts to acquire a site near Kiel Auditorium for a proposed municipally operated parking garage, despite plans by the Post Office Department to acquire the same site.

An agreement has been reached to lease about half of the site, which is bounded by Clark avenue and Fifteenth, Sixteenth and Walnut streets, to the Post Office. Post Office officials and D. Samuel Wise, co-owner of the tract, said the lease has not been signed.

Interest by city officials in theb lock, which is immediately west of Kiel Auditorium, was heightened yesterday after preliminary plans for a garage with eventual capacity for 3000 automobiles were outlined by an architectural firm.

The plans and the proposed location for the garage were approved by the Off-Street Parking Commission.

No Conflict, Mayor Says.

Mayor Tucker, while expressing firm intention to press ahead with efforts to acquire the site, said he felt there was no conflict between the city and the Federal Government.

Tucker noted the city was aware that the Federal Government had been negotiating for a lease on a garage on the southern half of the block and now occupied by Carling Brewing Co.

In Washington, Harold Duncan, director of the Post Office division of real estate, told the Post-Dispatch that the Federal Government had "reached a meeting of minds" with owners of the property and is obligated to lease it.

He said the lease has not been signed as yet, but said that the Post Office does want to obtain the Carling building as a garage for its trucks.

Whether the Post Office would relinquish the site in favor of the city will depend on the outcome of a conference with Mayor Tucker, Duncan remarked. Duncan said he and Rollin D. Barnard, deputy assistant postmaster general in charge of the bureau of facilities, expect to confer with Tucker.

Tucker Sought Meeting.

Mayor Tucker had requested the meeting in a letter sent last Dec. 30 after he learned of the Federal Government's interest in the property. He said he has not received a response from the Post Office Department and does not know whether the meeting will be on Jan. 26, as he suggested.

He said he will suggest "several alternative locations" for the Post Office garage. These sites, he said, would suit the department's needs as well as the location which the city seeks.

Alderman Offers Bill to Make All Schools Meet 1945 Fire Code

Measure Would Require Inclosing of Stairwells in Every Public and Parochial Building Not Protected by Sprinklers.

A bill to require all schools in the city, public and parochial, to comply with fire safety requirements of the 1945 building code was introduced in the Board of Aldermen today. Stairwells and other openings between floors would have to be inclosed, unless sprinkler system were installed.

Other bills introduced today called for:

Submission to voters at the April 7 city election of a proposed charter amendment to remove the $10,000-a-year ceiling on city salaries.

Appropriation of $2,500,000 of 1955 bond issue funds for part of the city's share of the cost of the Mill Creek Valley redevelopment project.

Designation of additional land along the Mississippi river in north St. Louis for flood control studies.

The board voted 27 to 0 to override Mayor Raymond R. Tucker's vetoes and replace stop signs at 10 intersections from which they had been removed on recommendation of the Barton traffic survey.

Introduced by Feely.

The school fire safety measure, drafted by a team of city building and fire inspection officials, was introduced by Alderman Edgar J. Feely, chairman of the aldermanic public safety committee.

The bill would apply to school buildings regardless of date of construction. Fire safety requirements of the code now are not applicable to structures built prior to 1945.

Other provisions of the bill would require:

Auatomatic sprinkler systems in all school buildings of non-fire resistive construction exceeding two stories in height, or exceeding one story and 5000 square feet in ground area, or exceeding 10,000 square feet in ground area regardless of height.

At least two means of egress from each floor.

At least one approved fire exit for each 2000 square feet of floor space.

Fire alarm systems and exit lighting to be as provided in the 1945 code.

Inspections at least once a year by building or fire inspection officials.

Requirements for inclosure of stairwells and other vertical shafts would be waived if sprinkler systems were installed.

Fines of $500 a Day.

Schools would have one year to comply with the code after passage of the amendment. Penalty would be a fine up to $500 for each day of non-compliance.

Public schools have not been subject to city fire safety regulations in the past, the Board of Education having its own fire inspection program. Since the Chicago school disaster last month, however, city inspectors have begun inspection of public as well as parochial schools.

Alderman Raymond Leisure, Seventh ward Democrat, introduced a resolution urging all school directors to initiate a program of fire safety in schools and to conduct fire drills at least once a month.

Provisions of the proposed charter amendment lifting salary ceilings are similar to those in a proposal defeated by a narrow margin at the general election last November. A three-fifths majority is required for approval.

Money for the city's share of the Mill Creek project would be made available to the city's Land Clearance and Housing Authority, which is now acquiring land with money lent by the Government. Future Federal participation in the program is contingent on financial contributions by the city.

Land designated for the flood control study extends from Calvary avenue on the south to Hall street and Riverview drive on the north.

Bills to put the stop signs back had been enacted just before Christmas, and the Mayor vetoed them on recommendation of the traffic division.

Donald Gunn, president of the board, said today the survey, by experts, appeared to give more consideration to motorists than to pedestrians.

Signs to Be Replaced.

By today's board action, the signs are to be replaced at the following locations:

Florissant avenue at Harris avenue, Shaw avenue at Marconi street, Seventh street at Pestalozzi street, West Park avenue at Tamm avenue, Tamm avenue at Nottingham avenue.

McCausland avenue at Lansdowne avenue, Jamieson avenue at Pernod street and Lindenwood avenue, Fyler avenue at Ivanhoe avenue and Lafayette avenue at Nebraska avenue.

The board likewise overrode a mayoral veto and voted to replace a playground stop sign at Lindenwood place and Prather avenue.

Alderman Alfred I. Harris, chairman of the board's public utilities committee, announced the committee will meet next Friday at 10:30 a.m. at City Hall to study bills which would increase water rates.

BULLOCK ESTATE PUT IN HANDS OF COUNTY OFFICIAL

Administrator Says There Are No Heirs in State Since Widow Has Left Missouri.

Public Administrator G. Joseph Neaf of St. Louis county today was appointed administrator of the estate of James Stanley Bullock, who was shot to death in Forest Park last Dec. 17.

In an application for letters of administration, filed with the Probate Court at Clayton, Neaf said Bullock "died intestate and left no widow or heirs in the state of Missouri." The widow, Mrs. Edna Ruth Bullock, is living temporarily with her mother in Merriam, Kan.

Neaf's application went on to state that Bullock "left money, property and papers in a situation exposed to loss and damage, and that no other person has applied for or received letters of administration."

Neaf said if Mrs. Bullock returns to the state and proves she is the administrator of her husband's estate, he will withdraw.

The property which Neal will seek to administer will be those assets in Bullock's name only, Neaf said. This would exclude the Bullocks's home at 1448 Yale avenue, Richmond Heights, and his insurance policies. Neaf said he had no idea what other property there was.

This was Neif's first job since being appointed public administrator. He is paid under a sliding scale fee system, receiving 5 per cent for the first $5000 administered and lesser percentages for greater amounts.

Bullock, 27 years old, was shot to death in front of City Art Museum. Police have been unable to establish a motive for the killing. His wife, a 23-year-old kindergarten teacher, went to Kansas after appearing as a witness at the coroner's inquest last month.

ALUMINUM BOAT SAILS THROUGH AIR IN GALE, HITS CAR

ANCHORAGE, Alaska, Jan. 9 (AP)—Warrant Officer Mort Schechter of the Air Force had no trouble identifying the flying object that struck his auto during a windstorm.

It was a boat.

Becoming airborne on a 60-mil-an-hour wind, the 14-foot aluminum boat sailed nearly a half block before it smacked into the windshield of Schechter's car near Elmendorf Air Force Base Wednesday night.

DUPO AVERTS THREAT OF AMMONIA FUMES

Collision Causes Leak in Tank Truck—Evacuation of Town Considered.

Ammonia fumes leaking from a damaged tractor-trailer truck threatened to force evacuation of the 2100 residents of Dupo for nearly eight hours yesterday.

With civil defense, city, police and fire department officials overseeing cleanup operations, the danger was averted. However, traffic on Illinois Highway 3 through the community was diverted.

An automobile driven by Floyd Gould, 121 Leo street, Columbia, Ill., struck the rear of a tractor-trailer carrying 28,000 pounds of compressed liquid ammonia. The collision occurred at 5:30 p.m. at Main and Louisa avenues in the center of Dupo.

The impact cracked a vent pipe leading from the trailer to the ground, and ammonia began to leak out. As a second truck was dispatched to take on the cargo, Dupo residents were warned to move upwind the instant they smelled ammonia fumes. The transfer of the liquid ammonia was completed about 1 a.m. today, and fire hoses dispersed the fumes. The only person injured was Gould, who is in serious condition at St. Mary's Hospital, East St. Louis, with a head injury.

Dollar volume of department store sales in the St. Louis area for the week ended last Saturday were 2 per cent above the level for the corresponding week last year, the Federal Reserve Bank of St. Louis reported today.

In the four weeks ended Saturday, there was an 18 per cent gain. Sales in the Eighth Federal Reserve District for the week were 3 per cent more than in the same period last year, with gains recorded in each area of the district.

Sales for the four weeks in the district were 7 per cent above the corresponding period last year, with the largest increase being reported in the Memphis area.

Throughout the nation department stores sales were higher in eight of the 12 reserve districts, lower in three and unchanged in one for an over-all average gain of 3 per cent for the week.

GLOBE-DEMOCRAT FILES SUIT AGAINST 13 UNION EMPLOYES

Suit for $20,000 damages was filed yesterday by the Globe-Democrat Publishing Co. against 13 members of the St. Louis Web Printing Pressmen and Flymen's Union, Local 38, as a result of a brief work stoppage last Wednesday night in alleged violation of a contract.

The petition, filed in circuit court, said the contract with the union provided there would be no strikes or interruption of production for the life of the contract. Disputes were to be settled by a joint standing committee and arbitration, it said.

The walkout delayed publication about one hour and cost the company $20,000, the petition stated. The dispute arose after cleaning of an unused press was assigned to the janitorial force.

PLAN IS DRAFTED FOR BARRACKS SCHOOL REVENUE

A plan to offset the anticipated $35,000 decline in the Jefferson Barracks school district's operating revenue this year was to be proposed to County Supervisor James H. J. McNary today.

William J. Costello, attorney for the school board who drafted the proposal, said it calls for:

Revision of contracts and agreements by the St. Louis County Housing Authority, the county and the school district which would result in the housing authority paying the school district about $25,000 a year in lieu of taxes. The authority at present pays about $15,000.

Payment by the housing authority, instead of by the school district, for tuition of students sent to high schools in other districts. These tuition fees totaled about $10,000 last year and may be as high as $20,000 this year, Costello said.

Transfer of 30 acres of land by the housing authority to the school district. The land, which has been appraised at $1000 an acre, does not figure in the authority's plans for future construction, Costello said. If transferred to the school district, he said, it would be an asset that would make the district more attractive for consolation with a larger district.

The plan is to be presented to the housing authority tomorrow. Costello said the authority's officials are indicated they are "very receptive" to receiving suggestions to ease the disputes over school facilities which have arisen in the controversy over the new $3,025,825 housing project under construction. They have not been informed, however, of the details of the proposal the school district has prepared, he said.

The school district's plan would provide a new formula for calculating payments to it in lieu of taxes. Under the present system, the payments equal 10 per cent of net shelter rents collected, less the cost of utility charges. The sum is apportioned between the school district and the county's general operating fund, according to the relation between the county and school tax rates.

The school district is suggesting that payments be based on 10 per cent of the annual rents chargeable, instead of those collected, without deduction of utility charges. The plan also recommends that the county waive its share of the resultant yield.

Pleads Guilty

By a Post-Dispatch Photographer.

MRS. MARIANNA HITZFELD, secretary to Paul B. Radloff, accountant. She pleaded guilty today of failing to file a federal income tax return for 1955. The body of a man possessing papers bearing Radloff's name was found shot to death in Forest Park today.

ZOO HEADS TO MEET UNION OFFICIALS

Zoo Director George Vierheller and Palmer B. Baumes, head of the Zoological Board of Control, have agreed to meet with union officials to discuss union representation for about 65 employes of the zoo, it was announced today.

Joseph L. Ames, secretary-treasurer of Institutional and ublic Employes Union, Local 410, said the meeting will be held next Friday in the office of attorneys for the board. He said the meeting was arranged after he had sent a letter to Vierheller asking for a conference and complaining that Vierheller and his supervisory personnel were discouraging Zoo employes from joining the union.

Ames told a reporter his union had received applications for membership from about 90 per cent of the zoo staff. He said the wage scale was not fully up to that of city employes, but that the more serious problem was the six-day week in force at the zoo without any compensation or time off for overtime. He also said hourly-rated employes were given no compensation when they showed up for work without previous notification they would not be needed on that day.

In his letter, Ames said repeated attempts by him to arrange a meeting had been unsuccessful. He said zoo officials had promised some employes they would be given a five-day week if they would drop their union membership. Ames protested against what he called "this blatant type of union busting."

The zoo's animal keepers and groundsmen are not under Civil Service. The zoo is operated by the Zoological Board of Control, rather than by the city administration. Ames said his union represents about 1800 city and 500 state employes.

Vierheller could not be reached for comment.

Soviet Note

Gaulle that a two-power conference would cause no concern so long as the French Foreign Office was kept fully informed of the nature of the talks at every stage.

From Chancellor Adenauer of West Germany has come a message to the effect that the West Germans are content to let American officials explore the possibility of further negotiation with Mikoyan. In the past many West Germans have been intensely suspicious of a "deal" over the future of Germany.

Officials combing over the record of the talks thus far with Mikoyan feel the most significant concession he has made was in a statement to Nixon in their 2½-hour conversation. We no longer feel, Mikoyan told the Vice President, that you want to make war on us and destroy us.

This represents a radical reversal from the position repeated over and over by Russian officials at every level through the years. As one American close to the discussions remarked, "It may seem astonishing to us in this country that this is a concession, but believe me it is."

Change in Atmosphere

Mikoyan made the same statement later to Detroit industrialists. It is indicative of the change in atmosphere which is thus far the most significant alteration resulting from the visit of the Russian No. 2 man.

While it was little noted at the time, about 10 days before Mikoyan's arrival, Russia's principal weather vane executed a right turn. The writer, Ilya Ehrenburg, noted in the past for heralding shifts in the Kremlin line, published a long article in which he told his Soviet readers that the Americans were not warlike.

This was directly contrary to the propaganda line running full blast for years. You cannot ignore, said Ehrenburg, the Americans' great peacetime achievements—museums, art galleries and magnificent architecture as well as their industries. These things, he wrote, are not the evidence of a warlike people.

The line can, of course, be abruptly reversed again. But it will be more difficult once the Russian people have been told that what was dinned into their ears over the years—that the Americans are bloodthirsty imperialists—was not the truth.

Mrs. Montague

the body to City Hospital and the woman was pronounced dead there, at 1:20 p.m., and then taken to the Morgue.

He told of seeing a wedding band and a bracelet Mrs. Montague was wearing, and said he learned later that the car keys were found in her purse.

Sgt. Ollie Bujnak of the homicide squad described an indentation on the victim's neck, disclosed at the autopsy, as being about a half-inch wide, purplish in color and extending from the lower part of the right ear to her Adam's apple. He made no suggestion as to how it was caused.

Victim's Brother on Stand.

Donald A. Jones, brother of the dead woman, testified he first learned his sister was missing at 10:30 a.m. last Wednesday when his mother called by telephone. His mother wanted to know whether he had seen Ruth. Jones said he replied that he had not seen her in several days and advised his mother to call some of her daughter's sorority sisters to find out where the party had been held the night before.

Learning the address was 4940 Columbia avenue, Jones said he went there, following the probable route his sister had taken. There he found her body, but did not disturb it before notifying police.

"I believed she was dead," he explained.

Jones was unable to suggest any enemies his sister might have had. In reply to further questions, he described her as punctual in her habits and said he did not believe she and her husband had had any serious domestic difficulties.

Coroner Patrick Taylor took a hand in the questioning to inquire about the condition of the front seat of the victim's car. Jones said he learned afterwards the seat had been broken at some earlier date and had been repaired. However, it was broken again New Year's Eve but he was unable to explain how it had happened.

Prior to the inquest, detailed investigation by police had failed to turn up a definite clue to the identity of the person or persons responsible for Mrs. Montague's death.

Police were puzzled as to where the killing occurred—whether the assailant of the 32-year-old mother of two children was in the machine and waiting for her when she left a sorority social gathering at 4940 Columbia or whether she was set upon somewhere else and taken back to that place.

The sorority party where Mrs. Montague was last seen alive was at the home of Mrs. Glennon L. Brookman at the Columbia avenue address.

Mrs. Montague's car was seen leaving the Brookman home shortly after 10 a'clock, and it was assumed at the time that she was driving, alone, as she had arrived. None of the women at the party had any reason to take any particular notice of her departure, for there had been nothing unusual in her demeanor all evening.

Another Auto Seen.

Just when the car was returned to that block of Columbia has not been determined. Mrs. Brookman and another resident of the block have recalled seeing it parked directly in front of the Brookman home, facing east at about midnight and later. The neighbor reported seeing another machine parked behind it about 1 a.m. with the lights on.

The victim's legs had been cut, evidently with a razor blade, and her underclothing had been slit. Her stockings were rolled down to the ankles, but otherwise she was wearing her normal clothing, including a black dress and black coat. Her purse was on the front seat of the car with $8 in it. Also in the purse were the keys to the car.

Another phase of the mystery concerns the gap in time from Tuesday night, when Mrs. Montague did not return home, until nearly noon Wednesday, when a check of the Brookman home was made for the first time.

A former inmate of St. Louis State Hospital was questioned by police for about one hour last night and released. Another man was questioned also in following up some information given by a woman, but he was dismissed quickly.

Reaction

tive laughter came when the President interpolated in his prepared address some explanatory remarks about his recommendation that the Chief Executive be given the power to approve or reject specific items in appropriation bills.

This is the so-called item veto, and Mr. Eisenhower said with a smile he knew the recommendation had been made time and again and as often turned down by Congress, but that nevertheless he was repeating it because it was important and would save the country money.

Congress has always refused to permit item vetoes because such authority would upset the traditional congressional system of horse-trading. At present, the President must approve or veto bills as units; he cannot separate them into component parts.

The first applause for a matter of substance in the prepared speech came from Republicans and Democrats alike when Mr. Eisenhower declared this country can have no confidence in any treaty with the Communists that is not self-enforcing.

Economy Gets a Hand.

It was about 10 minutes before he was applauded again, on point of economy. Fifteen minutes after he started his listeners were becoming restive and coughing was heard. Half way through the talk, with only three outbreaks of applause recorded, Senate majority leader Lyndon B. Johnson (Dem.), Texas, who had been gazing at the ceiling with his hand before his mouth, leaned over to speak to Senator Mike Mansfield (Dem.), Montana, the majority whip. Mansfield replied briefly.

Some of the Senators and Representative came with pencils and notepaper, but none was observed writing.

It was noticeable that the major applause for the President's domestic proposals came from the Republicans. His foreign policy statements were largely applauded on a bipartisan basis. At no point, excepting Russell's clapping, did Democrats applaud alone. The only cheers—and from the Republicans — came when the President promised a balanced budget.

Hand-Clapping Record.

Post-Dispatch records show that Mr. Eisenhower was applauded 54 times for his first State of the Union message in 1953; 45 times in 1954 and 19 times in 1955. In 1956 the message was read by clerks; the president was at Key West, Fla., recovering from his heat attack. There were only five instances of applause in 1957.

Last year his speech, also delivered on Jan. 9, was received with 40 rounds of applause. He had suffered a mild stroke the previous Nov. 25 but went to the NATO heads-of-government meeting in Paris in mid-December despite the illness.

The House convened at noon and three minutes later Mrs. Nixon entered the executive gallery and brought the society writers to their feet with her opulent new mink stole. Mrs. Eisenhower, wearing a cloth coat with fur collar, entered at 12:15 p.m. and took a place beside Mrs. Nixon. The assemblage stood and applauded. She sat solemnly during much of the speech, occasionally resting her chin in a gloved hand.

The ambassadors, led by the dean of the diplomatic corps, Guillermo Sevilla-Sacasa of Nicaragua, filed in at 12:20, to be followed by the robed justices of the Supreme Court, led by Chief Justice Earl Warren. The President's Cabinet, led by Secretary of State John Foster Dulles, was the last group to take its place.

Canadian Population Rise.

OTTAWA, Jan. 9 (UPI) — Canada's population rose by 354,000 in the first 11 months of 1958 to 17,241,000, it was announced yesterday.

Adm. Horthy's Widow Dies.

LISBON, Jan. 9 (AP)—Madeleine de Horthy, widow of Hungary's pro-Axis regent, died in the British Hospital last night. She was 77 years old. Her husband, Adm. Nicholas Horthy, died in February 1957. He was regent of Hungary from 1920 until 1944. Their son, Nicholas Horthy, and his wife live in nearby Estoril, home of many refugee aristocrats.

AIR DEFENSE ZONE EXPANDED TO TAKE IN FLORIDA COAST

WASHINGTON, Jan. 9 (AP) — The Pentagon announced yesterday the immediate expansion of the Atlantic air defense identification zone to include the entire coastline of Florida and adjacent areas of the Gulf of Mexico.

The decision was announced after published reports that an armed Cuban bomber flew within striking distance of the missile test center on Cape Canaveral, Fla., New Year's day but was never challenged.

The Pentagon said extension of the defense zone was "in accordance with previous plans" and was possible because of increased air defense capability in the area.

The Cuban military plane was able to fly up the Florida coast for 300 miles, unchallenged and unnoted until the pilot asked for landing instructions near Daytona Beach. The Pentagon said the reason was that the active radar coverage for the Atlantic identification zone does not normally extend into the Daytona-Canaveral area "except on a test or emergency basis."

COUNTY POLICE REPORT RISE IN ROBBERIES IN '58

Major crimes within the jurisdiction of the St. Louis County Police Department last year showed a marked decrease from 1957 in all offenses against the person except robbery, Superintendent Raymond W. Hensley announced today. Crimes against property showed a rise.

Hensley attributed the crime pattern to adverse economic conditions in the first part of 1958 which resulted in unemployment and a consequent rise in thefts.

County police handle crimes in unincorporated areas and in some smaller municipalities that contract with the department for police protection.

Figures compiled by Hensley are complete except for a portion of last month.

Murder and non-negligent homicide were committed five times in 1957 but only twice in 1958, a decrease of 60 per cent. Manslaughter by negligence cases totaled 19 in 1957 and 10 last year, a drop of 47 per cent.

The third category of crimes against the person — forcible rape—totaled 31 cases in 1957 and five last year, a drop of 87 per cent. Aggravated assault declined from 40 to 35 or about 12 per cent.

On the other hand, robbery which is both a crime against the person and against property, in most cases, increased from 31 to 41 or 32 per cent, and burglary climbed from 425 to 636 for a rise of almost 50 per cent.

Thefts of money or property worth $50 or more rose from 356 to 383 or about 7 per cent while larceny under $50 jumped from 670 to 767 or about 14 per cent.

Automobile thefts in 1957 were 107 and last year 145, a rise of 35 per cent.

Hensley repeated his pleas for additional manpower in the department which now has 113 commissioned officers. He has asked for 25 more in next year's budget, but former County Supervisor Luman F. Matthews eliminated the request from his tentative budget.

EISENHOWER BEING URGED TO FLY TO MOSCOW IN JULY

WASHINGTON, Jan. 9 — President Eisenhower is being urged to fly to Moscow next July to open the American exhibit at a trade fair in the Soviet capital.

Influential private citizens have told Mr. Eisenhower that the trip would enhance his image as a peacemaker, which is still bright in many parts of the world.

The President is understood to have listened with interest, but to have made no commitment.

He hos been informed by Americans who have had audiences with Premier Khrushchev that the Russians boss would welcome an Eisenhower visit to Moscow.

But whether Khrushchev would welcome a ceremonial appearance by the President, without engaging in long talks about United States-Soviet differences, is debatable.

FORCES WAY INTO AUTO AND ROBS WOMAN OF $16

A University City housewife was robbed of $16 last night by a man who forced his way into her automobile, threatened to kill her and then attemped to assault her, University City police reported. He also took a wristwatch valued at $65.

Officers said the woman, 39 years old and mother of two children, was locking the doors of her automobile in the 800 block of Eastgate avenue, University City, at 7:50 p.m., when the man, a Negro, forced his way into the car.

She said he grabbed her by the neck, threatened to kill her and forced her to drive north in Eastgate to Cabanne avenue, into an alley and then into a vacant lot. He took her wallet containing $16 and the watch. The woman told police he then attempted to assault her but apparently became frightened and fled.

ALABAMA JUDGE AGAIN REBUFFS RIGHTS INQUIRY

MONTGOMERY, Ala., Jan. 9 (UPI)—The Civil Rights Commission said today that an Alabama circuit judge had again rebuffed itsh efforts to obtain voter registration records in two counties.

The Justice Department was called on for assistance.

Chairman John A. Hannjah said commission agents "Spent two days trying to get the records" of Barbour and Bullock counties. He said that Circuit not make the records available to us as ordered by the United States district court in Montgomery."

"Therefore," Hannah said, "we have called on the United States Attorney General for help in making the . . . records available to us in our inquiry that we may make our report to the President and Congress as required by law."

No Details Disclosed.

Hannah refused to give any details of how Wallace rebuffed investigators.

He said the commission investigators reported they received full co-operation in another county in securing voter registration records.

The State of Alabama, represented by Gov.-elect John Patterson, and the the commission agreed Monday to permit federal investigators to examine the records in the three counties at the convenience of the records custodians and in a manner that would not interfere with the judicial progresses of the state.

Wallace held court at Clayton, Ala., yesterday. There was speculation he refused to turn over the records on grounds it would interfere with his judicial responsibility.

Judge Impounded Records.

Wallace impounded records from the two counties last fall to conduct an investigation into other charges. He has said he would not turn them over to federal investagators until he has completed his own investigation.

Earlier, the commission went behind closed doors to resume its inquiry of alleged discrimination against Negro voters in the three Alabama counties.

Hannah read to newsmen sections of the civil rights act which allowed him to hold the executive session and then ordered the nefsmen and about 30 spectators, mostly Negro, from the courtroom.

CAFE LOSES LAST OF 100 ASHTRAYS COSTING $85 EACH

HOLLYWOOD, Jan. 9 (UPI)—The last of 100 hand-molded copper ashtrays, purchased for $85 each wher the Brown Derby Restaurant opened 30 years ago, has been stolen.

The trays, in the form of a full-sized derby, were used by the great of Hollywood and visiting dignitaries until their number dwindled to one. All apparently were taken by customers within a short time after the restaucant opened.

That last tray was reserved for special occasions and brought out only for such distinguished persons as the late Presidents Coolidge and Roosevelt, the Duke of Windsor, Clark Gable, Jack Dempsey and stars of the movie and sports world.

Earlier this week Baltimore Colts Coach Weeb Ewbank and broadcaster Mel Allen flicked their ashes into the last of the derby trays.

Two days later after various stars had used the tray and it was emptied, attendants could not find the tray.

A Brown Derby spokesman said a two-day search of the premises failed to turn up the tray and it is presumed to have been stolen by a souvenir hunter.

POLICE BOARD TO SHIFT CASH TO OVERDRAWN ACCOUNT

The Board of Police Commissioners will transfer police department funds from some other accounts to the "special personal services" account pursuant to a request of Comptroller John H. Poelker, it was announced today. Poelker said the $90,000 account is now overdrawn by $3600.

President H. Sam Priest of the police board, when advised of Poelker's request, said the board would be happy to make the transfer from any accounts available in order to assist Poelker in his bookkeeping duties. Priest said, however, there was no legal requirement on the board to do so. This has been acknowledged by Poelker.

The account covers expenditures for expert advice and consultation and various other services, but a substantial part of the funds go for medical and hospital payments for police officers injured in line of duty. Poelker said he was holding up $11,000 in vouchers drawn against the account until the transfer is made.

DOUGLAS STUTSMAN NAMED SECOND AID TO GOVERNOR

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, Jan. 9—Douglas A. Stutsman, an examiner for the Public Service Commission, was appointed today as an administrative assistant to Gov. James T. Blair.

Stutsman, a native St. Louisan, is the second administrative assistant named by the Governor this week. The other is former State Representative Rebort Crawford of Nevada. The new appointee, 28 years old, attended Central tral College, Fayette, and received his law degree at the University of Missouri last year. His salary will be $9600 a year.

Gov. Blair also announced he has withdrawn the appointment made yesterday, of Paul van Osdol Jr. of Kansas City as a member of the University of Missouri Board of Curtors. This was necessary because Van Osdol is now a member of the Jackson county judicial selection commission under the nonpartisan court plan, and the Constitution prohibits such members from holding other public office.

SPACE TRAVEL INTERVIEW DISCLOSED TO BE HOAX

CAPETOWN, South Africa., Jan. 9 (UPI)—An editor said today his newspaper's widely publicized story of an interview with a Soviet space scientist turned out to be a hoax.

Pieter Beukes, an editor of Die Landstem, said the alleged interview with Anatoly Blagonravov was "highly embarrassing." He said it was conceived by a London correpondent.

The story quoted Blagonravov as saying the Russians had started training the first man to be rocketed into space and that the Soviet Union planned to send manned rockets to the moon, Mars and Venus in September.

MISSILE-FIRING ATOM SUBMARINE TO BE LAUNCHED

VALLEJO, Calif., Jan. 9 (UPI)—The first nuclear-powered submarine capable of firing guided missiles will be launched at Mare Island naval shipyard today.

The 5000-ton Halibut, the Navy's second largest submarine, is the second atomic submarine to be built on the West Coast. The Sargo was launched at Vallejo Oct. 10, 1957.

The Halibut will be able to fire missiles such as the Regulus I, with a range of more than 500 miles, as well as torpedoes. It also carries equipment to enable it to serve as a radar picket ship.

DAM OVERFLOWS IN SPAIN, 100 REPORTED DEAD

ZAMORA, Spain, Jan. 9 (UPI) — Rain-swollen waters surged over a huge new power dam and sent a wall of death onto the village of Ribadelago early today. First sketchy reports said 100 or more persons may have been killed.

The disaster struck at 4 a.m. in northwest Spain near the Portuguese border.

The Zamora provincial government said a statement that rains of the last few days overflowed the reservoir of the two-year-old Vega de Tera dam and "spilled over, inundating the village of Ribadelago."

The rushing water ripped out the only road leading to the village and bad weather made flying to the scene impossible.

Reports reaching Zamora told of bodies, animals and household goods being driven ahead of the surging waters into Lake Sanabria which lies just above the northeastern tip of Portugal.

The village of some 500 population is in one of the poorest areas of Spain, a section of primitive farming methods with sheep grazing on the arid tablelands and fruit and grapes grown in the many river valleys.

A joint military-civil mission led by Zambora Governor Juan Murilla de Valdivia y Martinez set out immediately from this provincial capital for the scene of the disaster.

STARGAZER PLANS TO PLACE RUSSIAN HUSBANDS IN ORBIT

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 9 (AP) —When Alla Masevich, famous Soviet astrophysicist, goes home she will have news for Russian husbands that may send them into orbit.

Mme. Masevich, whose head is crammed with knowledge of things celestial, came down to earth yesterday and talked with enthusiasm of American food, freezers and men.

So much in American life has impressed her, she said, but nothing more than the way a married man pitches in at home and helps his wife.

"But don't Russian husbands dry the dishes, sweep the floor and dust the furniture?" she was asked in an interview.

"Oh, no," she replied. "I have been entertained in your homes and I have seen these husbands helping their wives. They are so efficient. Not so that way in my country."

But she definitely gave the impression that it might well be that way in her country once she spreads the word around. The 34-year-old scientist is in the United States on a cultural exchange mission. She has been a guest this week at Haverford College.

DRINKER PERMITS FRIEND TO DRIVE, BOTH ARRESTED

Richard Mills, arrested last night when driving a car for a friend who had too much to drink, was himself charged with driving when intoxicated.

He also admitted, police said, that his driver's license was under suspension. The friend, Timothy Jones, who was riding with him, was booked suspected of permitting an unauthorized person to drive his car.

Patrolmen Edward Hogan and Joseph Boul made the arrests in the 4400 block of Ashland avenue after an eight-block chase at high speed. They said Mills, 24 years old, of the 4600 block of Carter avenue, had to be treated for a lacerated scalp at Homer G. Phillips Hospital after he fell down as he kicked at them.

Jones, 19, of the 1500 block of Tamm avenue, refused to tell where he had been served liquor. The two were ordered to police court today.

PRESIDENT GOING TO CAMP DAVID FOR WEEKEND

WASHINGTON, Jan. 9 (AP) —President Eisenhower plans to spend the weekend at his Catoctin mountain lodge at Thurmont, Md.

Mr. Eisenhower arranged to travel to the secluded retreat, called Camp David, in the afternoon after delivering his State of the Union message at a joint session of the Senate and House.

The President left for decision at the last minute whether to go by automobile or helicopter. The camp is about 65 miles north of Washington.

Mrs. Eisenhower also will be at the lodge for the weekend. So will Mr. and Mrs. George E. Allen, old friends of the Eisenhowers.

The President plans to return to Washington Sunday evening or Monday morning.

He announced the transaction yesterday, saying William Beacom and Robert S. Morton, southern California businessmen, had acquired the club. EISENHOWER TEXT: 'UNLESS WE PROGRESS, WE REGRESS'

President Says We Must Meet World Challenge, at Same Time Permit No Stagnation in U.S.

State of Union Message Emphasizes Necessity of Avoiding Any Contribution to Inflationary Processes Which Could Disrupt Sound Economy.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 9 (AP).

MR. PRESIDENT, Mr. Speaker, Members of the Eighty-sixth Congress, my fellow citizens:

This is the moment when Congress and the Executive annually begin their co-operative work to build a better America.

One basic opportunity unites us: To promote strength and security, side by side with liberty and opportunity.

As we meet today, in the 170th year of the republic, our nation must continue to provide—as all other free governments have had to do throughout time—a satisfactory answer to a question as old as history. It is: Can government based upon liberty and the God-given rights of man, permanently endure when ceaselessly challenged by a dictatorship, hostile to our mode of life, and controlling an economic and military power of great and growing strength?

For us the answer has always been found, and is still found in the devotion, the vision, the courage and the fortitude of our people.

Moreover, this challenge we face, not as a single powerful nation, but as one that has in recent decades reached a position of recognized leadership in the free world.

We have arrived at this position of leadership in an era of remarkable productivity and growth. It is also a time when man's power of mass destruction has reached fearful proportions.

Possession of such capabilities helps create world suspicion and tension. We, on our part, know that we seek only a just peace for all, with aggressive designs against no one. Yet we realize that there is uneasiness in the world because of a belief on the part of peoples that through arrogance, miscalculation or fear of attack, catastrophic war could be launched. Keeping the peace in today's world more than ever calls for the utmost in the nation's resolution, wisdom, steadiness and unremitting effort. We cannot build peace through desire alone. Moreover, we have learned the bitter lesson that international agreements, historically considered by us as sacred, are regarded in Communist doctrine and in practice to be mere scraps of paper. The most recent proof of their disdain of international obligations, solemnly undertaken, is their announced intention to abandon their responsibilities respecting Berlin.

As a consequence, we can have no confidence in any treaty to which Communists are a party except where such a treaty provides within itself for self-enforcing mechanisms. Indeed, the demonstrated disregard of the Communists of their own pledges is one of the greatest obstacles to success in substituting the rule of law for rule of force.

Yet step by step we must strengthen the institutions of peace—a peace that rests upon justice—a peace that depends upon a deep knowledge and clear understanding by all peoples of the consequences of failure in this great purpose.

I

To achieve this peace we seek to prevent war at any place and in any dimension. If, despite our best efforts, a local dispute should flare into armed hostilities, the next problem would be to keep the conflict from spreading, and so compromising freedom. In support of these objectives we maintain forces of great power and flexibility.

Our formidable air striking forces are a powerful deterent to general war. Large and growing portions of these units can depart from their bases in a matter of minutes.

Similar forces are included in our naval fleets.

Ground and other tactical formations can move with swiftness and precision, when requested by friendly and responsible governments, to help curb threatened aggression. The stabilizing influence of this capacity has been dramatically demonstrated more than once over the past year.

Our military and related scientific progress has been highly gratifying.

Great strides have been made in the development of ballistic missiles. Intermediate range missiles are now being deployed in operational units. The Atlas intercontinental ballistic missile program has been marked by rapid development as evidenced by recent successful tests. Missile training units have been established and launching sites are far along in construction.

New aircraft that fly at twice the speed of sound are entering our squadrons.

We have successfully placed five satellites in orbit, which have gathered information of scientific importance never before available. Our latest satellite illustrates our steady advance in rocketry and foreshadows new developments in world-wide communications.

Warning systems constantly improve.

Our atomic submarines have shattered endurance records and made historic voyages under the north polar sea.

A major segment of our national scientific and engineering community is working intensively to achieve new and greater developments. Advance in military technology requires adequate financing, but of course even more, it requires talent and time.

All this is given only as a matter of history; as a record of our progress in space and ballistic missile fields in no more than four years of intensive effort. At the same time we clearly recognize that some of the recent Soviet accomplishments in this particular technology are indeed brilliant.

Under the law enacted last year the Department of Defense is being reorganized to give the Secretary of Defense full authority over the military establishment. Greater efficiency, more cohesive effort and speedier reaction to emergencies are among the many advantages we are already noting from these changes.

These few highlights point up our steady military gains. We are rightfully gratified by the achievements they represent.

National security programs account for nearly 60 per cent of the entire federal budget for this coming fiscal year.

Modern weapons are exceedingly expensive.

The over-all cost of introducing Atlas into our armed forces will average $35,000,000 per missile on the firing line.

This year we are investing an aggregate of close to seven billion dollars in missile programs alone.

Other billions go for research, development, test and evaluation of new weapons systems.

Our latest atomic submarines will cost $50,000,000 each, while some special types will cost three times as much.

We are now ordering fighter aircraft which are priced at fifty times as much as the fighters of World War II.

We are buying certain bombers that cost their weight in gold.

These sums are tremendous, even when compared with the marvelous resiliency and capacity of our economy.

Such expenditures demand both balance and perspective in our planning for defense. At every turn, we must weigh, judge and select. Needless duplication of weapons and forces must be avoided.

We must guard against feverish building of vast armaments to meet glibly predicted moments of so-called "maximum peril." The threat we face is not sporadic or dated: it is continuous. Hence we must not be swayed in our calculations by groundless fear or by complacency. We must avoid extremes, for vacillation between extremes is inefficient, costly, and destructive of morale. In these days of unceasing technological advance, we must plan our defense expenditures systematically and with care, fully recognizing that obsolescence compels the never-ending replacement of older weapons with new ones.

The defense budget for the coming year has been planned on the basis of these principles and considerations. Over these many months I have personally participated in its development.

The aim is a sensible posture of defense. The secondary aim is increased efficiency and avoidance of waste. Both are advanced by this budgetary plan.

Working by these guide lines I believe with all my heart that America can be as sure of the strength and efficiency of her armed forces as she is of their loyalty. I am equally sure that the nation will thus avoid useless expenditures which, in the name of security, might tend to undermine the economy and, therefore, the nation's safety.

Our own vast strength is only a part of that required for dependable security. Because of this we have joined with nearly 50 other nations in collective security arrangements. In these common undertakings each nation is expected to contribute what it can in sharing the heavy load. Each supplies part of a strategic deployment to protect the forward boundaries of freedom.

Constantly we seek new ways to make more effective our contribution to this system of collective security. Recently I have asked a committee of eminent Americans of both parties to re-appraise our military assistance programs and the relative emphasis which should be placed on military and economic aid.

I am hopeful that preliminary recommendations of this committee will be available in time to assist in shaping the mutual security program for the coming fiscal year.

Any survey of the free world's defense structure cannot fail to impart a feeling of regret that so much of our effort and resources must be devoted to armaments. At Geneva and elsewhere we continue to seek technical and other agreements that may help to open up, with some promise, the issues of international disarmament. America will never give up the hope that eventually all nations can, with mutual confidence, drastically reduce these non-productive expenditures.

II

The material foundation of our national safety is a strong and expanding economy. This we have—and this we must maintain. Only with such an economy can we be secure and simultaneously provide for the well-being of our people.

A year ago the nation was experiencing a decline in employment and output. Today that recession is fading into history, and this without gigantic, hastily-improvised public works projects or untimely tax reductions. A healthy and vigorous recovery has been under way since last May. New homes are being built at the highest rate in several years. Retail sales are at peak levels. Personal income is at an all-time high.

The marked forward thrust of our economy reaffirms our confidence in competitive enterprise. But — clearly — wisdom and prudence in both the public and private sectors of the economy are always necessary.

Our outlook is this: 1960 committments for our armed forces, The Atomic Energy Commission and military assistance exceed 47 billion dollars. In the foreseeable future they are not likely to be significantly lower. With an annual population increase of 3,000,000, other governmental costs are bound to mount.

After we have provided wisely for our military strength, we must judge how to allocate our remaining government resources most effectively to promote our well-being and economic growth.

Federal programs that will benefit all citizens are moving forward.

Next year we will be spending increased amounts on health programs; on Federal assistance to science and education; on the development of the nation's water resources; on the renewal of urban areas; and on our vast system of federal-aid highways.

Each of these additional outlays is being made necessary by the surging growth of America.

Let me illustrate. Responsive to this growth, federal grants and long-term loans to assist 14 major types of capital improvements in our cities will total over $2,000,000,000 in 1960—double the expenditure of two years ago. The major responsibility for development in these fields rests in the localities, even though the federal government will continue to do its proper part in meeting the genuine needs of a burgeoning population.

But the progress of our economy can more than match the growth of our needs. We need only to act wisely and confidently.

Here, I hope you will permit me to digress long enough to express something that is much on my mind.

The basic question facing us today is more than mere survival — the military defense of national life and territory. It is the preservation of a way of life.

We must meet the world challenge and at the same time permit no stagnation in America.

Unless we progress, we regress.

We can successfully sustain security and remain true to our heritage of freedom if we clearly visualize the tasks ahead and set out to perform them with resolution and fervor. We must first define these tasks and then understand what we must do to perform them.

If progress is to be steady we must have long-term guides extending far ahead, certainly five, possibly even ten years. They must reflect the knowledge that before the end of five years we will have a population of over 190,000,000. They must be goals that stand high, and so inspire every citizen to climb always toward mounting levels of moral, intellectual and material strength. Every advance toward them must stir pride in individual and national achievements.

To define these goals, I intend to mobilize help from every available source.

We need more than politically ordained national objectives to challenge the best efforts of free men and women. A group of selfless and devoted individuals, outside of government, could effectively participate in making the necessary appraisal of the potentials of our future. The result would be established national goals that would not only reflect the brightness of our finest dreams, but would meet the stern test of practicality.

I plan a committee comprised of educators and representatives of labor, management, finance, the professions and every other kind of useful activity.

Such a study would update and supplement, in the light of continuous changes in our society and its economy, the monumental work of the committee on recent social trends which was appointed in 1931 by President Hoover. The new committee would be concerned, among other things, with the living standards of our people, their health and education, their better assurance of life and liberty and their greater opportunities. It would also be concerned with methods to meet such goals and what levels of government—local, state, or federal—should be particularly concerned.

As one example, consider our schools, operated under the authority of local communities and states. In their capacity and in their quality they conform to no recognizable standards. In some places facilities are ample, in others meager. Pay of teachers ranges between wide limits, from the adequate to the shameful. As would be expected, quality of teaching varies just as widely. But to our teachers we commit the most valuable possession of the nation and of the family—our children.

We must have teachers of competence. To obtain and hold them we need standards. We need a national goal. Once established I am certain that public opinion would compel steady progress toward its accomplishment.

Such studies would be helpful, I believe, to Government at all levels and to all individuals. The goals so established could help us see our current needs in perspective. They will spur progress.

We do not forget, of course, that our nation's progress and fiscal integrity are interdependent and inseparable. We can afford everything we clearly need, but we cannot afford one cent of waste. We must examine every item of governmental expense critically. To do otherwise would betray our nation's future.

Thrift is one of the characteristics that has made this nation great. Why should we ignore it now?

We must avoid any contribution to inflationary processes, which could disrupt sound growth in our economy.

Prices have displayed a welcome stability in recent months and, if we are wise and resolute, we will not tolerate inflation in the years to come. But history makes clear the risks inherent in any failure to deal firmly with the basic causes of inflation. Two of the most important of these causes are the wage-price spiral and continued deficit financing.

Inflation would reduce job opportunities, price us out of world markets, shrink the value of savings and penalize the thrift so essential to finance a growing economy.

Inflation is not a Robin Hood, taking from the rich to give to the poor. Rather, it deals most cruelly with those who can least protect themselves. It strikes hardest those millions of our citizens whose incomes do not quickly rise with the cost of living. When prices soar, the pensioner and the widow see their security undermined, the man of thrift sees his savings melt away; the white collar worker, the minister, and the teacher see their standards of living dragged down.

Inflation can be prevented. But this demands statesmanship on the part of business and labor leaders and of government at all levels.

We must encourage the self-discipline, the restraint necessary to curb the wage-price spiral and we must meet current costs from current revenue.

To minimize the danger of future soaring prices and to keep our economy sound and expanding, I shall present to the Congress certain proposals.

First, I shall submit a balanced budget for the next year, a year expected to be the most prosperous in our history. It is a realistic budget with wholly attainable objectives.

If we cannot live within our means during such a time of rising prosperity, the hope for fiscal integrity will fade. If we persist in living beyond our means, we make it difficult for every family in our land to balance its own household budget. But to live within our means would be a tangible demonstration of the self-discipline needed to assure a stable dollar.

The Constitution entrusts the Executive with many functions, but the Congress—and the Congress alone—has the power of the purse. Ultimately upon Congress rests responsibility for determining the scope and amount of federal spending.

By working together, the Congress and the Executive can keep a balance between income and outgo. If this is done there is real hope that we can look forward to a time in the foreseeable future when needed tax reforms can be accomplished.

In this hope, I am requesting the Secretary of the Treasury to prepare appropriate proposals for revising at the proper time, our tax structure, to remove inequities and to enhance incentive for all Americans to work, to save, and to invest. Such recommendations will be made as soon as our fiscal conditions permits. These prospects will be brightened if 1960 expenditures do not exceed the levels recommended.

Second, I shall recommend to the Congress that the Chief Executive be given the responsibility either to approve or to veto specific items in appropriations and authorization bills. This would save tax dollars.

Third, to reduce federal operations in an area where private enterprise can do the job, I shall recommend legislation for greater flexibility in extending federal credit, and in improving the procedures under which private credits are insured or guaranteed. Present practices have needlessly added large sums to federal expenditures.

Fourth, action is required to make more effective use of the large federal expenditures for agriculture and to achieve greater fiscal control in this area.

Outlays of the Department of Agriculture for the current fiscal year for the support of farm prices on a very few farm products, will exceed five billion dollars. That is a sum equal to approximately two-fifths of the net income of all farm operators in the entire United States.

By the end of this fiscal year it is estimated that there will be in government hands surplus farm products worth about nine billion dollars. And by July 1, 1959, government expenditures for storage, interests, and handling of its agricultural inventory will reach a rate of one billion dollars a year.

This level of expenditure for farm products could be made willingly for a temporary period if it were leading to a sound solution of the problem. But unfortunately this is not true. We need new legislation.

In the past I have sent messages to the Congress requesting greater freedom for our farmers to manage their own farms and greater freedom for markets to reflect the wishes of producers and consumers. Legislative changes that followed were appropriate in direction but did not go far enough.

The situation calls for prompt and forthright action. Recommendation for action will be contained in a message to be transmitted to the Congress shortly.

These fiscal and related actions will help create an environment of price stability for economic growth. However, certain additional measures are needed.

I shall ask Congress to amend the Employment Act of 1946 to make it clear that government intends to use all appropriate means to protect the buying power of the dollar.

I am establishing a continuing Cabinet group on price stability for economic growth to study governmental and private policies affecting costs, prices, and economic growth. It will strive also to build a better public understanding of the conditions necessary for maintaining growth and price stability.

Studies are being undertaken to improve our information on prices, wages and productivity.

I believe all citizens in all walks of life will support this program of action to accelerate economic growth and promote price stability.

III

I take up next certain aspects of our international situation and our programs to strengthen it.

America's security can be assured only within a world community of strong, stable, independent nations, in which the concepts of freedom, justice and human dignity can flourish.

There can be no such thing as fortress America. If ever we were reduced to the isolation implied by that term, we would occupy a prison, not a fortress. The question whether we can afford to help other nations that want to defend their freedom but cannot fully do so from their own means, has only one answer: We can and we must, we have been doing so since 1947.

Our foreign policy has long been dedicated to building a permanent and just peace.

During the past six years our free world security arrangements have been bolstered and the bonds of freedom have been more closely knit. Our friends in western Europe are experiencing new internal vitality, and are increasingly more able to resist external threats.

Over the years the world has come to understand clearly that it is our firm policy not to countenance aggression. In Lebanon, Taiwan, and Berlin—our stand has been clear, right, and expressive of the determined will of a united people.

Acting with other free nations we have undertaken the solemn obligation to defend the people of free Berlin against any effort to destroy their freedom. In the meantime we shall constantly seek meaningful agreements to settle this and other problems, knowing full well that not only the integrity of a single city, but the hope of all free peoples is at stake.

We need, likewise, to continue helping to build the economic base so essential to the free world's stability and strength.

The International Monetary Fund and the World Bank have both fully proven their worth as instruments of international financial co-operation. Their executive directors have recommended an increase in each member country's subscription. I am requesting the Congress for immediate approval of our share of these increases.

We are now negotiating with representatives of the 20 Latin American Republic for the creation of an inter-American financial institution. Its purpose would be to join all the American republics in a common institution which would promote and finance development in Latin America, and make more effective the use of capital from the World Bank, the Export-Import Bank, and private sources.

Private enterprise continues to make major contributions to economic development in all parts of the world. But we have not yet marshalled the business for this task, particularly in countries which have recently attained their independence. I shall present to this Congress a program designed to encourage greater participation by private enterprise in economic development abroad.

Further, all of us know that to advance the cause of freedom we must do much more than help build sound economies. The spiritual, intellectual, and physical strength of people throughout the world will in the last analysis determine their willingness and their ability to resist Communism.

To give a single illustration of our many efforts in these fields: We have been a participant in the effort that has been made over the past few years against one of the great scourages of mankind — disease. Through the mutual security program public health officials are being trained by American universities to serve in less developed countries. We are engaged in intensive malaria eradication projects in many parts of the world. America's major success in our own country prove the feasibility of success everywhere.

By these and other means we shall continue and expand our campaign against the afflictions that now bring needless suffering and death to so many of the world's people. We wish to be part of a great shared effort toward the triumph of health

IV

America is best described by one word, freedom.

If we hope to strengthen freedom in the world we must be ever mindful of how our own conduct reacts elsewhere. No nation has ever been so floodlighted by world opinion as the United States is today. Everything we do is carefully scrutinized by other peoples throughout the world. The bad is seen along with the good.

Because we are human we err. But as free men we are also responsible for correcting the errors and imperfections of our ways.

Last January I made comprehensive recommendations to the Congress for legislation in the labor-management field. To my disappointment, Congress failed to act. The McClellan Committee disclosures of corruption, racketeering, and abuse of trust and power in labor-management affairs have aroused America and amazed other peoples. They emphasize the need for improved local law enforcement and the enactment of effective federal legislation to protect the public interest and to insure the rights and ecohomic freedoms of millions of American workers. Half-hearted measures will not do. I shall recommend prompt enactment of legislation designed:

To protect the rights and freedoms of individual union members, including the basic right to free and secret elections of officers.

To advance true and responsible collective bargaining.

To protect the public and innocent third parties from unfair and coercive practices such as boycotting and blackmail picketing.

The workers and the public must have these vital protections.

In other areas of human rights—freedom from discrimination in voting, in public education, in access to jobs and in other respects — the world is likewise watching our conduct.

The image of America abroad is not improved when school children, through closing of some of our schools and through no fault of their own, are deprived of their opportunity for an education.

The government of a free people has no purpose more noble than to work for the maximum realization of equality of opportunity under law. This is not the sole responsibility of any one branch of our government. The judicial arm, which has the ultimate authority for interpreting the Constitution, has held that certain state laws and practices discriminate upon racial grounds and are unconstitutional. Whenever the supremacy of the Constitution of the United States is challenged I shall continue to take every action necessary to uphold it.

One of the fundamental concepts of our constitutional system is that it guarantees to every individual, regardless of race, religion, or national origin, the equal protection of the laws. Those of us who are privileged to hold public office have a solemn obligation to make meaningful this inspiring objective. We can fulfill that obligation by our leadership in teaching, persuading, demonstrating, and in enforcing the law.

We are making noticeable progress in the field of civil rights—we are moving forward toward achievement of equality of opportunity for all people everywhere in the United States. In the interest of the nation and of each of its citizens, that progress must continue.

Legislative proposals of the Administration in this field will be submitted to the Congress early in the session. All of us should help to make clear that the Government is united in the common purpose of giving support to the law and the decisions of the courts.

By moving steadily toward the goal of greater freedom under law, for our own people, we shall be the better prepared to work for the cause of freedom under law throughout the world.

All peoples are sorely tired of the fear, destruction, and the waste of war. As never before, the world knows the human and material costs of war and seeks to replace force with a genuine rule of law among nations.

It is my purpose to intensify efforts during the coming two years in seeking ways to supplement the procedures of the United Nations and other bodies with similar objectives, to the end that the rule of law may replace the rule of force in the affairs of nations. Measures toward this end will be proposed later, including a re-examination of our own relation to the International Court of Justice.

Finally—let us remind ourselves that Marxist scripture is not new; it is not the gospel of the future. Its basic objective is dictatorship, old as history. What is new is the shining prospect that man can build a world where all can live in dignity.

We seek victory—not over any nation or people—but over the ancient enemies of us all; victory over ignorance, poverty, disease, and human degradation whereever they may be found.

We march in the noblest of causes—human freedom.

If we make ourselves worthy of America's ideals, if we do not forget that our nation was founded on the premise that all men are creatures of God's making, the world will come to know that it is free men who carry forward the true promise of human progress and dignity.

Senate Roll Call On Filibusters

WASHINGTON, Jan. 9 (AP) —Here is the 60-to-36 vote by which the Senate today tabled a proposal to revise the Senate anti-filibuster rule:

of two-thirds (66) of the entire membership of 98 Senators as required by the existing rule.

Opponents planned to offer a series of amendments to try to make Johnson's proposal more to their liking.

One would permit debates to be shut off by a majority, or 50, of the Senators, while another would provide for ending filibusters by three-fifths of the Senators present and voting.

An attempt also was planned to knock out a section of Johnson's proposal specifying that the rules of the Senate carry over from one Congress to another.

Russell's Comment.

In the debate on the motion to table Senator Richard B. Russell (Dem.), Georgia, said adoption of the Anderson proposal would put the Senate "right back where we started."

Russell, a leader of Southern forces opposing any rules changes at all, said the question of changing Rule 22 already was before the Senate in the Johnson compromise.

Observing that the Senate could amend or otherwise "work its will" on Johnson's proposal, Russell said leaders of the anti-filibuster coalition have "almost reached the standpoint of absurdity."

Senator Everett Dirksen of Illinois, Republican minority leader, told the Senate he had stated last December that "all things being equal" he would support a proposal such as Anderson's. But he continued "we have an entirely changed picture before us" and said he would support the Johnson formula.

"I think it's reasonable," Dirksen said. "I think it's rational."

View of Mansfield.

Senator Mike Mansfield of Montana, assistant Democratic majority leader, said Congress was set up with the Senate, through the longer tenure of its members, intended to be a stabilizing influence. This, he said, requires rules guaranteeing full discussion—"it is needed to prevent unthinking action."

Johnson told reporters he plans for the Senate to meet tonight, and in an unusual Saturday session tomorrow.

He declined to speculate, however, on whether it would be possible to wind up the rules fight this week.

Senator Jacob K. Javits (Rep.), New York, had said prior to the test vote that the showdown on that would be "the decisive vote on this whole question.

AMERICANS WHO AIDED CASTRO CAN KEEP CITIZENSHIP

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

HAVANA, Jan. 9—American citizens who fought with the Cuban rebels were assured today that their citizenship is safe if they get out of the rebel army promptly.

The United States embassy issued a statement giving this interpretation of the United States immigration and nationality act. The law says Americans automatically lose their nationality if they serve in the armed forces of a foreign state without written permission.

But the interpretation by the United States consul general here says the army of Fidel Castro and other revolutionary factions in Cuba have not yet fallen within the category of armed forces of a foreign state.

The handful of Americans who have been fighting with the rebels, including one major in command of forces at Cienfuegos, are "liable to expatriation," however, if they continue to serve voluntarily with these forces "if and when they become an intergal part of the armed forces of the Republic of Cuba, the consul general warned.

Killed When Train Hits Auto.

PAULS VALLEY, Okla., Jan. 9 (AP)—Norman Roskey, signalman for the Santa Fe railroad, was killed last night when his automobile collided with a Santa Fe passenger train at a downtown crossing.

IN NO HURRY, SAYS HALLECK, TO USE MARTIN'S AUTO

WASHINGTON, Jan. 9 (UPI) —Representative Charles A. Halleck of Indiana, who displaced Representative Joseph W. Martin Jr. of Massachusetts Tuesday as House Republican leader, let it be known that he has not taken over Martin's fancy office.

Nor, Halleck said yesterday, has he commandeered the official Cadillac and chauffeur that are among the prerogatives of the minority leader. Martin in fact rode to the Capitol from his hotel yesterday as usual in the limousine that under the law now is assigned to Halleck.

Some reports had Martin already out hailing taxicabs. Halleck read these reports with dismay and passed the word from his own modest office down to Martin's elaborate suite that he is not pressing for the keys either to Martin's office or car.

ernmental costs are bound to mount."

Current national security expenditures, including foreign assistance, are at annual rate of $46,800,000,000, up a half a billion dollars from the estimates last January.

Praises Soviet Scientists.

In boasting of American accomplishments in the military and scientific field—and at the same time complaining of their costs—the President conceded recognition that "the recent Soviet accomplishments in this particular technology are indeed brilliant."

He obviously was referring to Russia's firsts in launching its earth Satellite and its later space rocket to the sun.

Coming to the national economy and federal domestic outlays, the President said the basic question today is more than mere survival by military defense.

"It is," he said, "the preservation of a way of life. We must meet the world challenge and at the same time permit no stagnation in America.

"Unless we progress, we retrogress."

The address, however, carried no details of how he planned to improve the domestic economy and the social welfare of the country. Some details may be disclosed in the annual budget message on Jan. 19 but the President clearly indicated complete plans would be given to Congress by many special messages. The indications were that he would ask for or appoint commissions to study general and specific problems which would report their findings too late for action by this session of Congress.

By waiting for these reports, the President could delay, or even avoid, recommendations for additional spending by this Congress.

Progress, he said, requires long-term guides, certainly for five years, possibly for ten years, that reflect the knowledge that before five years we will have a population of more than 190,000,000.

His most general commission, composed of representatives of education, labor, management, finance, the professions and every other kind of useful activity, would be concerned with living standards, health, education and whether particular the improvement should be the responsibility of local, state and federal governments.

He compared this commission with committee appointed by President Hoover in 1931 to report on "recent social trends." This report had little effect on subsequent legislation.

On a favorite theme, Mr. Eisenhower said "our nation's progress and fiscal integrity are independent and inseparable."

Prices in recent months, he said, had shown "a welcome stability," and that "if we are wise and resolute we will not tolerate inflation in the years to come."

His View of Inflation.

He continued: "Inflation is not a Robin Hood, taking from the rich to give to the poor. Rather, it deals most cruelly with those who can least protect themselves. It strikes hardest those millions of our citizens whose incomes do not quickly rise with the cost of living. When prices soar, the pensioner and the widow see their security undermined, the man of thrift sees his savings melt away; the white collar worker, the minister, and the teacher see their standards of living dragged down.

"Inflation can be prevented. But this demands statesmanship on the part of business and labor leaders and of government at all levels.

"We must encourage the self-discipline, the restraint necessary to curb the wage-price spiral and we must meet current costs from current revenue.

"To minimize the danger of future soaring prices and to keep our economy sound and expanding, I shall present to the Congress certain proposals."

Old Proposals Renewed.

None of these proposals was new and all have been the issues of partisan and congressional controversy. They were:

1. A balanced budget, with the vague promise of "tax reforms" to be drafted by the treasury secretary "as soon as our fiscal condition permits." White House press secretary James C. Hagerty told reporters this morning this did not contemplate recommendations to this session.

2. Authority for the President to veto specific items in appropriations and authorization bills. All Presidents have wanted this power, which Congress has refused to grant.

3. Legislation to reduce federal operations where private enterprise can do the job and greater flexibility in extending federal credit.

4. Changes in the farm subsidies program "to make more effective use of the large federal expenditures for agriculture and to achieve greater fiscal control in this area." Significantly, he did not ask for less federal spending here. He did point out, however, that farm price support program "won very few farm products" will exceed five billion dollars this year and account for two-fifths of the net income of all farmers in the United States. Farm surpluses by the end of this year will be valued at about nine billion dollars and government expenditures for storage, interest and handling of these surpluses will reach the rate of a billion dollars annually.

Mr. Eisenhower said this situation called for "prompt and forthright action." He will send a special message to Congress on this subject shortly.

5. Recommendations that the employment act of 1946 be amended to "protect the buying power of the dollar." Senator Prescott Bush (Rep.), Connecticut, sponsored an amendment in the last Congress to make the law as applicable to a "sound dollar" as to reasonably full employment.

These proposals related to government spending and its effect on the purchasing power of the dollar. In the general legislative field, his proposals on public school integration and labor-management relations will be even more controversial.

Remarks on Labor Curbs.

He came closest to partisan criticism when he recalled that Congress had failed to act on his comprehensive labor recommendations of last January. Implying that the Kennedy-Ives bill, which was passed by the Senate, was inadequate, he said half-hearted measures will not do." He added he would recommend prompt enactment of the legislation that would safeguard union funds from misuse, provide for free and secret election of union officers, advance true and responsible collective bargaining and protect the public and innocent third parties "from unfair and coercive practices such as boycotting and blackmail picketing." There were his main recommendations last year.

Reporting that "the image of America abroad is ont improved" when school children, through no fault of their own, are deprived of an education, he told Congress that "whenever the supremacy of the Constitution is challenged I shall continue to take every action necessary to uphold it."

Without disclosing the exact nature of his plan, he said he would submit proposals to make clear that the Government is united in giving common support to the law and the decisions of the courts.

In the international defense, political and economic portions of the address, Mr. Eisenhower briefly outlined proposals already announced, such as increasing the capital funds of the World Bank and the International Monetary Fund, creation of an inter-American financial institution to promote and finance developments in Latin America and tax revision to encourage private enterprise in economic developments abroad.

During the six years of his Administration, he said, Free World security arrangements had been bolstered and the bonds of freedom had been closely knit. As a result, he said, our friends in Western Europe have a new internal vitality and are more able to resist external threats.

Berlin Situation.

As for the Russian's threat to turn over its administration of West Berlin to the Communist government of East Berlin, he said:

"Acting with other free nations we have undertaken the solemn obligation to defend the people of free Berlin against any effort to destroy their freedom. In the meantime, we shall continue to seek meaningful agreements to settle this and other problems, knowing full well that not only the integrity of a single city but the hope of all free people is at stake."

During the remaining two years of his term, Mr. Eisenhower, again not disclosing details, announced he would seek ways to supplement the procedures of the United Nations and similar bodies to have the rule of law replace the rule of force in international affairs. This would include, he said, re-examination of our own relations with the International Court of Justice.

In conclusion, he reverted to the Communist threat, saying the Marxist objective is dictatorship, while we seek victory —not over any nation or people—but over the ancient enemies of us all—victory over ignorance, poverty, disease and human degradation wherever they may be found.

"We march," he said, "in the noblest of causes—human freedom."

2 CONFECTIONERIES ROBBED OF CASH AND MONEY ORDERS

A confectionery at 1963 Arsenal street was robbed of $236 and a quantity of blank money orders last night by an armed man, Frank Messmer, the proprietor, reported to police. The robber, who flourished an automatic pistol, left after ordering Messmer to lie on the floor.

About an hour later, George Bacott, operator of a confectionery at 2524 North Vandeventer avenue, reported he and his wife, Cecelia, were robbed of $251 by two armed men. The robbers fled on foot.

ACTION ORDERED ON ILLEGAL U.S. OIL, GAS LEASES

© New York Times News Service

WASHINGTON, Jan. 9 — Fred A. Seaton, Secretary of the Interior, disclosed yesterday he had ordered vigorous action against illegal acquisitions of federal oil and gas land leases.

"This is not a minor matter," he told a press conference. "There is evidence of a considerable number of acres involved."

George Abbott, interior solicitor, said the violations also involved "a considerable number of individuals and (corporate) entities."

Seaton declined to say how many acres or identify those involved in violation of acreage limitations of the Mineral Leasing Act for public lands. The acres acquired "illegally," he said, were obtained through dummy applicants, employes, friends and sometimes relatives of the individuals involved.

The first action may be taken within a week or 10 days and some major companies were involved, it was understood.

The Legal Limit.

Under the mineral leasing law no person or company may hold more than 46,080 acres in federal oil and gas leases in any one state or more than 100,000 acres in the new state of Alaska.

The Secretary said that he had directed the Bureau of Land Management to "proceed promptly" by administrative action against violators. Such action, he said, could include cancellation of leases.

Asked whether he would seek to recover an yprofits made by persons or companies found to have violated the law, he replied, "I couldn't answer that at present."

As of last June 30, there were 99,640,980 acres covered by 125,414 federal oil and gas leases. The majority of these are in western states. Seaton also declined to name the states where violations had been found.

Legislation Planned.

In connection with the violations,, Seaton announced changes in regulations under thhe acreage limitations of the Mineral Leasing Act. The changes were aimed at lease violations and the subdividing of lease lands as public investment promotions. In addition, the department is understood to be preparing legislation to present to Congress to prohibit lease-holders from subdividing their leased lands.

The new regulations include a provision that the Bureau of Land Management may require anyone applying for a lease to file a statement showing his complete federal land-lease holdings. This statement would include any lease that a leaseholder may not himself own but in which he may have a partial or indirect interest.

The department reserves the authority to take any necessary action regarding excess acreage holdings "even though every possible combination of circumstances leading to excess acreage may not have been specifically covered in the language of the regulations."

Contract With Richfield.

Seaton announced approval of a contract with the Richfield Oil Corp. for oil and gas development of about 490,000 acres in the Katalla-Yakataga area of southeast Alaska.

He said the contract covered about half of the area originally proposed for development by Richfield, which developed the first oil well in Alaska.

The development contract was granted under an exception to the acreage limitations of the Mineral Leasing Act. This exception stipulates conditions for the exploratory work, including specific amounts of money to be spent on various operations for the life of leases involved, but in no event beyond Dec. 31, 1963.

$15,000 VERDICT AGAINST U.S. FOR AIRPORT DEATH

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Jan. 9 (AP)—A United States district judge yesterday handed down a $15,000 judgment against the Government in connection with the death in a plane crash of cartoonist Helen Hokinson.

Miss Hokinson was killed Nov. 1, 1949, when an Eastern Air Lines plane collided with a Bolivian fighter plane over National Airport at Washington, D.C. Fifty-four others perished in the collision.

A month ago a jury awarded Miss Hokinson's estate $37,820 in damages against the airline. The executors sued the Government on the ground that the Civil Aeronautics Administration, which controlled airport traffic at the time, shared liability for the crash with Eastern Air Lines.

Miss Hokinson's cartoons often portrayed the society and club woman.

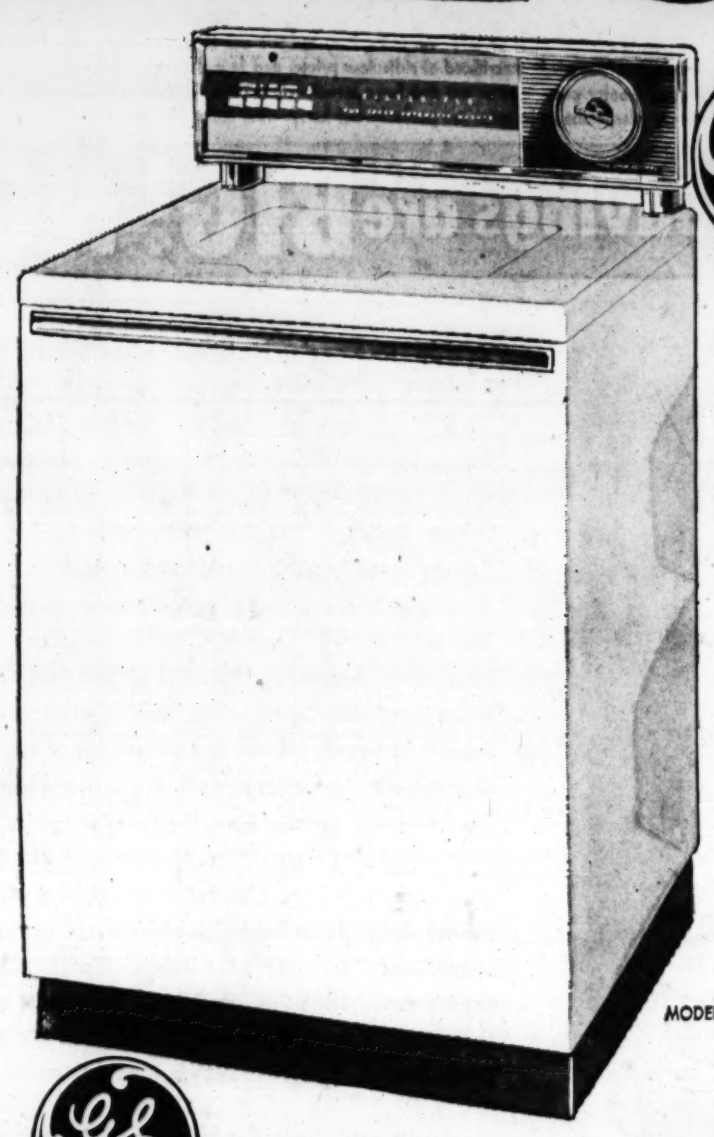

EDINBURGH CATHEDRAL HAS NO ROOM FOR BURNS PLAQUE

EDINBURGH, Jan. 9 (UPI) —St. Giles Cathedral authorities have refused to put up a plaque commemorating Robert Burns on the ground that there is no room in its "Poets Corner," the local Burns Society said today.

Admirers had hoped to install the plaque to mark Burns bi-centenary this month. He is similarly honored in London's Westminster Abbey.

A spokesman for the group said the official reason wasn't good enough. It's really because the authorities think that Burns "was a sinful man and is not out of the top drawer," he said.

POLICE QUARTET BACK ON BEAT AFTER CRIME RISE

The St. Louis police quartet has been disbanded because its members are needed full-time in the fight against crime, it was announced yesterday.

Chief of Police Jeremiah O'Connell said he recently ended a practice of giving the singers compensating time off when they made public appearances on their own time. The men decided to sing no more as a group.

The quartet, recently composed of Patrolmen Fred Johanningmeier, Ferd Petersen, Michael Burke and Melvin Horstmeier, with Patrolman Frank Vernaci as piano accompanist, has been in existence 28 years. They have appeared at about 100 community events each year and have been a feature of the annual police circus.

DEBRE MAKES FEW CHANGES IN FRENCH CABINET

PARIS, Jan. 9 (AP)—Some familiar faces appeared in different cabinet spots today, but the French government was still heading down the track surveyed by Charles de Gaulle.

Installed yesterday as the first president of the Fifth Republic, De Gaulle may open his seven-year term with some measures of amnesty, especially for prisoners in Algeria.

Michel Debre dropped into De Gaulle's former job of Premier, but the post wasn't the same. While De Gaulle held the job with strong emergency powers for seven months, Debre as minister of justice wrote the Fifth Republic's constitution to give more power to the president and reduce the prerogatives of the premier and the National Assembly.

One power now removed from the Assembly enabled Debre's cabinet to go right to work. The Assembly no longer has to approve the cabinet first and can remove it only by a membership majority which at the same time must agree on a new cabinet. Fourth Republic cabinets, which lasted an average of six months, usually were brought down by a minority of assemblymen was themselves could never provide a substitute acceptable to the majority of the members.

Strong Majority.

A strong majority in the new Parliament supports De Gaulle at present. In taking office yesterday, however, the World War II leader warned that he felt it his duty "to give France, to impose if need be, what the public good demands."

Debre appointed a 21-member cabinet that included 17 ministers from De Gaulle's government.

The most notable departures were three Socialists who went into official opposition and former Premier Pierre Pflimlin, who asked to be relieved. Pflimlin was replaced by Robert Lecourt, another member of the Catholic Popular Republican Movement, as a minister of state.

Emile Pelletier, a professional civil servant, quit as interior minister and was replaced by Jean Berthoin. Edouard Ramonet, minister for industry and commerce who failed to win re-election to Parliament, also retired and was succeeded by a nonpolitical technician, Pierre Jeanneney.

The rest of De Gaulle's ministers stayed, although some shifted offices. Chief of these was Jacques Soustelle, controversial political brains of the colonialist revolt in Algeria last May which brought De Gaulle back to power.

New Post for Soustelle.

Soustelle, whom De Gaulle made minister of information after long hesitation, got the new post of minister-delegate to the Premier's office.

He will have responsibility for France's four small overseas departments of Reunion, Martinique, Guadeloupe and Guiana; overseas territories, which include five small areas or islands; the Sahara; and atomic development.

The Premier is responsible for Algeria, legally not an overseas territory but part of metropolitan France. Algeria is now being run by civilian economist Paul Delouvrier, who had powers delegated to him by De Gaulle but who has no cabinet rank.

On the face of it, Soustelle has been given a relatively minor post, considering his part in the Algerian revolt and the fact that he heads the Union for the New Republic (U.N.R.) party which commands a majority in the National Assembly. Undoubtedly he will exert considerable political authority behind the scenes and in the Assembly, but his sails clearly seem to have been trimmed.

Woman in Cabinet.

One of six secretaries of state with junior cabinet rank is a woman, a rare thing in French cabinets. She is Miss Nefissa Sid Cara, a pro-French Algerian Moslem and a member of the National Assembly.

Debre, a Senate spokesman for De Gaulle's position in the General's 1953-58 self-exile from politics, will direct government operations and pilot the President's program through Parliament. De Gaulle will still call the turn, though, sitting high above day-to-day political pushing and pulling and devoting himself to planning broad policies.

De Gaulle has already started remaking the governmental machinery. He established separate staffs to handle the affairs of France and of the semi-independent states, mostly in Africa, that make up the French Community.

A Senate for the Community still must be established and arrangements made for functioning of the Community's executive council. The council will be composed of heads of member state governments with De Gaulle presiding.

Two more elections must be held in the spring to complete the changeover from the Fourth to the Fifth Republic. They are for the French Senate and for municipal councils.

PREMIER OF IRAQ HONORS GROTEWOHL AT RECEPTION

BAGHDAD, Jan. 9 (UPI) — Communist East Germany's Premier Grotewohl was guest of honor last night at a reception given by Iraqi Premier Kassem. Earlier Grotewohl discussed economic relations and technical co-operation with Kassem and other officials.

A Baghdad radio statement on the meetings conformed with the official Iraqi stand that Iraq did not intend to establish diplomatic relations with East Germany.

On Relief 20 Years, Man Plays Stock Market, Amasses $21,000

NEW YORK, Jan. 9 (AP)—Harry Schweitzer, 75 years old, accepted relief checks for the last 20 years while amassing $21,000 playing the stock market.

Since 1938 Schweitzer, a shabbily dressed bachelor, has been receiving $71.10 monthly welfare checks. He has collected about $17,000 over the years.

In addition, the retired hospital orderly received welfare allowances for clothing, furniture, rent and medical care.

With most of the $71.10 to play with, the frugal-living Schweitzer invested in Wall Street. He became known as a man who would lay down as much as $4000 in cash on a broker's desk in a single transaction.

Through an anonymous letter, investigators caught up with Schweitzer last November.

District Attorney Frank S. Hogan said Schweitzer, when confronted by the investigators, turned over his $1525 bank account to the welfare agency and gave the department power of attorney to sell his $21,000 in securities to make repayment.

Immediately after doing this, Schweitzer said he was destitute and went right back on relief.

Schweitzer appeared in court yesterday with nine other welfare clients, all women. All 10 were charged with illegally receiving relief checks.

Schweitzer also was charged with grand and petty larceny.

Hogan said the man's savings and investments were illegal because persons receiving welfare aid must take an oath periodically that they have no assets.

Hogan also said the elderly man probably will be given any balance left after the sale of his securities, adding: "He seems to have a fine sense of economy, which the Government could use."

SAFETY NEEDS OUTLINED FOR ST. ANN SCHOOL

Fire safety requirements for St. Ann School, 3721 St. Bridget lane, St. Ann, have been submitted to the R-3 (Pattonville) school district, Fire Chief John H. Gertken of the Community Fire Protection District said today.

Major requirements is for heightening of fire walls to form two-foot parapets above the roof between the main part of the building and additions at the north and south ends.

Monroe A. Holman, district school superintendent, said the district architect had been instructed to draft plans embodying Gertken's proposals for submission to the school board. He added that the board to date has taken no position on whether it would comply.

Last month the school board was called on by the fire district to submit plans for improvements to the structure, following an opinion by the St. Louis Court of Appeals holding that the board was "subject to the authority" of the fire district to establish regulations governing fire safety conditions.

The finding, which may have far-reaching consequences in respect to relations between fire protection and school districts, upset a ruling by Circuit Judge Raymond E. LaDriere of St. Louis county that the fire district could not halt construction of the St. Ann additions on fire safety grounds.

Other safety requirements called for by Gertken in the report to the district included:

Installation of klaxon-type fire alarm system and of panic hardware on basement and first-floor exit doors.

Relocation of one exit light and installation of two additional exit lights.

Additions to the school have been in use since September 1957. The school, with an enrollment of 671 pupils, is of one-story brick, "semi-fireproof" construction.

IN GAMBLING SPOT ON POLICE BUSINESS, 2 OFFICERS SAY

Detectives Robert Richters and Bernard Mack were interviewed yesterday by Police Inspector James F. Thompson in his investigation of the presence of police officers at or near an alleged gambling establishment at 6234 Delmar boulevard. The place was raided last Sunday and 45 persons were arrested.

Richters and Mack told the Inspector they were at the place, known as the Delmar Confectionery, on police business. They are members of the gambling squad and had been ordered to check the store for possible gambling by their commanding officer, Lt. John Bloecher.

Lts. William Greenspan and F. Lyman Davis, whose photographs were taken as they entered and left the suspected establishment, have been suspended from duty. There have been no other suspensions. Thompson has said that many of the officers, whose photographs were taken at or near the shop, had legitimate reasons for being there. The inspector will make recommendations to the Board of Police Commissioners next week concerning his inquiry.

4178 DROP IN CONTINUED JOBLESS AID CLAIMS

Continued claims for the week totaled 14,373 against 18,551 for the same week last year, DeLargy said. In 1957, for a corresponding week, continued claims totaled 14,088.

Initial claims for benefits totaled 5035 for the week compared with 4934 for the same week last year.

way to the Tri-Cities airfield. None aboard was from the St. Louis area. The 10 included seven passengers, the pilot, co-pilot and stewardess.

The twin-engine DC-3 was within minutes of a landing at the Tri-Cities airport when Pilot Robert Gollmier radioed that he was making a turn preparatory to landing on instruments. Then his radio went out.

The plane was five to eight miles east of the Tri-Cities airport when it swung into a wide turn. It was not heard from again.

The crew consisted of Gollmier, a veteran Southeast pilot, co-pilot Robert Irwin, and stewardess Wanda Nalley.

METROPOLITAN OPERA HAS $268 DEFICIT; 10-YEAR LOW

NEW YORK, Jan. 9 (AP) — The Metropolitan Opera yesterday announced a net deficit, after contributions, of $268, the lowest in more than 10 years.

Actual operating losses for the fiscal year ending last June totaled $553,383, but contributions whittled that to $268. The $268 compares with a net deficit of $95,377 for the year before and $385,882 the year before that.

SEEKS PEACE BOND FOR UNION OFFICER

A request has been filed that Willard Herzing, president of Granite City Boilermakers Local 575, be placed under peace bond, the Post-Dispatch learned today. Herzing has been charged with being "iron-fisted" in his administration of the local, the members of which are employed at the A. O. Smith Corp. plant, Granite City.

William S. Fries, a welder at the Smith plant, filed the request with Edwardsville Police Magistrate Earl Vaugniaux, after conferring earlier with Madison County States Attorney Dick Mudge, it was learned.

Vuagniaux issued a warrant against Herzing returnable in his court Jan. 17. Under terms of the little-used section of the Illinois Criminal Code, Vuagniaux will be required to place Herzing under a peace bond for an indeterminate amount up to one year if he believes Herzing may commit an offense against Fries "or the people of Illinois."

Fries and Herzing already have filed assault charges against each other as a result of a fight Dec. 30 in Granite City. Granite City Police Magistrate Andrew Gasparovic has set next Friday for hearings for both.

Fries alleged he was attacked by Herzing when Fries was on his way to attend a meeting of a rival union, United Mine Workers District 50, which is making attempts to survey the 1500-member Boilermakers local to see if the men would rather have the UMW at its bargaining agent.

The UMW move followed firings of at least nine men by the company. The nine alleged they were fired at Herzing's insistence because they violated union rules. They have filed complaints with the National Labor Relations Board. A hearing in the cases is scheduled to resume Tuesday.

It was learned that Herzing has called a union meeting for 10 a.m. Sunday, apparently for ratification of a new three-year working agreement with the company.

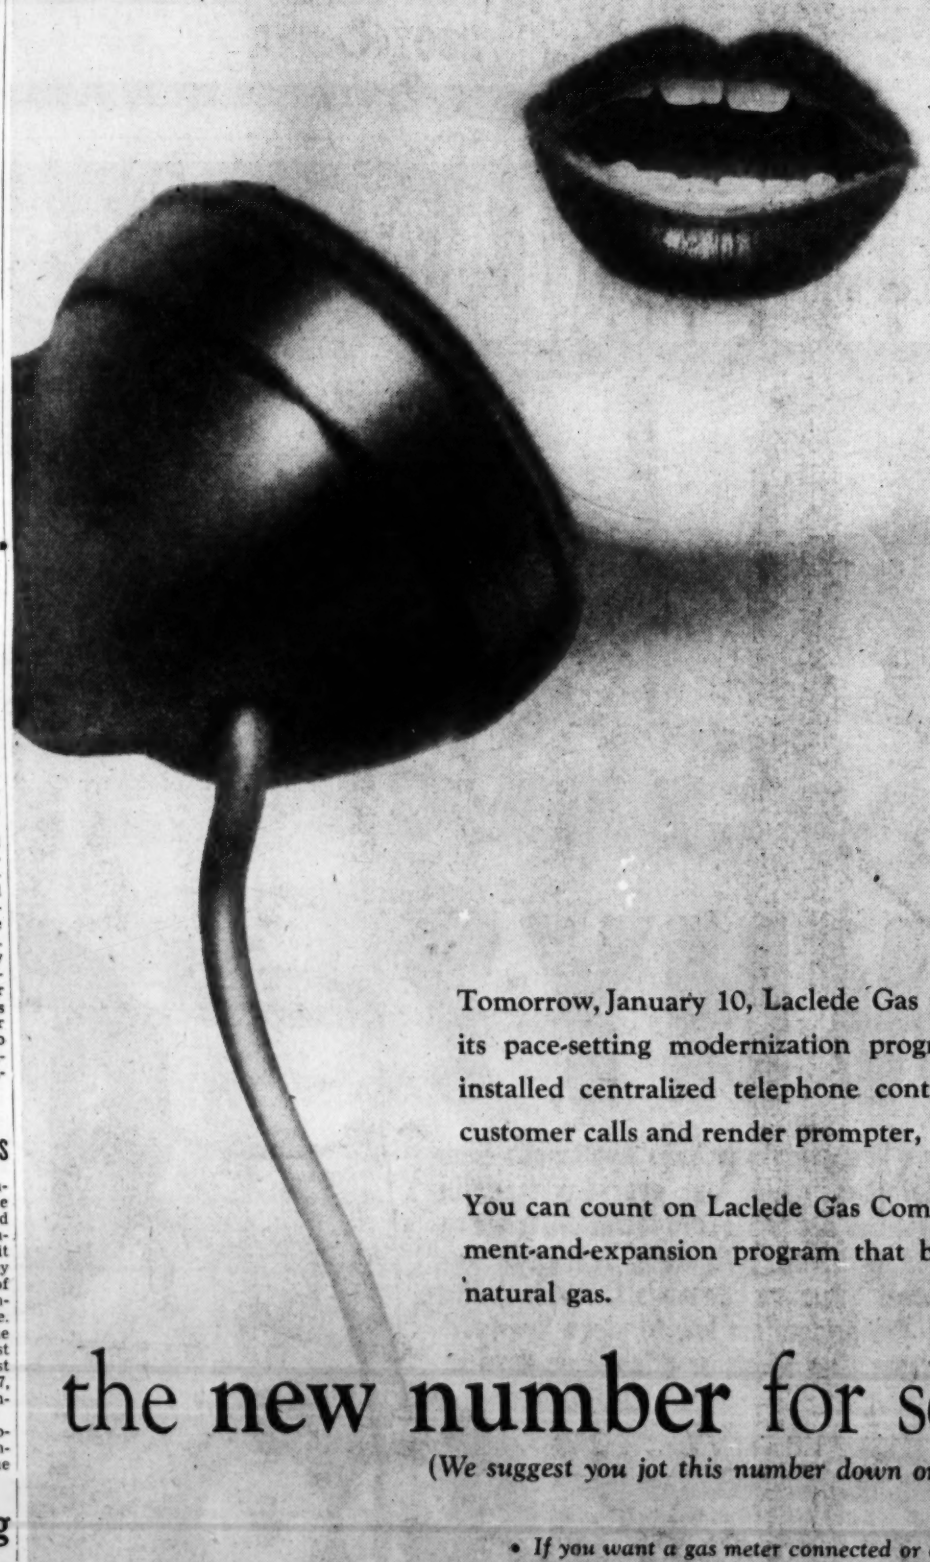

Under the contract maintenance department workers would get a reported 20 cents an hour wage increase the first year, while regular production employes would receive 16 cents an hour. The wage hikes the second and third years of the agreement would be about 6 cents an hour for both classifications. Before becoming president, Herzing was a maintenance department employe.

Washington! The name brings vivid and varied images. It suggests George Washington — the man, surveyor, frontiersman, plantation owner, Commander-in-Chief of the Continental Army, first President of the United States. It is a name associated with the history of many states—his birthplace and home in Virginia; his Revolutionary War exploits in Massachusetts, New York, New Jersey and Pennsylvania, with final surrender of the British at Yorktown. The national capital, one state, many colleges and universities, and numerous counties and towns bear his name.

Two years ago the Post-Dispatch presented its first Tangle Towns game. And what a game it turned out to be! Enthusiasm ran rampant. Now, TANGLE TOWNS is back—more exciting, more profitable. Its theme is the great, wide United States, with the 66 puzzle names selected from cities and towns throughout the country. With U. S. Tangle Towns, you'll enjoy an easy-chair tour of interesting and far-away places on the map of the U. S. You'll recall historic episodes in the founding of cities and towns; remember the geography you may have thought you had forgotten; discover the drama and fun of using your general knowledge in playing this great newspaper game.

U.S.

TANGLE TOWNS

Now...More Exciting than Ever! Here's a Game with the Whole, Wide United States for Your Playing Field!

Yes, Tangle Towns is back—to offer more happy excitement, more genuine fun, and great cash prizes to set you dreaming of many things — a home of your own, education for your children, money in the bank! But Tangle Towns is no dream! You can win exactly what the prize list says you can. And, in order to win any one of the 1084 cash prizes listed below, there's nothing to buy and nothing to sell. Skill and accuracy alone count—"luck" is not involved. The 66 puzzles will appear one each day, Sundays through Fridays, starting on Sunday, January 11. The Official Rules will also appear on Sunday. And, remember, only residents of three states are eligible to play—and that means that every cent of the more than $30,000 in prize money will be won by players right here close to home.

SAMPLE PUZZLE

What Place Is This?

CLUE: Situated in a fertile fruit-growing valley, this place is known as the raisin center of the world. Three national parks lie within a 75-mile radius of the city.

ANSWER . . .

FRESNO

HOW TO PLAY

In the Sample Puzzle, as in each of the 66 Official Puzzles, there are exactly enough letters contained within the square to spell correctly the name of a certain place in the United States. The object of the game is to untangle the letters and, using the clue as a guide, determine and spell out the name. IT IS NOT NECESSARY TO WRITE THE NAME OF THE STATE. The correct name of the city or town is all that is required.

WHO MAY PLAY

U. S. Tangle Towns is open to bona fide residents of 30 days or more prior to January 11, 1959, of Missouri, Arkansas or Illinois (excluding Cook County). For the very few exceptions, read the Official Rules which will appear Sunday.

PACKS CIRCUS TROUPE DODGED CUBAN SHOTS

Sporadic fighting in Havana, Cuba, between Fidel Castro's triumphant rebel forces and Dictator Fulgencio Batista's troops forced closing of the Tom Packs Circus on New Year's day, four days before the scheduled closing date, Claude W. Hoeber Jr., of Webster Groves, said today.

The circus had played 13 days to capacity crowds in Havana's coliseum and the New Year's eve performance was a sell-out, said Hoeber, a St. Louis University graduate, who is general manager of the circus.

But on New Year's day mobs of Havana residents stormed the Plaza Hotel, where about 75 circus staff members were staying. They tore up the gambling casino and wrecked the restaurant. Hoeber was in the hotel lobby when the surging crowd stormed the hotel.

"I warned the other circus people to bolt their doors and stay put," he said. "The mob started a fire in the street with the tables and chairs they took from the hotel."

Some of Castro's underground restored order later in the day, but still there was no food or pure water, Hoeber said. "A general strike was called and no one worked—no cooks, no waiters, no nothing," he added.

The next day, Jan. 2, rebel forces took up gun positions in the hotel and fired on Batista's men in a building across the street. Bullets whined through windows and ricocheted off the buildings. None of the circus people was hurt, but 16 of Batista's men were killed or wounded, Hoeber said.

Meanwhile, the rebels seized the coliseum, because it is at the southern entrance to the city, he said. They found a dead horse to feed to the lions and tigers, and they treated the circus people courteously.

Finally on Jan. 4, the circus personnel managed to charter a plane and fly to Florida. Hoeber said he heard from Tom Packs last night that all animals and equipment had also arrived safely.

"We were scheduled to continue our tour of the Caribbean by going next to the Dominican Republic, where Batista is," Hoeber said. "But now I'm not so sure where we'll go next."

FAST TAX WRITE-OFFS GIVEN TO TWO DEFENSE FACILITIES

WASHINGTON, Jan. 9 (AP) — The Government today issued two multimillion-dollar certificates permitting rapid tax write-offs of defense facilities.

The Office of Civil and Defense Mobilization permitted Republic Aviation Corp., Farmingdale, N.Y., to write off 65 per cent of a $5,570,709 project in five years. The normal write-off is 20 or more years. Republic will build research, development and production facilities for aircraft and missiles.

Union Carbide and Carbon Corp., Parma, O., was given a certificate for a $3,472,566 project relating to research and developments of missile parts. Half of the cost can be written off the taxes in five years.

PAROLE OFFICE ASKS FOR STAFF INCREASE

A request for employment of three more persons in the probation and parole office of the circuit court for criminal causes and a salary increase for the entire staff was made today to the circuit judges' general term meeting.

Charles Mann, deputy chief probation and parole officer, wrote the judges that the increased volume of work has created a need for more personnel. He said the average number of investigations and reports per month for each of the seven parole officers was 11 in 1958 and that each officer carried a case load of 92.4 in that year.

Mann noted that the National Probation and Parole Association recommends a maximum supervisory case load of only 75, or 12 pre-sentence investigations a month. The two officers sought would cut the case load to 73 and the investigations per officer to nine, Mann said. He also asked for an additional clerk-stenographer.

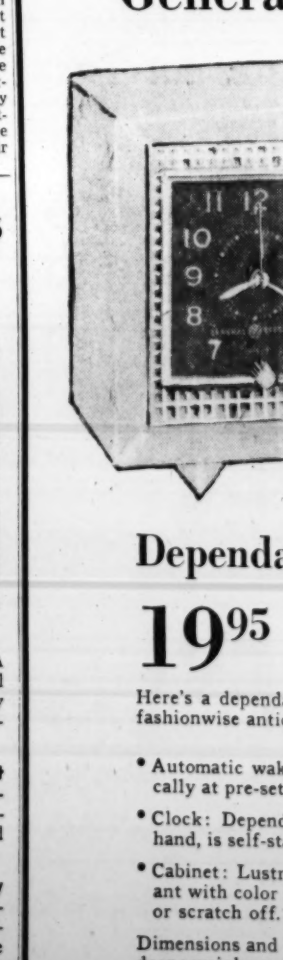

An across-the-board salary increase was asked for the entire staff to meet the higher cost of living and provide an incentive for responsible and productive work. Mann also asked for specific increases for certain staff members in recognition of their outstanding work.

He would increase the salary of senior probation and parole officer Cliff P. Haley from $5750 to $6000 a year and Chief Clerk Helen Masters from $380 to $400 a month. Two clerk-stenographers, Rita Galvin and Donna Holmes, would be raised from $280 to $300 a month.

The request was referred to the circuit court committee on probation and parole.

Killed in Tank Truck Blast.

RAGLEY, La., Jan. 9 (UPI)—A tank truck carrying 5000 gallons of gasoline exploded near here yesterday, killing relief driver Harold B. Stringer. The driver, Joyce Henry, was seriously burned. Cause of the explosion was not immediately determined.

DRIVER HELD AS SUSPECT WHOSE CAR HIT BLIND MAN

Charles Foote, 3100 block of Clark street, was booked today suspected of careless driving and feloniously leaving the scene of an accident in which his automobile struck Curtis Parker, who is blind.

Police said Foote, 30 years old, admitted that his machine struck Parker, 4517 Cote Brilliante avenue, at Taylor and Enright avenue Wednesday night. Foote was arrested at a parking lot where he is employed as an attendant by special officers Leo Schonhoff and Vernell Fuller of the Deer Street Station, who obtained information concerning his license number.

Foote said he realized he had struck Parker, but denied seeing a cane. He said he put the man in his car and started for a hospital but became frightened. He gave Parker a fictitious name and address and left him in front of him home. Parker suffered a broken leg in the accident.

REGISTERS AS LOBBYIST

Gus W. Hoelscher of Granite City, manager of the East Side Manufacturers Association, has registered as a lobbyist under provisions of a law enacted by the 1957 Illinois Legislature, it was announced today.

Hoelscher represents major industries in Granite City, Madison and Venice. Eighteen other lobbyists have registered with Secretary of State Charles F. Carpenter at Springfield.

GUN-RUNNERS FOR CASTRO GET SUSPENDED SENTENCES

SAN ANTONIO, Tex., Jan. 9 (AP)—Two confessed gunrunners who said they were trying to help Fidel Castro's Cuban rebels received suspended sentences in United States District Court here yesterday.

They are Jerry O'Brien Watkins and Robert M. Gibson, both of San Antonio. Watkins was arrested by federal officers in Laredo on Dec. 2, 1957, when 50 submachine guns were seized. The same day, Gibson and two others were arrested here.

The Government alleged a deal had been made for the men to sell Castro 300 machine guns for $52,000. James F. Keenan of Harrison, Ark. and James G. Sample of El Dorado, Ark., entered guilt, pleas last May and were given suspended sentences.

AUTO HITS TRUCK BLOCKING ROAD; MAN, SON KILLED

Gene Francis Slater, Wentzville, and his 16-year-old son, Eugene Franklin Slater, were killed early today when an automobile in which they were riding struck a tractor-trailer which was blocking the westbound lanes of U.S. Bypass 40 about four and one half miles east of Wentzville.

Slater, 46 years old, was a real estate salesman.

Driver of the tractor-trailer was Asa Bowen, 41, Edina, Mo., Highway Patrolmen reported. They said he had been inadvertently driving east in the westbound lanes when another truck driver stopped him and informed him he was in the wrong lanes.

Bowen was turning the tractor-trailer around and the trailer was across the highway when Slater's car struck it, highway patrolmen said. They added that the Slaters apparently were killed instantly when the roof of the automobile was sheared off. The younger Slater was driving.

Two wreckers were required to pull the car from under the trailer. Bowen told highway patrolmen that he was not used to the route and had missed a turn. He was hauling a load of pigs, a few of which were killed.

Another truck driver told highway patrolmen that the Slater car had passed him shortly before the accident and was traveling 50 to 55 miles an hour.

Bowen was taken to St. Charles and booked suspected of careless and imprudent driving.

The younger Slater had been working in Wentzville during the week and spending the weekend with his mother at 225 Marguerite avenue, Ferguson. Mrs. Slater and her husband had separated.

BYRON PRICE HEADS WORLD PRESS GROUP

NEW YORK, Jan. 9 (AP)—Byron Price, former assistant secretary general of the United Nations, yesterday was named director general of the Press Congress of the World, to be held March 2-4 in Columbia, Mo.

James Kerney Jr., former editor of the Trenton (N.J.) Times, will be secretary general.

The Congress will be a high point in the fiftieth anniversary observance of the University of Missouri's School of Journalism. Earl F. English, dean of the school, announced the appointments.

About 125 delegates from more than 25 countries are expected to attend. Kerney said the agenda would include the responsibility of the press, access to the sources of news and the flow of news among countries.

It will be the fourth such congress. The first was held in 1917, under the late Walter Williams, founder and first dean of Missouri's Journalism School.

The delegates will arrive in the United States late next month. Each will be the personal guest of an American publisher or broadcaster, and spend a week in the host's city before the congress.

After the congress, delegates will go to Chicago as guests of Chicago publishers and the Chicago Press Club.

Later they will take a two-week tour of the United States as guests of the State Department.

Price began a news career in 1909, and was with the Associated Press for 29 years. He was executive news editor of the A.P. from 1937 to 1941. He served as wartime director of censorship from 1941 to 1945, when he went on a special mission to Germany.

He was assistant secretary general for administrative financial services of the United Nations from 1947 to 1954. Now retired, he still acts as a consultant to the Federal Government on security matters. He lives in Chestertown, Md.

SENATE GIVEN BILLS TO COMBAT HATE BOMBERS

WASHINGTON, Jan. 9 (UPI) —Stiff new laws to bring the full power of the FBI against "hate bombers" were proposed in Congress today. The legislation was patterned after the Lindbergh kidnaping act.

Key Senate sponsors of the seven-bill package were Republicans Jacob K. Javits and Kenneth B. Keating, both of New York. Representative John V. Lindsay (Rep.), New York, planned to introduce the same measures in the House.

Javits and Keating said the proposals were designed to halt the activities "of fanatics and racists trying to establish a reign of terror" against churches, synagogues and integrated schools.

The bills also would bring federal action against "hate mail" when it has the effect of inciting violence.

By the Associated Press.

Hopes of Senate and House Democratic leaders for swift approval of a multi-billion dollar housing bill were reported today facing possible difficulties—from Democrats.

The measure already apparently is far broader and more costly than the Eisenhower Administration desires. But a bloc of Democratic Senators reportedly was moving to make it much bigger.

Senator John Sparkman (Dem.), Alabama, chairman of the Senate Housing subcommittee, prepared the bulky bill for introduction during the day. It carries money items totaling nearly three billion dollars, huge mortgage insurance authorizations and a public housing program for which no dollar total was spelled out.

A bill described by its Republican backers as reflecting President Eisenhower's housing plans and the estimated needs of the Federal Housing Agency already has been introduced in the House. It calls for $100,000,000 of new money for the slum clearance and urban renewal program, $200,000,000 for college housing programs, and an immediate six-billion-dollar emergency increase in the Government's authority to insure FHA-approved mortgages.

Would Bar Airline Strikes.

Senator Spessard Holland (Dem.), Florida, proposed today legislation that would prohibit most airline strikes.

The bill would require arbitration of disputes if the President judges that a lockout, strike or work stoppage would substantially interrupt commerce and deprive the public of air transportation.

Under Holland's measure, whenever work stoppage appears imminent, the President would be authorized to set up a three-member board of arbitration, empowered to conduct hearings and reach a decision binding upon both parties.

Legislation intended to modify the effect of Supreme Court decisions was introduced in the House today.

The author, Representative Francis Walter (Dem.), Pennsylvania, chairman of the House Committee on un-American Activities and member of the Judiciary Committee, said the bills were aimed at what he termed legislative actions of the court.

The precedents which would be changed by the legislation include those set by Supreme Court decisions invalidating a confession because of delay in arraigning the defendant; holding that the federal anti-subversive act superseded similar state acts; limiting federal security regulations to sensitive government jobs; and narrowing the definition of subversive as applied to Communist organizing.

MISSOURI BAR TO SUPPORT PAY INCREASE FOR JUDGES

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, Jan. 9—Support of the Missouri Bar for Gov. James T. Blair's proposal that salaries of the state's trial and appellate court judges be increased was promised yesterday by Clarence O. Woolsey of Springfield, president of the bar.

"If we are to maintain the high standards which we have set for our judges, we must be able to retain the most highly qualified men to serve on our courts," Woolsey said. He named a committee of 17, headed by former State Senator Francis Smith of St. Joseph and former Cole county Representative Henry Andrae, to work for the proposal.

Gov. Blair recommended "a reasonable increase" for the judges of the Supreme Court, Courts of Appeals, Circuit Courts and the Cape Girardeau Court of Common Pleas.

GETS 30 YEARS IN THEFT, ATTACK OF PENSIONER, 101

Billie Harris, laborer, of 3152 Brantner place, was sentenced to 30 years in the penitentiary yesterday for the $50 robbery of a 101-year-old man.

The victim, John Oaks of 918 (rear) Elliot street, testifying in the court of Circuit Judge Theodore McMillan, said Harris knocked him down as he walked in the 800 block of North Jefferson avenue last Oct. 4. Oaks said the money Harris took was the proceeds of his old-age pension check.

Two detectives testified they saw the robbery, chased and captured Harris in the 2300 block of Delmar boulevard. Harris, 34, denied any guilt and said he knew nothing of the incident. He was found guilty by a jury which also fixed the sentence.

Furniture Design Turns Back Time

By MARGUERITE DAVIS

CHICAGO (UPI) — The annual mid-winter International Home Furnishings Show was under way here this week with displays for all tastes, but with Early American the obvious style favorite.

Manufacturers who never before handled the style have added Early American groupings, or designed modern furniture with a feeling of the colonial days—a tester bed, peg detailing, a trestle table, and plank effects.

The theme is detailed in lamps and decorative accessories. There are John and Priscilla Alden wall plaques, a clock topped with an American eagle, oil lamps reproduced on a modern pole lamp, and Williamsburg reproductions in fireplace pieces.

An oriental influence is seen in some lines, primarily in lacquered table tops, delicate flower tracings and grass cloth on sliding panels.

Eye-pleasing patterns are fashionable. A laminated plastic, multi-colored in swirling abstract designs, is used on chests and tables for interesting accent pieces, and wallpaper patterns are applied to the interiors of chests and cabinets for another means of decoration.

Handsome woods are prominent. Mahogany is enjoying a new popularity, competing with walnut and cherry in suites of a single wood. There also are combinations. Walnut is used with rosewood or pecan, teak with rosewood, mahogany or oak, usually with clear finishes which show the grain of the wood.

Tall lamps, ranging from 40 to 50 inches high, are shown in traditional and oriental designs. Manufacturers report white outclasses all colors in popularity.

Manufactured fabrics are widely used for carpeting and draperies. A new fiberglass yarn is displayed for window curtains, and a newly developed nylon filament provides carpeting which is said to be shed-proof and fuzz-proof. New designs are shown for matching fabrics and wallpapers.

Neutral colors are the most popular—off-white, pewter and shades of brown are used with sharp accent colors. A crimson rattan mandarin chair, black and red lacquer table tops, bottle green for dining room chairs, and a traditional upholstered chair in robin's egg blue are examples of this.

Section 608 Owners Seek Tax Rule Change

The National Committee of Section 608 Owners, a trade association made up of owners and operators of apartment houses built with mortgages insured under Section 608 of the National Housing Act, has called upon the chairman of the ways and means committee of the United States House of Representatives to amend the Internal Revenue Code so that the owners of these projects can obtain the income tax advantages provided to other small business corporations under a law passed in 1958.

This law, known as the Technical Amendments Act of 1958, provides that owners of small business corporations can treat corporate income as if it were personal income in order to avoid the double federal income tax on dividends. Carl L. Shipley, general counsel for the 608 owners, pointed out that "the act excludes corporations who derive more than 20 per cent of their income from rentals, and excludes corporations which have more than two classes of stock."

Shipley further stated that since 608 projects derive all of their income from rentals, and each 608 corporation has not only common stock, but 100 shares of preferred stock owned by the Federal Housing Administration, none can qualify for the favorable tax benefits available to other small business corporations.

He characterized the 1958 act as "highly discriminatory" as applied to 608 projects, and requested the House Ways and Means Committee to consider changing the law so that owners of 608 projects can qualify for its benefits. He pointed out that there are more than 7000 apartment houses insured under Section 608 of the Housing Act, and that since they operate under maximum rent ceilings, favorable tax treatment is essential to their economic well-being.

Home in Brentwood Court Development to New Ownership

Strunk Sees More Homes In 1959

If a revival of the inflation spiral can be prevented, homebuilding in 1959 should continue its comeback from the recession of 1958, with the chances excellent that as many, if not more, homes will be built in the coming year then in the one just completed.

This is the view of Norman Strunk, executive vice president of the United States Savings and Loan League, who said that there is a good possibility private housing starts in 1959 will rise as high as 1,175,000 units up 5 per cent from 1958's 1,125,000 private starts.

Strunk is the League's chief executive officer. The League is the nationwide trade organization for the $55 billion savings and loan business which finances nearly 40 per cent of all homes built or sold in this country annually.

In predicting another big home building year in 1959, Strunk noted that private housing starts had jumped from an annual seasonally adjusted rate of 933,000 units last march to a seasonally-adjusted annual rate of 1,330,000 units in November.

One Shadow Remains.

"This is quite a comeback for industry which a few months ago was caught in the throes of a recession," he commented.

Strunk said the high level of homebuilding in the fall and early winter months assures "a good start" in 1959 housing starts.

Strunk said that "one shadow" hanging over the 1959 housing picture is the threat of further inflation. "If serious inflation pressures recur, the Federal Reserve Board will have to take further steps to tighten credit," said Strunk.

"This would mean higher interest rates, and probably cause mortgage lenders, other than savings and loan associations, to reduce their investments in home mortgages.

"If such a situation developed, the outlook for homebuilding would have been less optimistic than it now appears to be."

Strunk attributed the favorable housing outlook to an improved economic climate, compared with a year ago; to the high rate of personal savings in 1958 which enabled many families to obtain necessary downpayments; and to a vastly-expanded supply of home mortgage funds—at least from the nation's 6200 savings and loan associations.

More Optimistic.

"In contrast with 1958," he said, "the year 1959 opens on a more optimistic note, with all signs pointing to increased production of goods and services, to stable to rising employment, advances in personal income, and improved confidence on the part of home buyers in the economy's future. This should serve to transform some of the latent demand in the housing market into active demand, and expand the number of home buyers accordingly."

He also observed that the residential construction cost situation had improved, with such costs rising more slowly in 1958 than other building costs. While residential buildings costs were up roughly 1.7 per cent over the year, he said, other types of construction costs were up over 2 per cent. In other post war years, he said, residential construction costs gained by as much as 5 per cent.

"This stabilizing of the price level could give significant impetus to home sales," he said.

In discussing the supply of home lending funds in 1959, Strunk said the chances are excellent that savings associations will make available even more home mortgage money than in the past year. In 1958, these specialized thrift and home financing institutions loaned more than $12.2 billion for the purchase of homes, roughly 30 per cent more than in 1957.

You Own Four Acres

There are four acres of forest lands in the United States for every man, woman and child. Some of these acres are so rich in soil and tree-growing minerals that they will produce 700 board feet of wood every year. On the west slopes of Oregon and Washington, Douglas fir forests, which supply the nation with one-third of all its softwood lumber, will grow enough timber each year on 14 acres to make lumber to build an ordinary house.

Warming Trend Expected

A warming trend is expected in the St. Louis area through next Wednesday, with little or no precipitation during the period, the Weather Bureau said today.

The present cold snap here is due to a cold air mass that has pushed directly south from Canada. The thermometer dropped to 14 degrees at Lambert-St. Louis Field at 6 a.m. today.

Skies were clear over Missouri and Illinois. The coldest reading in Missouri early today was 8 at Kirksville, and the high in the state was 22 at Malden. In Illinois the low was 7 at Quincy. The high was 19 at Cairo.

The surge of cold air spread across most of the eastern half of the country today, ending a brief spell of fairly normal temperatures. The mercury dropped to freezing in many sections of the South, except Florida, where the high was in the upper 60s.

Snow fell at Roanoke, Va., and Greensboro, N.C., with rain in parts of Florida and coastal sections of North Carolina.

Rain and winds swept the western coastal region as far south as central California.

RUSSIA TO PUT MAN IN ROCKET SOON, U.S. SAYS

WASHINGTON, Jan. 9 (AP) —Russia can be expected soon to announce the first flight by man in a rocket ship, a report issued by the House Space Committee said yesterday.

The prediction was made in a broad study carried out for the committee by the Rand Corp., which does space research for the Air Force. The committee under House Majority Leader John McCormack (Dem.), Massachusetts, issued the 252-page document as a "space handbook" and called it the most comprehensive work of its kind for laymen.

It said American intercontinental ballistic missile rockets can be adapted to attempt manned flight probably within less than five years. The Russians will have as much or greater rocket capability in this period, it said, adding:

"In view of their extensive studies in the various aspects of space medicine and their patent desire to be first to achieve manned space flight, it is reasonable to assume that the Soviets will soon announce the 'successful' return of a human passenger from a rocket flight in the Soviet Union."

In furtherance of the American effort, the National Aeronautics and Space Administration may award a contract within two weeks for a one-ton capsule of the type that ultimately will carry a man into space. A spokesman for the agency declined yesterday to give any details.

The Rand Corp. study made these other points:

1. Scientific, military and perhaps even commercial launchings of hundreds of satellites b ythe early 1960s will so overburden present satellite tracking and computing systems that new systems must be found without delay. International co-operation in space will be imperative.

2. Seeing-eye satellites, because they fly much higher than airplanes, will have to be very large in order to carry the equipment needed to spot objects on earth. A 100,000-pound payload was one satellite requirement listed.

3. A glide rocket, which shoots up like a rocket and then glides back to earth, promises more efficiency than ballistic missiles. "If an ICBM were converted to a glide rocket of the same range and initial cross weight, the payload could be 8 to 10 times as great."

4. Because trere is no atmosphere in space to slow down the radiation from an atomic blast, a big atomic bomb exploded in space could be lethal for hundreds of miles.

A General Electric Co. missile expert said last night the United States plans four unmanned interplanetary shots this year. Glen P. Bieging, manager of products planning in G.E.'s heavy military electronics department at Syracuse, N.Y., said in a Boston speech that one of the shots may be aimed at Mars next month. He said Mars will be in a favorable position for a missile shoot in February, March and April.

He said Venus may be another target, explaining that the planet will swing into a favorable position in early summer.

WOMAN BURNED SERIOUSLY WHEN GAS STOVE EXPLODES

Mrs. Gladys Ernst, 2659A Hickory street, was burned seriously this morning when a gas stove exploded at her apartment. Fire was confined to Mrs. Ernst's quarters.

Battalion Fire Chif Charles Swinhart said the stove exploded when Mrs. Ernst lighted it. She made her way from her apartment to a hallway, where firemen assisted her in leaving the building. Other occupants of the house escaped without injury.

Mrs. Ernst, 39 years old, was taken to City Hospital where it was reported she was suffering from second degree burns of 40 per cent of her body. Swinhart estimated damage from the fire at $1000.

EDWARDSVILLE MAN DIES AS FIRE DESTROYS HOME

Alard E. Johnson, a presser, died yesterday in a fire which destroyed his one-story brick home at 264 (rear) Wyandotte street, just east of Edwardsville. He was 48 years old.

Fire Chief Edward Coolbaugh said Johnson's body, badly burned, was found in the basement. The blaze was discovered by a neighbor but the roof and walls of the building had caved in by the time firemen arrived.

Cause of the fire was undetermined. There was no estimate of damage. Johnson, an employe of a cleaning establishment in Edwardsville, lived alone.

W. BERLIN MAYOR TO LEAVE FEB. 6 FOR TOUR OF U.S.

BERLIN, Jan. 9 (AP)—West Berlin Mayor Willy Brandt will leave here for his scheduled one-week tour of the United States on Feb. 6, an official announcement said yesterday.

On his flight back home, he will stop off in Tokyo and other Asian capitals to inform leading representatives of these countries of the Berlin situation, according to the official announcement.

In the United States, the Mayor has been invited to deliver the main speech in Springfield, Ill., at a ceremony marking Abraham Lincoln's 150th birthday. Brandt will visit Washington, New York and Los Angeles.

CANADA TO GIVE ART TREASURES BACK TO POLAND

OTTAWA, Jan. 9 (AP)—The Canadian government said last night priceless Polish art treasures, stored in Ottawa bank vaults, will be returned to Poland shortly.

The Foreign Affairs Department said in a statement that the authorized depositors have agreed that the two trunks of treasures be returned to Polish institutions.

The treasures, including ancient state jewels and swords, manuscripts and the original works of Chopin, are stored in two huge trunks in the downtown Bank of Montreal vaults. The trunks were opened recently for the first time in 12 years and an informant said the treasures were found in a fairly good state of preservation.

Not involved in the current talks was another part of the treasure — including Sixteenth Century tapestries — stored in the Quebec provincial museum.

The objects were brought to Canada in 1940 after Germany invaded Poland.

COUNTERFEITING RING HUNTED IN ST. LOUIS

Secret Service agents today were searching for a new counterfeiting ring which has passed several bogus $100 bills in St. Louis in the last few days.

Two of the bills were passed last night at establishments in the downtown section and an effort was made to pass another. The passers obtained $174 in change and $23 worth of merchandise.

The first bill was tendered to a barmaid at the Dublin Village, 15 North Sixth street, by one of three men who had several rounds of drinks. The barmaid gave them $97.70 change.

Later one man bought $23 worth of merchandise at the National Shirt Shop, 710 Washington avenue. The manager, David Imergoot, gave $77 change.

Imergoot took the bogus bill to another National Shirt Co. store at 714 Olive street to get some change. A short time after he left, a man entered the store and bought about $40 worth of goods. He tendered another bogus $100 in payment.

Al Marbain, the manager, suspicious because of receiving two $100 bills, took the new one into a rear room to examine it. The customer, apparently alarmed, ran from the store and left in a taxicab.

Gary Stigall, agent in charge of Secret Service here, said several other bills have been passed. The ink in all of them is faded. Two of those passed last night had identical serial numbers.

N.Y. CENTRAL HALTS PENNSY MERGER STUDY

© New York Times News Service

NEW YORK, Jan. 9—Directors of the New York Central Railroad called a halt yesterday to studies that have been under way 13 months as to the practicality of a merger with the Pennsylvania Railroad.

On learning of the Central's decision, James M. Symes, president of the Pennsylvania, issued a statement in which he said, "Quite frankly, I am disappointed at the New York Central's announcement."

Symes and Alfred E. Perlman, president of the Central, first announced the joint study of a merger of their companies on Nov. 1, 1957.

Central's directors announced their decision to break off the merger study following their monthly board meeting in Palm Beach. In a statement from the company's executive headquarters here the directors indicated that rather than a merger of the Central with the Pennsylvania they favored railroad consolidations in the pattern proposed nearly 40 years ago by the Interstate Commerce Commission.

U.S. STATION MAY HAVE HEARD RUSSIAN ROCKET

PASADENA, Calif., Jan. 9 (AP)—Director William pickering of the Jet Propulsion Laboratory thinks signals from Russia's cosmic rockets were picked up by the laboratory's tracking station in the Mojave desert.

An analysis of the sounds heard by the big intenna at Goldstone indicates that for three hours Sunday morning it was tuned in to the space-bound rocket, Mechta, Pickering said yesterday. The signals were never strong enough to permit tracking, he said, but the tone and the region from which they were received led him to believe they were sent out by Mechta.

The Goldstone station was tuned in to the much higher frequency used by the United States satellite, Pioneer III, and was caught unprepared when the Russians launched their moon probe Friday, Pickering said. By the time everything was squared away the rocket had already passed the moon, he said.

Mikoyan's Emphasis on German Disarmament Underscores One Of Great Post-War Tragedies

By JAMES RESTON

WASHINGTON, Jan. 9.

IN HIS CONVERSATIONS in Washington this week, Anastas I. Mikoyan, a Soviet first deputy premier, repeatedly emphasized the Soviet Union's opposition to the nuclear rearmament of Germany.

In fact the private memoranda on these talks suggest that the demilitarization of Germany is now the major objective of Soviet policy in Europe, and this underscores one of the great tragedies and ironies of post-war history.

For it was precisely 14 years ago this week that the late Senator Arthur Vandenberg (Rep.), Michigan, proposed that the United States sign a treaty with the Soviet Union to keep Germany permanently demilitarized. This was followed, first by a formal offer of such a treaty for 25 years, and then by a second offer of a 45-year treaty, both of which were rejected by Mikoyan's associates in the Kremlin.

"Why," asked Mikoyan this week, "can the United States not understand that the Soviet Union cannot be indifferent to the rearmament of the Germans?"

The answer, of course, is that the United States has understood this ever since the end of the last war, and the testimony of Senator Vandenberg and former Secretary of State James F. Byrnes illustrates the point even more effectively now than when they tried to deal with the German problem at the end of the war.

Vandenberg's Stand.

"Fear of reborn German aggression in the years to come," said Senator Vandenberg on Jan. 10, 1945, "Is at the base of most of our contemporary frictions. It is a perfectly human and justified fear . . . .

"I propose that we meet this problem conclusively and at once. There is no reason to wait. America has this same self-interest in permanently, conclusively, and effectively disarming Germany and Japan . . . . I know of no reason why a hard and fast treaty between the major allies (United States, Britain, France and the U.S.S.R.) should not be signed today to achieve this dependable end . . . ."

Secretary of State Byrnes raised the question of a 25-year treaty to demilitarize Germany in a conversation with the then Soviet Foreign Minister, Vyacheslav Molotov, at the meeting of the Big Four foreign ministers in London in September 1945. He raised it again with Marshall Stalin in Moscow on Christmas Eve of that year.

"I have often recalled," Byrnes said to Stalin, "how you expressed at Yalta your fear of another invasion by Germany. You then asserted that the continued co-operation of the four Allies in keeping Germany demilitarized would relieve your fears."

Byrnes says in his book, "Speaking Frankly," that Stalin supported him in the idea, so after getting the approval of President Truman and the consent of Vandenberg and the other leading Senators on the Foreign Relations Committee, he sent drafts of the treaty to Moscow, London and Paris, in February 1946.

Rejected by Soviet.

In April of that year in Paris, however, Molotov told Byrnes the treaty was "inadequate"—should be for at least 40 years. Byrnes made it 45. Britain and France agreed, but Molotov found one excuse after another for objecting.

"I have been forced to the conclusion," Byrnes finally wrote, "that following Stalin's promise on Dec. 24, 1945, to support the treaty, the Soviet high command or Politburo concluded they did not want the United States involved in the maintenance of European security for the next 25 or 40 years. The pressure of American power would restrict the freedom of action which the Soviet Union, as the predominant military power in Europe, might otherwise enjoy. . . ."

Mikoyan told the guests at Eric Johnston's dinner here this week that "we have made some mistakes of act and policy." He did not refer to the treaty-offer; nobody did. But Molotov's actions then could have been one of them.

Molotov miscalculated that the United States would withdraw from Europe. He underestimated the revival power of Germany. He misjudged the capacity of the West to unite in the Marshall Plan and the North Atlantic Treaty. Now he is gone and Mikoyan is here to deal with the consequences.

"The greatest barrier to world peace," Mikoyan remarked, "is the mutual lack of trust." On this, at least, everybody here agrees. Vandenberg said the same thing 14 years ago.

FIFTH OF A SERIES

NEW YORK.

ALMOST SEVEN MILES below the Western Pacific, just east of the Mariana Islands, is perhaps the blackest and most inhospitable place on the earth.

Like many others among the 23 such trenches in the ocean floors, it was explored extensively in the International Geophysical Year and was found to be the deepest of all. No sign of life was found on its long, narrow bottom.

Yet in virtually all the other troughs life was found, despite the great pressure and continuous darkness. From the standpoint of evolution the creatures were surprisingly "modern."

It has been said that we know less of the crust of the earth than we do of the side of the moon facing us. This is largely due to the fact that two-thirds of the crust is under water. During the I.G.Y. 80 ships from 20 nations sought to fill in the gaps.

Current Measurements.

They anchored in water several miles deep to measure currents and haul up bottom samples. They criss-crossed the Atlantic from the Arctic almost to the Antarctic to survey that ocean "in depth," obtaining data on temperature, salinity and oxygen content.

The most extensive efforts were those of the Soviet Union and the United States. The Russians were particularly interested in the bottom trenches and it was they who discovered what they believe is the deepest point in the oceans.

Their oceanographic fleet consisted of 30 vessels, 12 of which were large ocean-going types. The flagship was the Vityaz, of 6000 tons, which carried almost 70 researchers. It discovered the record deep on its first I.G.Y. voyage.

The existence of the trench was already known. It appeared on the charts as the Nero deep or Mariana trench. In August 1957, the ship sought to trawl its bottom and determine what creatures, if any, might live there.

The maximum depth was recorded as 36,056 feet, or about seven miles. The bottom of the trench was strikingly flat and in places less than a mile wide. A cross wind made it hard to keep the ship in position and the first trawl attempt hit the sides of the trench, instead of the bottom.

Life in Trenches.

In the Kermedec deep, at 6.7 miles depth, the Russians found 15 species of organism, several of them new. After exploring several other deeps in the Western Pacific, their impression was that life existed in virtually all the trenches, although it was meager.

Both American and Soviet oceanographers have observed that the life of the trenches does not represent an early stage of evolution. One explanation that has been advanced is that the trenches are comparatively new features, marking fracture lines where the oceanic part of the earth's crust meets continental structures.

Old trenches have presumably been buried in sediments. The schooner Vema of Columbia University's Lamont geological observatory detected such a buried trench in the South Atlantic by studying explosion echoes from the ocean floor. It was apparently a continuation of the South Sandwich trench, which was found to be five and half miles deep.

The Russians reported that the top 650 feet of the countercurrent was extremely rich in life, due to the up-welling of mineral-rich waters.

Knowledge of the ocean floors was greatly increased. It became clear that a ridge from the Aleutians, south past Hawaii, divided the Pacific much as the mid-Atlantic ridge divides that ocean. The Russians reported a trench up to 4600 feet deep on the continental shelf along the long coastline between Mirny and Adelie land in Antarctica.

They said also that 75 per cent of the ocean floor between Antarctica and South Africa was broken with volcanic mountains and other rugged features. The rough submarine terrain from there around into the South Pacific seemed to support, they added, the postulate former existence of Condwana land—a lost continent that once linked Antarctica to other land areas.

American Program.

The United States program was carried out by the country's various oceanographs institutes. That at Woods Hole, Mass., teamed up with Brit-

Face Lifting Considered to Rid G.O.P. of 'Big Business' Label

WASHINGTON, Jan. 9.

REPUBLICAN LEADERS ARE discussing a major expensive party face-lifting operation before the 1960 popularity contests.

The central effort would be to change the public idea of the G.O.P. image as the party of "big business."

They are counting on President Eisenhower for plenty of help in this campaign, expecting more definite partisan effort from him in his final months in office than he has shown in all the years he has been in the White House.

Strategy Meeting in January.

Definite plans for the Republican comeback drive will be laid before the party's national committee at its meetings in Des Moines, Ia., on Jan. 22 and 23.

In analyses of the 1958 election reversals prepared for President Eisenhower, some Republicans frankly concede that the "big business" label was a major factor in the heavy losses Republicans suffered in the Senate, the House and among governors. They feel Democrats were able to exploit and magnify this public conception of the Republicans by tying the party to support of a series of "right-to-work" proposals that were on state ballots. These measures, barring union contracts requiring union membership as a condition of employment, were defeated in Ohio, California, Washington, Colorado and Idaho and approved in Kansas last November. Republican candidates suffered heavily in states where the "right-to-work" propositions were on the ballot.

Plan to Label Democrats.

These Republicans argue that on the basis of the Eisenhower Administration record and party policy generally, the G.O.P. successfully can be presented as the party of all interests. In an effort to make this image bright for the citizenry, Republicans also will be trying to pin on the Democrats the label as the party of "big labor."

Precise plans have not been drafted as yet, nor has the exact scope of the presidential effort been determined. One of the proposals is that the President should make a series of informal television "fireside" chats, but James C. Hagerty, White House press secretary, said yesterday no definite plans have been made.

The high-level Republican planning also is being co-ordinated with Vice President Nixon, who remains a dominant figure in the race for the 1960 presidential nomination whatever the challenge presented by the recent election of Nelson A. Rockefeller as governor of New York.

POLL ON FRENCH AUSTERITY FINDS IT UNFAIR TO WORKER

PARIS, Jan. 9 (UPI)—The newspaper Paris-Presse published a poll today indicating that 78 per cent of the voters consider President Charles de Gaulle's austerity program unfair to the working man—but 57 per cent agree it is the medicine France's tottering economy needs.

Only 14 per cent of the Frenchmen polled by the newspaper regarded the drastic fiscal program as fair to all classes of the people.

Pentagon Asks More Plutonium In Policy Shift

Recommended Hike Is Said to Be in Excess of Present AEC Capacity.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 9.

THE Defense Department, in a major reversal of past policy, has recommended a substantial increase in the production of plutonium for nuclear weapons.

For the first time the department has established its long-range military requirements for plutonium, particularly for the manufacture of small, tactical-size atomic weapons.

The requirements were said to be far in excess of present capacity of the Atomic Energy Commission's plutonium-producing reactors and thus open the way for a major build-up of the nation's plutonium production facilities.

Plutonium, the fissionable material used in most atomic weapons, is produced by irradiating natural uranium in large reactors. Many of these plutonium reactors were built during or immediately after World War II and are becoming obsolete.

Source of Long Debt.

Weapons requirements for plutonium have been the source of long debate within the Administration, complicated by conflicting concepts of nuclear warfare among the military services. As far back as 1956 the Joint Chiefs of Staff recommended an increase in plutonium production, only to have the recommendation returned by the Defens. Department for further study.

Last May the Joint Chiefs again made the recommendation. Secretary of Defense Neil H. McElroy returned the recommendation with instructions that it be restudied and resubmitted with a more definitive statement of requirements.

In recent weeks the Joint Chiefs were reliably reported to have resubmitted a statement of requirements calling for substantial increase in plutonium production over the next ten years. The recommendation was said to have been approved by McElroy and forwarded to the Budget Bureau

Premier Debre's Angry Blasts Helped De Gaulle to Power

By WILLIAM MILLINSHIP
Copyright, 1959, the London Observer.

PARIS, Jan. 9.

MICHEL DEBRE, named by President Charles de Gaulle as the Fifth Republic's first Premier, is a passionate nationalist, an untiring worker, and a man of rock-like loyalty.

It was he who drafted the new constitution, and if he tailored the presidency to fit De Gaulle's towering figure, he may also have cut the prime ministership to suit himself.

Debre (pronounced Duh-bray) is shortish, with a round face, straight black hair, a high forehead and thin lips. He will be 47 on Jan. 15, the day on which he is to present his government and policy to the new-style parliament.

He was born into a family of bourgeois intellectuals, the son of Prof. Robert Debre, now president of the French Academy of Medicine. He is Jewish by origin (his grandfather was a Paris rabbi) but not by religion.

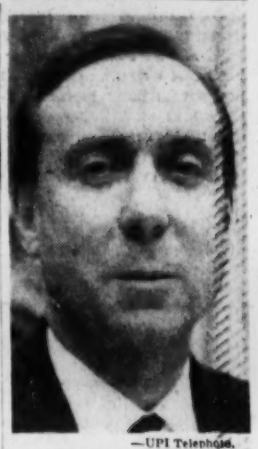

Doctorate in Law.

Before the war he took a doctorate in law at Paris University and also studied at the school of political science. While at the university he also became deeply interested in history, which he frequently discussed with Elie Halevy, a specialist in the history of Nineteenth Century England. Under his influence Michel Debre developed an admiration for the British parliamentary system as an example of effective democratic government.

After a brilliant university career, he became a member of the Council of State, the highest French judicial authority.

At the outbreak of World War II he joined a cavalry regiment and was captured in 1940 and sent to a prison camp in Germany. He escaped soon afterwards and made his way to Morocco, before returning to France to help form the resistance.

By 1943 he was No. 2 in the Gaullist resistance organization in occupied France. It was he who drew up the list of prefects and other administrative chiefs who took over the country after the liberation.

MICHEL DEBRE

After the war, he held a number of administrative posts. He did not enter politics proper until 1948, when he was elected senator on a Gaullist ticket. From that moment, Michel Debre campaigned for De Gaulle's return to power and for a complete reform of the French machinery of state.

His urgent, angry pamphlets, prophesying disaster and demanding national renewal, won him the name of "Father of Anger." Anger was also the main element in Le Courrier de la Colere, a journal which he founded several months before the May revolution last year, which propelled De Gaulle back to power.

Of his books, the best known is "The Princes Who Govern Us," published at the end of 1957, in which he accused Fourth Republic leaders of defending only their own privileges while the country plunged to ruin losing its empire on the way. He cried out against the withdrawal from Indochina, Tunisia and Morocco, and remains convinced that Algeria at least must stay French.

Attacked Common Market.

He also attacked the treaties tying France to the "little Europe" of the Common Market. He maintained that France, weak and ill-governed, would be unable to resist the power of Western Germany. He believed that in any case Britain should enter the European coalition to help keep the balance.

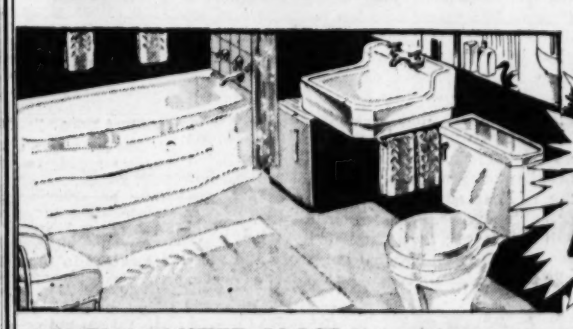

His hostility to "little Eu-

Africa in Perspective

Your editorial of Jan. 3 on the difficulties confronting emergent African states is, in part, well taken. But we and Africans alike, perhaps for different reasons, have a sense of urgency which sometimes leads us to lose perspective.

Certainly cultural and linguistic differences make for many problems, but such differences were characteristic of western states until recently, and were overcome only by an intensive process of industrialization and urbanization. Even now they are not altogether absent from the western scene. Belgium and Yugoslavia are cases in point.

Tribalism and illiteracy may be obstacles to economic development and political stability, but you can't have everything at once. Industrialization and urbanization provide their own dynamics and will have much to do with overcoming tribal differences.

It is probable that a concomitant secularization will mitigate the conflict between Islam and Christianity where that occurs. Incidentally, other conflicts, that of class among them, may well take the place of those now giving difficulty.

Some of the African elite seem to be as anxiety-ridden as we are. You cite the Central African Republic's law against idleness and nudity—approvingly?—as a "necessity." What, pray, has nudity or the absence thereof to do with economic growth and/or political stability?

"Nudity is not conducive to dignity," says the African Premier. I think he caters to western conceptions. Will we weigh the arguments of an African delegate to the U.N. in terms of the irrelevant criterion of the costume of his constituents?

As for idleness, it should be clear that the tribal African worked and works in terms of a definite pattern—when there is work to be done and the goals and rewards are known and understood. Without planning, including planning for rewards recognizable to the worker, laws against idleness may lead simply to enforced, non-productive busy work.

A passion for work for its own sake may be psychologically necessary in an expanding economy, but we must settle for a gradual development of that passion. If we look on approvingly while the whip is used, we may expect that other passions will be generated.

It would be lovely, and unheard of, if revolutions were accompanied by sweet reasonableness. Unreasoning antipathy to whites is unfortunate, and may be detrimental to the successful operation of a newly independent society, but efficiency is not the only consideration. In any case, why do we demand more of Africans and Asians than we do of ourselves?

Evidence Is Lacking

Granted it is always "open season" on police officers, St. Louisans will do well to withhold judgment on the Delmar-Keystone Kop drama with its Hitlerian setting.

As the record stands to date, there is no evidence of law violation. To the contrary, it appears to be a case of "the mountain roaring and out jumped a mouse."

Of course there now will be a frantic effort to change the mouse into a lion. But the evidence appears to be lacking. Observer

'No' to a Bill

Soon to come up before the Board of Aldermen is a public accommodations bill.

Under it, if I were the owner of a restaurant I would not be allowed my rightful privilege of denying service to anyone because of his race. If I did so, I would be prosecuted.

The Missouri State Constitution declares under Article one of Section two, that among other things, we have the right to pursuit of happiness, and also the right of enjoyment of the gain of our own industries. If the new public accommodations bill is passed, it will prohibit us to serve whomsoever we please. This would be directly contrary to the provisions of our State Constitution.

A Buyer Calls

Mikoyan is here on the biggest buying spree that any one country has ever been on in history. Our business people in America will sell to him, and it will create friendship between Russia and the United States. It won't be long until Eisenhower and business men of America will be buying and selling to the People's Republic of China.

You need not worry any more that this world is on the road to war. It is on the road to peace and prosperity and equal rights for all. Owen B. Lutz

The Wrong Remedy

The St. Louis School Board will best serve this community's overriding interests by firmly turning down its legislative committee's scheme to seek earnings tax authority for the school system. Not only is the proposal politically impractical and dangerous to the financial stability of the city; it is completely unnecessary.

St. Louis's entry into the earnings tax field has been not without grave legislative misgivings. These have been overcome only with great difficulty despite the obvious need. The lawmakers feared that giving the city authority to levy an earnings tax—or to raise it, as the city now hopes to do—would be like opening a Pandora's box; that it would be the first of a rash of similar proposals.

For the School Board now to ask earnings tax powers would be to confirm those fears. Jefferson City's most likely reaction would be to bar all such levies, including the city's pending request for elimination of the present tax ceiling as the first step to increasing it.

This would have serious consequences to municipal government in St. Louis. Property having been virtually exhausted as a revenue producer for city purposes, the earnings tax is the only source that will provide the substantial revenues the city must have to stay solvent. Moreover, this tax also permits the city to recover from nonresidents a portion of the cost of services it provides for them when they are at work in the city. A third or so of the $10,000,000 annual earnings tax revenue comes from nonresidents.

Municipal considerations aside, the proposal for a school earnings tax is unnecessary. If the School Board needs more money, it has a ready remedy at hand. We refer to the property tax, which is the traditional support of public education at the local level.

A property tax rise of 8 or 9 cents on the present $1.51 school levy would provide the system with more than enough to wipe out a prospective $1,500,000 deficit.

The deficit grows out of a revamping of assessment ratios on the merchants and manufacturers tax that elimated a windfall that the schools had unfairly enjoyed. If the Board could justify such a rise—and that is still a substantial question—it has full power to submit the proposal at a special election.

One slight danger is that in the event the people said No, the levy would plummet all the way down to the 89-cent limit that the Board can put on without consent of the people. But judging by the willingness of the people since 1950 to approve ever higher school rates, this should be no problem—provided that the Board can show a real need of money for education, not to pay patronage salaries.

The system would be in a far better position to ask for more money if some of the waste in non-instructional operations reported in the A. T. Kearney & Co. survey of 1954 were eliminated. Most members of the Board have displayed only contempt for the survey and its finding that the schools were spending $1,487,000 a year more than necessary in non-instructional activities. Oddly enough, this is just about the size of the prospective deficit.

A goodly portion of this waste is required by statutes that protect patronage and unbusinesslike organization, that encourage the schools to run greenhouses and architectural offices and the like. With the General Assembly in session this would seem to be the perfect time for the Board's legislative committee to be proposing changes in the law so as to permit more efficient school operations. That would command more respect than undercutting the city's earnings tax campaign.

The Pilots Risk Much

The Air Line Pilots Association is risking a great deal in dragging out the strike against American Airlines far beyond the point where the public can perceive any justification for it.

The pilots have been offered top pay of $17,500 to $28,300 a year for flying 85 hours a month. Their dispute with American has been hanging fire since July of 1957, centering now on shorter hours, now on working conditions, now on wages. The National Mediation Board has recommended a compromise basis of settlement which the company accepted but the pilots have left unanswered.

In this dispute as in others there may be tension and grievances not apparent to the public, but it is very hard for anybody outside the industry to sympathize with the continued crippling of airline service in this latest of a chain of damaging strikes. As sure as anything, the pilots are building up public sentiment in favor of harsher anti-strike measures than those of the Railway Labor Act which now governs air carriers. In their own interest they would be wise to be reasonable.

When Troubles Begin

In Charles de Gaulle, now the first president of the Fifth Republic, France has its strongest ruler since Napoleon III, the cables say.

In his inaugural address, he said: "I have the honor to give France, impose if need be, what the public good demands."

No American President would use that word "impose." Yet De Gaulle used it with full warrant. He can be, if he deems it necessary, a dictator. He can declare an emergency and send the parliamentarians home and rule by decree.

Considering the policies which some of his ministers have been advocating in recent weeks, it is well that a man with De Gaulle's restraint stands between them and the exercise of authority. Yet, they are his choices. His premier, Michel Debre, for example, has been denouncing the defunct Fourth Republic for putting France on the supranational road of the European Common Market. Under his direction as head of the Union for the New Republic, the Gaullist party, a report has been issued which demands a drastic revision of France's attitude toward European integration.

There are disturbing intimations, too, regarding Euratom. Gen. Jean Valluy, top soldier of the Fifth Republic and NATO commander on the Continent, has been demanding atomic weapons. A number of officers have seats in the new parliament and it is clear that they are the voice of the military. The French army has tasted power, and it is not inclined to be utterly submissive. It wants, among other things, a re-shaping of NATO which would assure automatic support of the alliance for France in Africa. And that is out of the question.

These men, military and civilians, are extremists. De Gaulle, for all his mystique about French glory, is a man of sense. But some of his supporters may be hard to handle. One is reminded of the congratulatory note Carl Schurz sent to Grover Cleveland on his first inauguration: "Now your real troubles will begin."

New Doubts on Detection

New doubts which the White House has cast upon the reliability of detecting atomic explosions underground deserve the most careful examination. From four tests in Nevada last October it has been learned that the explosions did not create as strong seismic signals as had been expected and that some of them showed an initial downward rather than upward thrust on the seismograph. It had previously been supposed that underground explosions produced an initial upward line on the seismograph, distinguishing them from the initial downward line of earthquakes.

This new development must be studied in the light of the fact that a whole series of efforts has been made to discredit the reliability of various detection techniques. The group centering around Dr. Edward Teller which has always opposed any suspension of nuclear testing by this country has presented one obstacle after another in the hope of killing off the Geneva negotiations. Some of those obstacles have been proved to be ill-founded.

If it is the view of the White House that the newly-discovered seismic data offer a serious impediment to setting up a reliable detection system, why not submit the question to the East-West technical experts who worked out a detection system in seven weeks at Geneva last year? The findings of these experts ought not to be overturned unilaterally and without their own consideration of the new data.

Representing the West at the Geneva technical conference were some of the most distinguished nuclear scientists from the United States, Britain, France and Canada. The American delegation included Dr. James B. Fisk of Bell Telephone Laboratories, Dr. Robert F. Bacher of California Institute of Technology, and the late Dr. Ernest O. Lawrence of the University of California.

Surely scientists like these could be trusted to safeguard Western interests in a foolproof detection system. Having set forth the outlines of such a system on the basis of data available last summer, they and other members of the Geneva technical panel should have the right to declare whether any data received since that time significantly alters their conclusions.

It is encouraging that a de facto suspension of tests has now been in effect for more than a month, and that intelligence reports indicate the Soviets are not preparing for further tests at the moment. No Western tests have been held since late October. In the name of sanity, let us extend the suspension, and extend it again, and support it with the best controls skill and good faith can devise.

Manners Even for Russians

It should have been unnecessary for President Eisenhower to remind the country of the simple rules of courtesy, but we are glad he did. Soviet Deputy Premier Anastas Mikoyan has been met with ill-tempered demonstrators in nearly every city he has visited. The President accordingly was well justified in calling upon the people to show a little good manners, and let Mr. Mikoyan "see the real America so that when he returns home he will be able to carry an accurate picture."

The President did not say so, but it is not at all amiss to note that most of the demonstrations have been organized by Hungarian or other Eastern European refugees who are themselves fairly recent beneficiaries of American hospitality. One can sympathize wholly with the feeling of these refugees toward the Soviet oppressor of their homelands. And yet they are not going to reverse the course of history by throwing eggs at a Moscow bureaucrat who has come here on an errand quite unrelated to their grievance.

Whether it be a New York mayor insulting King Saud of Arabia, congressional hotheads discouraging a visit by Marshal Tito, or Eastern Europeans venting their hatred of Mikoyan, these nationality-group manifestations do the American cause no good. It is not a question of free speech. Every American has the right to express his opinion of Mikoyan or anybody else. But responsible Americans will not express their opinions in violent ways that demean our national character and complicate the already tangled problems of peace.

Forecast, Without Stars

A British astrologer's prediction that Princess Margaret will wed this year reinforces our impression that astrology is not only a superstition but also an impertinence. The prognosticator goes so far as to presume to set the likeliest date, a prerogative usually reserved to the prospective bride.

Our own deduction, made without so much as a glance at the stars or planets, is that our astrological Briton ventured a prediction in the hope of gaining valuable publicity; that if by any chance he turned out anywhere near right he would gain a handsome access of clients as well; and that if he proved not to have the foggiest notion of what he was talking about, it would not surprise us a bit.

TVA and Atomic Power

The Tennessee Valley Authority is seeking a part in the nation's atomic power program, which it unquestionably should have. As the Authority points out, it is responsible for serving an entire region with loads that aggregate nearly one-tenth of the nation's entire utility energy requirements. In justice to the region it serves and the system it operates, it must keep abreast of technological progress.

There is a still further reason why TVA should be taking part in the atomic energy program. For protection against monopoly, exorbitant prices, and abusive practices, and in order effectually to regulate the private power companies, the people required some agency as knowledgeable and skilled as the companies themselves. That agency is TVA.

In the atomic age into which the United States is now moving, in common with the rest of the world, an agency skilled and knowledgeable enough to provide that same protection against atomic monopoly, profiteering and abusive practices is going to be even more needed. The agency ready made for that purpose is TVA.

The Joint Committee on Atomic Energy will, we feel sure, give due weight to these considerations in considering TVA's prospective role in our country's atomic future.

"WELL, I CERTAINLY SEEM TO BE GETTING ATTENTION ON THIS TRIP."

Inflation Is Still the Enemy

So Says Federal Reserve Chairman in Call for Balanced Budget, Sound Dollar

From an Address By William McC. Martin Jr.

No reasonable man believes that budgets can always be balanced. Likewise, no sensible person believes that an unbalanced budget is a desirable way of life. This, of course, has moral connotations as well as economic.

We are a rich country. There is no reason to be ashamed of it and we do not need to apologize about it. We must recognize that some people in our society are not as rich or well off as we would like them to be. As a nation, however, we can afford to expend whatever is required for national defense and foreign aid. But we cannot afford to spend it if we are unable to find the means of paying for these expenditures in any other way than by printing money. Regardless of what facile justification or technical obscurantism is used to persuade us that we can have our cake and eat it too, we can have no hesitation in stating flatly, "It just isn't true."

The Mirror of Public Opinion

We must face up to the reality of either raising taxes or revising our tax structure to produce more revenue or reducing the priorities of some other programs until we can get things in better balance. Whatever the justifications for deficit financing in time of recession—and at best I sometimes think there is a good bit of wishful thinking involved—there can be no question that when business is improving and moving actively toward higher levels, a budget deficit becomes fuel on the fire of inflation. In effect, it pumps air into the business structure as if it were a balloon and eventually leads to more serious recession when the balloon pops than would have occurred if it had not been indulged in.

Likewise, it is time we stopped shilly-shallying around about this matter of interest rates and faced up to realities. We have had far too much talk about so-called "tight" money and "soft" money without adequate understanding of the role of interest rates in our economy. We already have too many preferential interest rates established by statute as though it were possible to ignore completely the workings of the market place.

A Governor on a Flywheel

Interest rates are the prices charged for credit. They are a wage to the saver as well as a cost to the borrower. In a private enterprise economy they are established by the interplay of market forces. They perform the important function of influencing the volume of credit that flows into specific channels of enterprise. They are essential to pricing the assets on which holders expect to receive income over a succession of years. It is through flexible rate movements that the incentives and disincentives are provided for balancing out supply and demand factors in our economy.

The most striking illustration of their usefulness and effectiveness in recent years occurred nearly eight years ago when the decision was made to unpeg our Government securities market. This restored to that important market some of the influence which had been denied it by Government policy for a period of years during which regulation of the money supply gradually became almost ineffective.

Once this decision was taken, the credit mechanism began to function as a governor on the flywheel of our economy and the process of stabilization became a useful part of the adjustments necessary in a healthy economy. We are compelled to recognize, whether we like it or not, that you can alter the nature of demand and change the composition of supply but you can no more ignore the law of supply and demand than you can ignore the law of gravity.

Now I want to go one step further and talk about the most difficult aspect of all of our problems. Confidence is perhaps the fundamental factor in money and currency. Those of us who are charged with responsibility for our monetary affairs recognize this clearly. Money must not only be medium of exchange and a standard of value, but it must be something in which people have basic confidence.

Because of the interrelationships of interest rates and budgets and the present position of the United States in international trade, it is a serious matter when an important segment of world opinion has begun to question the fiscal and monetary integrity exemplified by our American dollar. It is not something we can lightly pass over in hope it will go away.

The battle against inflation it at a critical point, and a setback in the United States would be a serious setback for the entire free world. I would like to be able to stand here and say flatly, "There will be no inflation." I cannot do so. For any one man, that would only be idle talk. What we need now is not talk nor long debate nor lengthy analysis, but resolute actions—continuing over time—which will demonstrate to doubters the good sense and character of the American people.

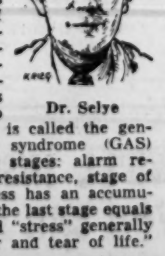

A pressing need for such action confronts us as we approach 1959. The fear of inflation is earnest, and it is having a damaging impact already. Today, when the level of savings in our country has been steadily rising, we could, in my opinion, be selling long-term Government bonds at interest rates substantially lower than current levels if the holders of these savings were convinced that there will be no inflation—convinced that we will conduct our affairs on a basis which will make inflation improbable.

Responsible officials in many countries are watching us closely to see whether we intend to practice what for many years we have preached to them. The future is not entirely within our control but we do have it within our power to maintain the integrity of the American dollar if we have the will to do it. Until or unless the people, through the Congress, change the Federal Reserve Act I can pledge to all of you that the Federal Reserve System will do everything in its power to safeguard our currency.

Between Book Ends Life's Wear and Tear

LIVING WITH STRESS, by Nancy E. Gross. (McGraw-Hill, 207 pgs., $3.95.)

Stress, how to cope with it, what it can, should and should not do make the meat of this book. It starts in the background paths of blind alleys, frustrations and defeats and finally comes to the success of Dr. Hans Selye of the University of Montreal, originator of the concept of stress. This concept is one of those elusive simplicities which defies an easy definition. Essentially, an animal's body reacts to stress with what is called the general adaptation syndrome (GAS) which has three stages: alarm reaction, stage of resistance, stage of exhaustion. Stress has an accumulative effect and the last stage equals death. The word "stress" generally means "the wear and tear of life."

Dr. Selye

Stress and a person's susceptibility to it are always in a state of flux. The author illustrates the effects of stress in a few general case studies. These are designed to show that stress accounts for the body's susceptibility to disease which can be mental or physical. A person's challenge is to see how and to what degree he, himself, is affected by stress and to take steps to confine the effects of stress within manageable limits.

The research of Dr. Selye indicates that stress is a necessary ingredient in every life. With too much of it the life suffers a breakdown and must be therapeutically reconditioned. If the life has too little of it, senility is one of the life's later symptoms. If the right balance is maintained the life proceeds normally to complete a useful, productive and happy cycle.

The stress concept has been widely hailed as one of the greatest boons to understanding man's relation and reaction to his surroundings. Dr. Selye has been referred to as the "Einstein of medicine" because of his contributions in this perspective. This book helps make this concept understandable to the layman who can be better able to know himself and others.

Miss Gross's background as a writer on medical subjects makes this interesting and difficult subject a clear story for the average reader. A short glossary is included to explain the more technical terms which are necessary but held to a minimum. Edward S. Rucker

James to Battleship

PORTRAIT OF A SPORT: THE STORY OF STEEPLECHASING IN GREAT BRITAIN AND THE UNITED STATES, by Elizabeth Eliot (Lady Elizabeth Kinnaird). (The Countryman Press, 138 pgs., $10.)

From the time of James I to the time of Battleship (1955) there seems not one item, date or name pertinent to steeplechasing (flat racing plus hunting equals steeplechasing) that Lady Elizabeth has omitted from this thorough and handsome book, illustrated with many famous paintings of races and meets. Those who follow the hounds, the Grand National, and similar events in Ireland, at Saratoga and at Camden, will want to study on this one, and they can afford it. The little fellow, the racing form reader and patron of the corner bookie—it won't matter to him. But it is beautiful, and certainly fills a long felt need—somewhere. Ruth Walker

WALTER LIPPMANN

Chance for Berlin Compromise

WASHINGTON.

MR. MIKOYAN IS MAKING TWO VISITS to Washington, separated by the 10 days or so which he will spend traveling about the country. The first visit has confirmed the view, held by many who watch these things closely, that the Soviet's move in Berlin, though entirely serious and of great consequence, is not an ultimatum but a move to open up negotiations on a large range of questions.

Although no agreements have been negotiated in this first diplomatic encounter, it is reasonably certain that the door has been opened to a negotiated solution of the Berlin crisis, and it may be to bigger things than Berlin. Apart from what has been said in these preliminary talks, which are properly confidential though they are not altogether secret, there are objective reasons for saying that the Berlin crisis is negotiable. In the various notes that have been exchanged about Berlin two controlling propositions have been established.

Adenauer

The first is that the Western allies will not withdraw their troops from West Berlin until there is a general German settlement, and that they will not permit anyone to interfere with their right to supply these troops.

Soviets Can Delegate.

A blockade of the Western troops by the East German government would be an act of war, and there cannot be any doubt on this subject in Moscow or in East Berlin.

On the other hand, we cannot prevent the Soviet government from delegating to the East German government any of the powers it now exercises. Therefore, if at the end of the six-month period the Soviet government transfers its authority to East Germany, a crucial question is whether this will in any way interfere with our military presence in Berlin and with our military access to Berlin. This is the question which will have to be negotiated.

It is not in itself a hopelessly difficult question. Assuming that the Soviet government turns over to the East German government its control over access to Berlin, the practical question is how to make sure that the East German government will not attempt to interfere with allied military communications by road, rail, canal and air.

Russian Guarantee Needed.

It is here that there will have to be some give and take on both sides, the point of compromise and negotiation being about the powers of the East German control officials.

The nub of the problem is whether the Soviet government will give us a guarantee that the East German officials will not interfere with our military traffic and whether, if the Soviet government gives this guarantee, we will allow the East German officials to inspect the travel papers of our vehicles.

A Soviet guarantee that the East Germans will not interfere with our vehicles would be a compromise in which neither side would lose face. The Soviet promise to transfer its powers to the East German government would be fulfilled and at the same time a possible cause of war would be removed.

On our side, the fact that the East German officials were subject to a Soviet guarantee would go a long way toward satisfying our official view that in Berlin the Soviet Union cannot divest itself of its obligations under the old international pacts. This formula would also be in accord with the position originally taken by Secretary Dulles in his press conference of Nov. 26, and withdrawn later only upon the insistence of Dr. Adenauer.

Dr. Adenauer Does It.

To those who will hurriedly exclaim that any dealings with the East German government are appeasement, we may point out that if this is appeasement, then the leading appeaser is Dr. Adenauer himself. For the actual fact of the matter is that civilian traffic between West Germany and West Berlin is now moving, and has for some time been moving, under an agreement between the two German governments.

This agreement includes acceptance by Dr. Adenauer of the right of the inspectors and control agents of the East German government to deal with the travel papers of West German vehicles.

Dr. Adenauer is now dealing with the East German officials, and if he can do this, why in the name of common sense should we not do the same, especially if we have obtained a guarantee under which we can hold the Soviet Government responsible?

A world war arising out of a quarrel as to whether East German officials can inspect our papers when they already inspect West German papers would be the most preposterous war in history.

The Real Issue Remains.

I do not mean to say that the formula I am describing is the only way to resolve the Berlin crisis. But it is a way.

If it were taken, the real problem of Berlin would still remain, which is how this city can cease to be an island surrounded by the Red army and become the capital of a reunited and unoccupied Germany.

This is a much more difficult problem than the current problem of Berlin, and it will call for much more complicated negotiations, not only with the Soviet Union but among the Western allies.

CITY MUSEUM OPENS 20TH CENTURY SHOW

Exhibits Deal With Physical World; Noted Artists Exhibitors.

By GEORGE McCUE

An exhibition centered on the appearances of nature in Twentieth Century American art opened today at the City Art Museum for a one-month stand.

The show, "Nature in Abstraction," surveys the work of painters and sculptors in dealing with the physical world—man's environment considered apart from man himself, the aspects of earth, sea and air that are the ultimate sources of visual experience.

Some of this country's leading modern painters are represented in the exhibition. Nature, as they epitomize it, summarize it, intensify it and make use of it to express personal feelings, takes a multiplicity of forms.

This is a display of the abstract vision, but with the subject matter usually defined and recognizable. It represents, therefore, an intermediate stage in modern art between realism and abstract expressionism, in which the artist ignores natural shapes. It is the natural world, transformed by the artist's personal imagery but still visibly present—if not through physical resemblance, at least by analogy.

Some Typical Exhibits.

Hyde Solomon's "Vermont Autumn" is one with ready identification between title and picture. It presents a broad hillside in autumn colors, with a narrow horizon of sky. The foliage is an effect of short brush strokes, often in straight, even rows, rather than a literal picturization, but still clearly foliage. Nearby, John Ferren's "The Garden" preserves semblances of garden layout in several plots of bright daubs, and a flagstone effect in some flat palette knife strokes. But having borrowed as much as the artist wanted of these forms, it then becomes a garden in paint, not one of earth, stones and plants.

There are interesting relationships among the paintings. Richard Pousette-Dart's "Golden Dawn" is a high vertical composition of white and gold, the paint surface incised throughout in little arabesques and enlivened by thin black curlicues that dance in and out of the cut patterns. On the same wall panel is Jon Schueller's "Evening," of almost exactly the same size and shape, in which the nocturnal vision is one of feathery strokes in lustrous, deep tones.

Two other works that offer design parallels are Lawrence Calcagno's "Sea Drift," with its heaving surface and what appear to be three views of the sun in different positions, and Adolph Gottlieb's "Red Sky," which, he said, was intended simply to be a division of the canvas into a red area and a black area. It also has three orbs in the pictorial sky.

Among the Exhibitors.

Other eminent painters in the show include Kenzo Okada, Georgia O'Keefe, Abraham Rattner, Philip Guston, John Heliker, David Hare, Stuart Davis, Arthur G. Dove, William Baziotes and Rosemarie Beck.

A Louise Nevelson sculpture, "Formation," is included. Her work, new to St. Louis, comprises assemblies to wood scraps, often rough and splintery and bristling with clinched nails, painted flat black. From these unlikely materials, she has developed an eerie but remarkably expressive idiom of her own that is attracting wide attention. There are only two other sculptures in the show. One is Seymour Lipton's "Desert Briar," a nickel-silver on steel design in folds and convolutions. The other is an Alexander Calder mobile.

Several works in the show's catalogue are not on view, some were displayed only in New York, where the show was organized at the Whitney Museum of American Art. The omission of several important sculptures from the traveling exhibition is much to be regretted. The show was previewed last night at a reception for the Friends of the City Art Museum, and it runs through Feb. 8.

Art Alliance Show.

On view in the Museum basement galleries reserved for local shows is an American Art Alliance show of paintings that stress genre themes. It is the best show that this group of about 100 members, organized in 1942, has put on in some time.

The painters have managed to tear themselves away from the overworked old barn themes, and to address themselves to themes of everyday life that often come off quite well. This show was judged by Francis Healy, Jules Pierlow and Gustav Goetsch, who awarded prizes of $150, $75 and $50 and three honorable mentions.

Genevieve Orabka won first prize with "Bottles," a still life of colored glass reflected in a table top. Al Gruer was second with "The Cookie Jar," a fine piece of realistic painting of rolled-out dough brushed with flour, and several earthen jars. Paul G. Tirmenstein's "Indian Village," the third prize, would have been better without a seated Indian maiden and a superabundance of light shafts.

Honorable mentions went to F. W. Heuser for a conte drawing; Alice G. Samuel for an oil and Beatrice Carter for a watercolor. This show runs through Jan. 30.

JUST AS DIFFICULT TO CATCH COLD AS TO GET RID OF ONE

SALISBURY, England, Jan. 9 (UPI)—A common cold research unit reported today that catching colds deliberately is just as difficult as getting rid of them.

It said only two of 11 cold-catching volunteers came down with illnesses after being injected with special viruses for the past 10 days. Those two were medical students.

Dr. L. Bynoe, director of the cold research unit at Harvard Hospital here, made the report in a plea for more volunteers.

He said the hospital has spent $1,120,000 on 5921 volunteers in the last 12 years trying to isolate the cold virus and develop a protecting vaccine.

Staff virologist Dr. David Tyrell said encouraging progress has been made, but that the viruses that cause about 50 per cent of British colds still are undetected.

MARIA CALLAS SINGS IN CITY SUNDAY

Soprano Presenting Scenes and Arias From Several Operas.

Maria Meneghini Callas, American-born operatic soprano, will appear in concert at 3 p.m. Sunday in Kiel Auditorium Opera House.

Miss Callas, whose fiery temperament has involved her in controversies on two continents, will present scenes and arias from several operas, including Rossini's "The Barber of Seville," Puccini's "La Boheme," Verdi's "Macbeth," Boito's "Mefistofele" and others.

Assisting the former Metropolitan Opera singer in her debut here will be 50 members of the St. Louis Symphony Orchestra, under the direction of Nicola Rescigno, her regular tour conductor.

Miss Callas will arrive at 4 p.m. tomorrow at Lambert-St. Louis Field on a flight from Milan, Italy. She will arrive in New York today and stay there overnight before making the trip here.

Last November, Miss Callas was fired by Metropolitan Opera general manager Rudolf Bing, who accused her of trying to force a last-minute change of the repertoire agreed on for the current season.

In 1955, she broke with the Lyric Opera of Chicago and in 1957 both the Vienna and San Francisco Opera companies dropped her. Last January, she walked out of the Rome Opera before completion of a performance, pleading voice trouble. Later she publicly apologized to Italian President Giovanni Gronchi, who was in the audience.

Despite her temperamental outbursts, the soprano, born of Greek parents, has received tremendous acclaim throughout the world.

Tickets for the concert Sunday can be purchased today and tomorrow at the box offices at Kiel Auditorium and Aeolian Co., 1004 Olive street. The auditorium box office will open at noon Sunday.

TWA flew...
35 times around the world during past weekend

Last holiday weekend, TWA flew mileage in the U.S. equal to 35 times around the world in an effort to get servicemen, students, and business people back on the job.

Never in the history of aviation has there been such a concentrated demand for air travel. Because of the unprecedented demand, many of our good friends were disappointed in not being able to get out on the exact flight they planned, but by and large we were able to accommodate most of them, plus thousands of others.

TWA will continue to provide its high standards of service to the traveling public.

Buchholz Defeats MacKay, Enters West Australia Net Final

St. Louis Youngster Victor in Three Sets

PERTH, Australia, Jan. 9 (AP)—Barry MacKay's plan to "Murder Butch" came a cropper today.

"Butch" is 18-year-old Earl Buchholz of St. Louis, who upset his Dayton (O.) rival in the semifinals of the Western Australia tennis championships, 10-8, 6-3, 6-1.

Young Buchholz thus qualified to play Spain's Andres Gimeno for the championship on Sunday. Gimeno gained the final round by default from the United States Davis Cup star, Alex Olmedo, who withdrew because of a strained stomach muscle.

MacKay, a 6-4 cannonballer, declared before he took the court against Buchholz that "I will murder Butch and then I will get my revenge on Gimeno." The Spaniard had beaten the Ohioan earlier at Melbourne.

It didn't work out that way. Buchholz, regarded as one of America's finest prospects, was all over the court. He scored with sharp passing shots on both sides, flicked tricky drop shots just over the net and angled volleys out of reach of the bedeviled MacKay.

The big Ohioan seemed to collapse after a long first set and young Earl ran off the match in one hour and 20 minutes.

MacKay started aggressively like the player who whipped Sweden's Ulf Schmidt in straight sets in the previous round.

He took advantage of a double fault and three passing shots to crack Buchholz in the opening game and held advantage until the St. Louis youth managed to break service in the eighth game to knot the score.

Then the dogged match, played in sweltering heat, followed service until the eighteenth game when MacKay fell into volleying errors and Buchholz clinched the set with a forehand passing shot.

In the second set MacKay failing to get to the net, was broken at love in the second game and won only one point in losing service again in the sixth.

MacKay managed a single rebreak in the seventh game, but Buchholz tightened to run out the set.

The third set was a complete rout as MacKay made only half hearted gestures at getting into the fight.

The rangy crewcut St. Louis boy, son of a professional, reached the last round of the New South Wales tournament at Sydney with scintillating victories over Olmedo, Roy Emerson and Mal Anderson, but he lost to Wimbleton Champion Ashley Cooper in the final.

South Africa's Sandra Reynolds and Renee Schuurman, who yesterday gained the women's final to be played tomorrow, teamed to reach the women's doubles final. They trounced Australia's Beryl Wattleworth and Helen Waters, 6-2, 6-2.

Olmedo again had a series of heat treatments today for the strained stomach muscle which forced him out of the championships.

His physician said the sore spot was much relaxed. He indicated that with several days' rest and further treatment the United States cup star from Peru would be in good shape for the Australian national championships beginning Thursday in Adelaide.

Chris Crawford of Piedmont, Calif., and Sandra Reynolds of South Africa gained the mixed doubles final by defeating Australia's Geoff Strang and Jill Langley, 6-3, 6-4.

Bills' Nordmann Out For Wichita Game

Coach John Benington of St. Louis University said today that the Billikens' giant reserve center Bill Nordmann probably would sit out tomorrow night's basketball game at Wichita because of a sprained ankle.

The 6-10 sophomore suffered the injury yesterday in practice when he fell after grabbing a rebound. Nordmann is expected to be back in action Monday night at Tulsa.

The injury to Nordmann may hamper the Billikens rebounding potential, which had been expected to be matched for the first time this season by the tall rugged Shockers when the teams renew their Missouri Valley Conference schedule.

The Billikens are 7 and 2 for the season and have been beaten by Cincinnati in their only league start.

The Wichita team, which has split evenly in 12 games altogether and in two conference games away from home, has not been defeated on its home court. Ralph Miller's Shockers have a deceptive record.

There have been only four Wichita games at home and the Shocker victims there have been Texas Western, Arizona State, and Santa Barbara and Southern California. But perhaps the significant part of the record lies in other games.

"Wichita used to play a lot at home early and run up a big record, then fall apart on the road," Benington recalled. "This season they played away earlier and in recent games away they've been beaten only by small margins."

It's a team with height and rebounding strength. The Shockers have recovered 58 per cent of the rebounds and there is no better percentage among Valley teams—not even St. Louis's 55 per cent.

"It should be a rough game on the board," Benington said in agreement, "and because we're about even in speed and over-all shooting potential, whichever team is best on the boards should win."

The St. Louis coach predicted it would be a defensive game. The Billikens have the edge there. In fact they are beginning to look like perhaps the best defensive team in the league.

In another department St. Louis may not claim quite so great an edge. That's in free-throw shooting. Wichita has hit about 73 per cent of its free throws, the Billikens only 61.4 per cent.

The leading Shocker free thrower is John Gales, 6-5 sophomore who teams with Al Tate (6-5) and Elbert Urban (6-8) on the front line. Gales has hit about 84 per cent of his free shots. But top scorer for the team is Tate with a 16-point average. Gales is averaging about 14 and Urban 11.5.

In recent games St. Louis has been winning on the strength of fairly balanced scoring, but Benington will be looking for more offensive punch. Bob Ferry is averaging 20.6.

Robinson, D'Amato Invited to Attend Officials' Meeting

PATERSON, N. J., Jan. 9 (UPI) — Middleweight Champion Ray Robinson and Cus D'Amato have been "invited" to attend next Thursday's important N.B.A. executive committee meeting at New York's Sheraton-Astor Hotel, Commissioner Abe J. Greene announced today.

The meeting, originally scheduled for Sunday, has been changed to Thursday so that committeemen may attend Thursday night's annual dinner of the Boxing Writers' Association at the Waldorf-Astoria.

D'Amato manager of heavyweight champion Patterson, and Robinson will be given "some instructions" about title defenses, explained Greene.

Patty in Semifinals

PARIS, Jan. 9 (AP)—Californian Budge Patty, Kurt Nielsen of Denmark and Jaroslav Drobny of Egypt gained the semifinals of an indoor international tennis tournament. Patty defeated Xavier Perreau-Saussine of France, 6-1, 6-3. Nielsen ousted Jacques Malosse of France, 6-0, 6-0. Drobny eliminated Jean-Claude Molinari of France, 12-10, 6-3.

Illinois U. Faces Big Battles

By a Special Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

CHAMPAIGN, Ill., Jan. 9—Illinois basketball players knock off for first-semester final exams next week, but first must meet a couple of Big Ten tests Saturday and Monday.

Michigan State and Iowa, Monday opponents with Iowa winning on its own floor, 80-68, visit Huff Gym in that succession to provide opposition to the Big Ten (2-0) leaders. Both are expected to be tougher than Wisconsin and Ohio State, beaten by the Illini.

The Spartans still rate as the stronger of the two. They were playing their fifth game in eight nights, four of them on the road, when they ran out of gas at Iowa in the second half. Coach Forddy Anderson still has fabulous Johnny Green.

Their record is 7-2, identical to Illinois, but was made against better competition. MSU's most impressive feat was reaching the final of the Dixie Classic last week before losing to powerful North Carolina State.

Illinois Coach, Harry Combes is well pleased with his team's start but has warned it will have to play its best to handle MSU and Iowa, and perhaps that won't be good enough. Chief encouragement to Combes was Illinois's ability to slide by a good Ohio State team without Capt. Roger Taylor.

Taylor broke in after 10 minutes at Wisconsin and showed he was just about over his leg muscle injury. He still rates as Illinois' hard-luck kid, though. Wednesday he went back to the hospital with a touch of flu.

Combes is hopeful his alternating centers, 6-7 Johnny Wessels and 6-8 Vern Altemeyer, can offset the board wizardry of the 6-5 Green, who can touch within five inches of the top of the backboard, and another great Spartan kangaroo, 6-3 Horace Walker. The latter has snared only two fewer rebounds than Green this season.

Northwestern, with victories over Iowa and Michigan will entertain defending champion, Indiana, tomorrow night. The game brings together two of the top scoring teams in the league as well as two of the best individual point-makers, Frank Radovich and Joe Ruklick.

The Hoosiers' Radovich and Northwestern's Ruklick each has scored 44 points in two Big Ten starts. The 6-7 Radovich has a remarkable .741 field goal percentage, hitting 20 baskets in 27 shots.

In other Saturday games, Ohio State (0-1) is at Michigan (1-1) for an afternoon regional television shot and Wisconsin (0-2) is a Purdue (0-2) at night. Iowa and Minnesota are idle.

Cooper and Rose Lose Pro Matches

MELBOURNE, Jan. 9 (AP)—Ashley Cooper and Mervyn Rose, two of the newer Australian recruits in the pro-tennis army, were beaten in straight sets in the first round of a $14,560 tourney last night.

The matches were played on a moveable floor placed in the center of the Olympic cycling track and workmen were so slow in finishing the job that Promoter Jack Kramer and ball boys had to help dry the floor with towels after its final scrubbing. Play was delayed about half an hour.

Cooper, the United States and Wimbledon amateur king, who turned pro Monday, bowed to Frank Sedgman, another Australian, 6-2, 6-2. Tony Trabert of Cincinnati, whipped Rose, 6-3, 6-3.

Thomas Named Coach

SALEM, Ill., Jan. 9 (AP)—Joe Thomas, 32, has been named head football coach of Salem Community High School replacing Howard Thurman who resigned. Thomas moves to Salem from Okmulgee, Okla., where he coached the high school athletic teams. He is married and the father of a 2-year-old boy. Mrs. Thomas is a former Flora resident.

Cepeda Named N.L. Rookie of the Year

BOSTON, Jan. 9 (AP)—Orlando Cepeda, heavy-hitting first baseman for the San Francisco Giants, today was named the National League's "Rookie of the Year" in 1958.

Cepeda, a husky 6-2, 200-pounder from Ponce, P.R., won a berth with the Giants last spring after a sensational 1957 season with Minneapolis of the American Association.

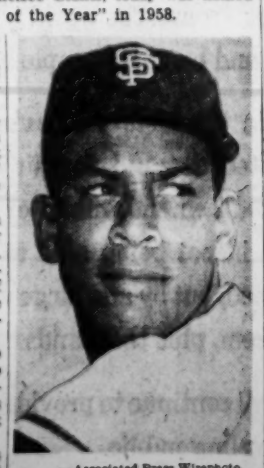

Cepeda gathered the votes on all 21 ballots counted under the supervision of B.B.W.A.A. Secretary-Treasurer Hy Hurwitz. Three writers in each of the National League cities were eligible to vote, but three ballots were missing.

The son of a former Puerto Rico League player, Pedro Cepeda, the young San Francisco slugger kept the Giants in the thick of the pennant race until late in the season.

Cepeda, who bats and throws right, wound up with a .312 batting average, seventh in the league, 25 homers and 96 runs batted in. He had 309 total bases, including 38 doubles and four triples, to rank fourth behind Ernie Banks, Willie Mays and Hank Aaron in that department.

Despite his size, Cepeda has a lot of speed. He stole 15 bases against opposing clubs last season.

Cepeda gained his chance with the Giants after hitting 25 homers, driving in 96 runs and batting .312 with Minneapolis in 1957. He still was considered a year or two away from the majors but changed that idea with his performance in spring training and the Giants kept him.

Mr. What Entered In Grand National

The world's toughest horse race, run over a course that stretches four miles, 856 yards, and has 30 jumps, will be held at Aintree, March 21.

One of the Irish hospitals sweepstakes is based on this race.

Mr. What, a 9-year-old bay gelding, will be seeking to become the fifth horse to win the famed race two straight years. Reynoldstown last accomplished the feat by winning in 1935 and 1936.

Police Raid Radio Station PANTS

MIAMI, Jan. 9 (UPI)—Detectives said today that some horse players may have been getting advance race results from a tiny transmitter in the seat of John Quartrone's pants.

Quartrone, 31, was picked up yesterday by officers who charged that he had a tiny transistor transmitter attached to his belt and that the antenna ran down his leg.

Investigators surmised that Quartrone sent race results from the track to an accomplice in a nearby automobile who in turn relayed them to someone who used the information for wagering in bookbooks.

Quartrone was charged with violation of a law which prohibits transmission of results until 30 minutes after the race.

Missouri May Show New Front

By a Special Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

COLUMBIA, Mo., Jan. 9—The Missouri Tiger basketball team has multiple incentives to defeat the Kansas Jayhawks here tomorrow night upon returning to friendly confines of a home court.

In the first place, the Tigers would like to end a losing streak that has stretched to an embarrassing six in a row and left them with a 3-9 record for the season.

In the second, they'd like to avenge an 84-73 loss to the Jayhawks in the Big Eight tournament.

And in the third, they'd like to do something about their standing over a half century of competition that has let K.U. run up a 99-50 record against the Tigers, including wins in their last five games over a three-year period.

Coach Wilbur (Sparky) Stalcup, whose team has a 2-1 record at home, but played at only a 1-8 clip on the road, may make lineup changes for the Jayhawk game, although he is undecided about all but one position. Al Abram, St. Louis (Sumner) junior, leading Tiger scorer and rebounder, is certain to be a starter, while contenders for the other positions include Rich Pullam, Edwardsville, Ill., Joe Scott, Gainesville, and Charlie Henke, Malta Bend, all sophomores, Cliff Talley, Wood River, Ill., and Mike Kirksey, Buffalo, veterans; and J. C. Leimbach, Junior College transfer from Plattsburg.

Abram paces the Tigers with a 16.3 point average, with Talley hitting at a 12.2 clip and Scott at 10.4, the only players in the double-figure range. Abram has collected 115 rebounds, with Henke ranking next with 93 and Talley following with 51.

Coach Stalcup can't complain about Tiger scoring with a 68.2 average, but it hasn't been enough to win from opponents, who have averaged 72.4.

Bowlers Practice For Meet

BUFFALO, N. Y., Jan. 9 (UPI)—A record field of 288 of the world's top bowlers will begin warming up today for the eighteenth annual Bowling Proprietors' of America All-Star tournament and $36,225 in prizes.

Each of the contestants—both men and women—will bowl two practice games today on 24 new alleys constructed in the old 174th Armory. Actual match-game competition starts at 9 a.m. tomorrow and will continue morning, afternoon and night for six days of preliminary rounds to eliminate half the field.

Thirty-four states and the territory of Hawaii are represented by the 192 men and 96 women who survived from among 7000 keglers who entered local competition.

Only four of the contestants are seeded into the finals, which begin Jan. 15. They are men's defending champion Don Carter and runner-up Buzz Fazio, both of St. Louis, and women's titleholder Merle Matthews of Long Beach, Calif., and the 1958 runner-up, Mrs. Marion Ladewig of Grand Rapids, Mich.

To keep their games sharp, these four will engage in private matches throughout the preliminary rounds for extra cash prizes.

The men bowl a 24-game preliminary round beginning tomorrow and running through Tuesday. On Wednesday the 95 high scorers roll 12 more semifinal games with the top 14, based on total pinfall for 36 games, joining Carter and Fazio in the finals. The finals, which run through Jan. 18, will be based on the Petersen point system of one point for each game won and one point for each 50 pins felled.

The women will roll four games daily through the preliminary round, with the top 47 scorers qualifying for the semifinals at the end of three days. On Wednesday, the elite 14 top women join Miss Matthews and Mrs. Ladewig in competing for a $2000 top prize.

Carter has won the championship in four of the last six All-Star tournaments, including the last two in a row.

Miss Matthews had to go down to the final frame last year in Minneapolis to win the title from Mrs. Ladewig. This was the first All-Star crown for Miss Matthews, While Mrs. Ladewig has earned the title six times in the nine years women have participated.

W.U., Beloit Renew Rivalry Tomorrow

By Robert Morrison

Some years ago, when Beloit College teams were racing up and down basketball courts and building a national reputation of sorts, the Wisconsin school and Washington University played one of the stranger games of the modern college era.

The score of that game in 19[illegible] was b[illegible] 24 - ington 21, and the recollection of it still makes local followers grin a bit.

Washington's coach, Blair Gullion, recalled some details today as he prepared his team for a renewal of the Washington-Beloit series tomorrow night at the Bears' field house at 8:15.

Dolph Stanley was the Beloit coach then. He since has become Drake University athletic director.

A Freeze Game.

"In that 24-21 game," Gullion recalled, "Stanley elected to play a freeze game. He had more speed than we had and so when his team got ahead, they just held the ball. At that we missed four easy shots under the basket near the end of the game that might have won it."

What had inspired Stanley to play the freeze game was a contest the previous season when the Bears, with an extreme, control offense, deefated high-flying Beloit, 52-49.

"Beloit came here for that game just after it had beaten DePaul in Chicago Stadium and had run up 100 poin[illegible], a number of times that season," said Gullion.

It was enough to make Stanley bust a gusset.

Now Bill Knapton, a former assistant at Marquette, is in his second season at Beloit and his present team has a 7 and 3 won-lost record. The team will be continuing a close series in which Beloit has won seven of the 13 games from Washington.

Running Team.

Beloit still is a running team, said Gullion, and as usual the Wisconsin Buccaneers offer the prospect of good basketball entertainment.

Washington will have a considerable height edge, and the visitors likely will find that the Bear team will toss the ball at the basket more often than some of the Washington teams in the past. In the latest Bear game, a 69-44 victory over weak Wayne State, Washington took 77 shots. It was one of the highest shot totals any of Gullion's teams have taken.

"Actually, some 15 of those shots were on rebound taps," the Bear coach observed, "so we really were taking just a few more shots than we normally do. It was as good a rebounding job as any team has had since I've been here. But once we rebounded eight times in a row on the offensive board and had no score to show for it."

Improved Condition.

Bob Schaulat, the Bears' 6-5 forward, who has played in just six games for a 13.5 average, may be ready to go without the bandage protecting his broken hand, Gullion said. Paul Hudgens, six-foot guard, is the only returning regular on a Beloit team that won 12 and lost nine last year. He has sparked second half rallies which gained the last two victories for Beloit.

Ferguson Triumphs

Cape Has Height on Preachers

Concordia Seminary will concede a height advantage to Southeast Missouri State when the Preachers journey down to Cape Girardeau for a basketball game tomorrow night.

The Cape Indians, 4-2 this season, have Les Hemmer, a 6-6½ graduate of Hadley Tech here and Ron Grey (6-7) on their front line. Wayne Crippen is 6-6, while veterans Tom Krebs and Doyle Mabury are 6-1 and 6-3, respectively.

Concordia's tall boys are Dennis Hartman, 6-4, Ron Blau, 6-4 and Paul Dorn 6-5. On the Preachers backline are 5-8 Bob Tewes and 6-2 Dave Ludwig. Jim Nickel, a 6-1 forward, has recovered from a knee injury and probably will see considerable action. Nickel had a 12-point average before he was injured.

Pete Pederson's athletes built up a 5-2 record before they took a 27-day layoff over Christmas. In those seven outings, Dennis Hartman recorded 192 points for a 27.4 average. Ludwig has been the playmaker, setting up 40 assists to go with his 12.7 average.

Dorn started the season as a reserve but he scored 10 points and collected 16 rebounds in the victory against an aggressive Philander Smith team.

Eastern Dog Wins

PINEHURST, N.C., Jan. 9 (AP)—Tancanhoosen Air Flight, a white and liver male pointer owned by Leb F. Bissell of Rockville, Conn., won the open shooting dog stake, last event in the forty-second annual Pinehurst field trials. The dog, handled by Carl Beattie of Manning, S.C., and Fulton, N.Y., ran a good level race and had one excellent covey find.

Doc's Girl Sis, owned by Frank Ash of Fulton, N.Y., and handled by Luther Smith, of Pinewood, S.C., was second. Flash's Rambler Boy, owned by Ambrose Sanson of Niagara Falls, Ont., and handled by Beattie, was third.

By a Special Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch

DALLAS, Tex., Jan. 9—Bob Pettit . . . Cliff Hagan . . . Hot Rod Hundley . . . Dick Garmaker . . .

These names came alive here last night as professional basketball paid its annual one-stop visit to this southwest city.

Except for this brief invasion once a year, professional basketball stirs little fever in these parts. Pettit, Hagan, Hundley, Garmaker—these are only names from St. Louis and Minneapolis, that appear in print on occasion. They materialized into real athletes and the 4217 fans on hand at Southern Methodist's Coliseum saw quite a show.

Here were the St. Louis Hawks, making a blitz of the National Basketball Association's western division, and there were the Minneapolis Lakers, also-rans but running pretty good at that.

For a change, the Lakers put a stop to St. Louis's run for another championship. Hard-pressed though it was, Minneapolis did it, 95-93.

Actually, the score was secondary. The fans came to see the great players whose names they read, and they were not disappointed.

Pettit Steals the Show.

Here were Pettit and Hagan, one-two in N.B.A. scoring, and they came out in that order just like advertised. Pettit got 29 and Hagan 26, the only two Hawks to go into double figures.

On the other side were Hot Rod and Garmaker. The latter collected 22 points and won the game outright in the last four seconds when he hit two free throws for a 4-point Laker cushion to thus make a buzzer-sounding St. Louis basket worthless.

Pettit it was who stole the show. The Hawks were down by 18 points going into the final quarter and behind by 20 just seconds later.

But Big Bob made 11 of his total points in this stanza as he personally took charge and led the Hawks to within two points of Minneapolis before Garmaker counted those charity tosses.

Pettit it was who also captured the imagination.

"Here comes Silky," went the shout from somewhere in the vast Coliseum as Pettit, with about four minutes to go and the Hawks down six points, stole the ball and drove downcourt.

He made the two points too, and the comparison to Silky Sullivan caught on. The crowd went with his every move, but he couldn't quite do it, even with the help of Hagan.

Except for a short-lived outbreak in the first quarter, the Hawks never were in the game until Pettit and Hagan went on their spree in the final minutes.

Trailed by 18 Points.

St. Louis took a slim lead twice in the opening 12 minutes, but quickly fell behind.

The Lakers, with Hot Rod Hundley at the wheel, managed a narrow 25-23 first period lead and went into halftime intermission with a 49-40 margin.

In the third quarter Minneapolis went nine-points up on the Hawks scoring 29 to 20 for a 78-60 lead as the fourth period got underway.

Trying for 37th Straight League Victory

Stockton To Speak At Dinner

Branch Rickey, who built the Gashouse Gang, and J. Roy Stockton, who glamorized it, will be speakers at the St. Louis baseball writers' dinner Monday night, Jan. 19, in the Gold Room of the Sheraton-Jefferson hotel.

Rickey, semi-retired former general manager of the Redbirds, Dodgers and Pirates, wrote from his suburban Pittsburgh home that he had changed plans for a Mexican vacation and would be here to accept the first Dr. Robert F. Hyland meritorious service award, which will be awarded him and the late Sam Breadon. Together Rickey and Breadon built a baseball dynasty that produced nine pennants and six world championships in 20 years.

Stockton, who covered the Cardinals during their championship peak, will come from his St. Petersburg (Fla.) home for a reunion with some of the players about whom he wrote so skillfully and humorously. The retired Post-Dispatch sports editor is the author of a book—"The Gashouse Gang and a Couple of Other Guys"—about the capable and colorful Cardinals of the pennant past.

Another former Post-Dispatch sports editor, John E. Wray, and the publisher of The Sporting News, J. G. Taylor Spink, will be introduced at the dinner at which awards will be made in their names. Wray and Spink were ill and unable to attend the writers' fiftieth anniversary dinner last January when it was announced that awards would be made annually in their behalf and for the late Dr. Hyland and John B. Sheridan, former Globe-Democrat sports editor.

Tickets for the dinner are available at $10 each from St. Louis chapter, BBWAA, Post Office Box 1003, St. Louis (88), Mo.

Bowling

By John J. Archibald

The Answer Man

Archibald

"What if a guy hasn't bowled in a league this season or last season either—can he get in the Booster division?" inquired the voice.

It was one of hundreds of questions that A.B.C. officials have received since establishing their temporary office here in August. Right now the phones are ringing more frequently than ever before because the deadline for entering the national meet is Tuesday night.

This particular questioner was told by Joe Smolen, who is in charge of the entries, that a man who has not bowled in recent seasons may compete in the Booster division, but that he must assume a theoretical average of 170 when figuring his team's average. Five-man teams with combined marks of 850 or less are eligible for the Booster prizes.

These final days of accepting entries are similar to the week before Christmas for a department store. Many bowlers put off filling out their entry blanks and send-in their checks ($10 per man per event) until virtually the last minute.

This time the A.B.C. representatives are welcoming a final rush, however. The total number of entires is still hundreds short of the 5350-team total needed to fill the schedule when the tournament is held at the Armory from Feb. 14 to April 23.

Jay Batchelor is the supervisor of the A.B.C. tournament. His job has many facets, but its chief duties include the arranging of all contracts for the construction and operation of the big meet, promoting the event for many months in the city where it is to be held, and supervising the building of the tournament lanes.

Work Starts Monday

The construction work will start Monday. Trucks loaded with lumber, tools and even bowling pins will begin driving onto the Armory drill floor. Some of the 38 lanes are expected to be laid within a week. In a short time, the installation of the automatic pinspotters will begin, and it will be up to Batchelor to see that everything is done according to A.B.C. tournament regulations and custom.

It is Smolen's job to make sure that there will be 38 teams of men pouring in and out of the Armory every few hours. Doubles and singles entries will roll during the day, usually starting at 8 a.m., and the five-man teams will shoot either at 7 or 9:30 p.m.

When an entry blank and a check are received, the senders are assigned to the date requested whenever possible and a letter of confirmation is sent. If the entrants live more than 75 miles from St. Louis they will bowl their doubles and singles the day after the team event, unless otherwise requested.

Not only the date, but the time of day and the lanes to be used are assigned when the entry blank is received. This information is then forwarded to the A.B.C. office in Milwaukee, where the programs are printed.

One of the more common questions that the A.B.C. receives after the tournament is under way concerns whether partners for the doubles event may be changed after being submitted on the entry form. The answer is yes, as long as the tournament heads are notified at least 24 hours in advance.

Occasionally there are doubles teams made up involving strangers whose original partners were unable to make the tournament. In 1949 this happened to Don Von Boxel, of Green Bay, Wis., and Gene Bernhardt, of Sturgeon Bay, Wis. After meeting on the train to the A.B.C. in Atlantic City they decided to pair up.

Although both had averages in the 180s, Boxel and Bernhardt combined for a three-game total of 1332 and the first prize of $1000.

22 More St. Louis Teams Enter A.B.C.

Twenty-two more St. Louis bowling teams have entered the American Bowling Congress tourney to be held here, beginning Feb. 14.

The latest entries:

Simplex, Larry Hamilton; Bryan Printing Co., James Bryan; U.S. Coast Guard No. 2, William Ihrig; Skyliners 1405th AB Group, Jesse Martin; South Side Furniture, Walter Reasoner; Seven Up, Raymond Flint; Sav-Ware-Devoti Co., Andrew Devoti; Insul-Wool Co., Mario Fertile; Carpenters Local 1596 No. 1, Norman Barth; Carpenters Local 1596 No. 2, Alex Wind; Cardinal Finance, Kelsey Lowe; Carnival Bar, Frank Skerik Jr.; G.S.A. Prep Teams in Busy Weekend; DuBourg Opens Against Mercy

By Harold Tuthill

Nothing like starting the Catholic Athletic Conference basketball chase with a bang. The six-team league will play two rounds in three days, competing tonight and Sunday afternoon in the opening of a double round-robin program.

Du Bourg, the defending champion, and McBride are expected to fight it out for first place honors again with St. Mary's, a dark horse. Mercy, De Andreis and Laboure probably will trail.

Du Bourg, which entertains Mercy tonight, plays at Laboure Sunday. McBride drew St. Mary's and Mercy as its first two opponents. De Andreis entertains Laboure in the third game tonight.

Interest elsewhere will center on the progress of the district's three major unbeaten powers—Beaumont, Lincoln of East St. Louis and Belleville Cathedral.

Crusaders on Long Streak.

Beaumont, 10-0, opposes O'Fallon Tech at St. Louis U. High tomorrow afternoon and should not have too much trouble picking up its eleventh victory against O'Fallon which has won just one in nine.

Lincoln (9-0) plays at Decatur tonight against an Eisenhower team that has proved troublesome to East Side opponents. Eisenhower bowed to East St. Louis in overtime, 72-68, but thumped Belleville last week, 69 to 38.

Cathedral, currently 11-0, entertains Marquette with a dual purpose in mind. The host Crusaders would like to register their twelfth triumph of the season as well as gain their thirty-seventh straight Catholic League decision. Their hardwood streak started late in the 1953-54 season.

Lutheran at Pattonville.

John Burroughs, 2-1 in non-league play, entertains Country Day (0-4) in the first round of the ABC. Tomorrow Principia (0-4) visits Western (1-3). Lutheran Central, new member of the circuit, now 1-4, will try to break a four-game losing streak at Pattonville, which is 1-0 in North County competition and 3-2 overall.

One of the most interesting games in the second round of the Suburban Big Ten is that between St. Charles and University City tonight on the Indians' floor. Big DeWayne Bond will try to guide the Pirates to their tenth triumph in 11 starts against a U. City team which sports a 5-1 record.

"We've had seven practices since we lost to Normandy in the Christmas tournament and I've had trouble getting the boys 'up'," St. Charles coach Gene Bartow said recently. "When you keep on winning by 20 or more points as we were doing in the early part of the season, it's hard to convince the boys that they are doing some things wrong. We know now how much Harold Oetting's 'bird-dogging' meant to us last winter." . . .

Hancock, 1-0 in Group II and 8-1 overall, visits Mehlville, 1-1, in one of four league engagements. Others are Brentwood (1-0) at Eureka (0-1); Affton (0-1) at Clayton (1-0) and Lindbergh (0-1) at Bayless (1-0).

Alton vs. Collinsville.

Three first round winners will try to improve their Group III (North County) positions. Parkway plays at Hazlewood (0-1), Wellston at Jennings (0-1) and Kinloch at Maryland Heights, likewise 0-1. Berkeley, making its first league start, entertains Fairview (0-1).

Champion Collinsville, leading the Southwestern Conference chase with a 3-0 record, takes on highly-regarded Alton, 2-1, in the league and 10-1 overall, the only loss being to East St. Louis, 67-62.

East St. Louis (2-2) visits Wood River (2-1) the home of high-scoring Jerry Messick who has averaged 27.3 points in three SW contests. The third game tonight has Edwardsville (1-2) at Belleville (0-4).

Tomorrow's three-ply program is Belleville at Alton, Collinsville at Edwardsville and Wood River at Granite City.

St. Louis U. High and C.B.C. will match goals Sunday afternoon on the Cadet floor in another meeting between the strong independent rivals. The Junior Bills beat C.B.C. three times in a 28-0 season last winter, but this time the Cadets would seem to hold a slight edge. They are 11-1 as compared to 5-3 for the Blue and White.

Baseball

JIM RIVERA, who hit only .224 for the Chicago White Sox last season, has signed his 1959 baseball contract. . . . Pitchers HERB SCORE and DON FERRARESE, utility infielder BILLY HARRELL and rookie outfielder DON DILLARD have signed with Cleveland. . . . The Indians now have 21 players under contract.

The CINCINNATI REDLEGS announced that pitchers and catchers will begin spring training at Tampa, Fla., Feb. 23. . . . The remainder of the squad will report three days later. . . . Savannah and Topeka, two Cincinnati farm clubs, will train at Plant City, Fla.

MILWAUKEE'S BRAVES will hold their sixth annual baseball school at Rushville, Neb., June 23-25. . . . KANSAS CITY will meet only one minor league club — Dallas— in a spring exhibition game. . . . The game will be played at Dallas, April 4.

March of Dimes Pin Event Set

A dozen models will provide the glamour, but the top attraction will be a bowling match between ballplayers and a press-radio-TV team in a March of Dimes benefit at 2 p.m., Jan. 18 at Dellwood Lanes, Lou Adamie, special events chairman of the polio fund organization, announced.

Gene Green, Roy Sievers and Del Rice are the first three ballplayers to enter the match. Jack Buck, Bob Ingham, Jim Butler, France Laux and Rex Davis form the opposition. Admission will be free.

Billiken Swimmers Meet Missouri Miners

Coach Henry Stroer's St. Louis University swimmers open their season against the Missouri School of Mines in a dual meet tomorrow at two o'clock at the Billiken pool, 3672 West Pine. There is no admission charge.

N.C. State Five Gains 11th Win

NEW YORK, Jan. 9 (AP)—What was shrugged off as a year of rebuilding looks as if it could turn out to be a good deal more for Frank McGuire and his North Carolina Tar Heels.

The Tar Heels, still well fed by McGuire's talent pipeline from the north, bagged their ninth victory in 10 starts against grade A opposition last night with a 44-34 defeat of Wake Forest.

So far the Tar Heels, beaten only by Michigan State, have been outgunning them in the race and shoot matches and outsmarting them when the opposition tries a slowdown.

Wake Forest tried it last night, holding the ball four minutes at the start of the game, attempting only seven shots in the first half and generally using possession to try to match North Carolina's superior height and manpower.

The Tar Heels, trying rival North Carolina State's 4-0 record in the Atlantic Coast Conference, shook loose for a 17-11 halftime advantage and stayed comfortably ahead the rest of the way.

West Virginia, with Jerry West whipping in eight of his 32 points in overtime, downed Penn State, 89-81. It was the Mounties' 11th victory in 14 starts.

St. Bonaventure, one of the nation's four major unbeaten teams, kept its record intact despite sloppy play by defeating Iona (N. Y.), 68-54, in the opener of a doubleheader at New York's Madison Square Garden. Tom Smith, a promising 6-4 sophomore, scored 19 points to lead the Bonnies to their seventh in a row. Seton Hall won the other part of the doubleheader, nipping Muhlenberg, 57-55, on Hugh Dunnion's jump shot with 12 seconds left.

Centenary bagged the 63rd and last title of the holiday tournament avalanche, spilling Spring Hill, 71-57, in the Senior Bowl final at Mobile. Murray (Ky.) took consolation honors, 74-71, over Tennessee Tech.

Mesger's 706 Total High for All-Stars

Bill Pace rolled an even 700 total to help the first-place McKees gain a 3-0 victory over Venice Village in the St. Louis All-Star League tenpin action last night at the Arcade Lanes.

The Benders, with Elvin Mesger tallying a 706, including a 268 game, defeated Rauschers, 3-0. Hollywood Bowl nosed out Roncaro, 2-1, and B. & B. did the same to the Veneers. Ken Rothermich had the league's 269 high single game in his 687 total. Lee Badaracco of Roncaro also rolled 687.

Benders had a team high three total of 3089, including a 1061 game, and B. and B. came through with team high single of 1070 in a 3035 total.

St. Louis Youngster Victor in Three Sets

PERTH, Australia, Jan. 9 (AP)—Barry MacKay's plan to "Murder Butch" came a cropper today.

"Butch" is 18-year-old Earl Buchholz of St. Louis, who upset his Dayton (O.) rival in the semifinals of the Western Australia tennis championships, 10-8, 6-3, 6-1.

Young Buchholz thus qualified to play Spain's Andres Gimeno for the championship on Sunday. Gimeno gained the final round by default from the United States Davis Cup star, Alex Olmedo, who withdrew because of a strained stomach muscle.

MacKay, a 6-4 cannonballer, declared before he took the court against Buchholz that "I will murder Butch and then I will get my revenge on Gimeno." The Spaniard had beaten the Ohioan earlier at Melbourne.

It didn't work out that way. Buchholz, regarded as one of America's finest prospects, was all over the court. He scored with sharp passing shots on both sides, flicked tricky drop shots just over the net and angled volleys out of reach of the bedeviled MacKay.

The big Ohioan seemed to collapse after a long first set and young Earl ran off the match in one hour and 20 minutes.

MacKay started aggressively like the player who whipped Sweden's Ulf Schmidt in straight sets in the previous round.

He took advantage of a double fault and three passing shots to crack Buchholz in the opening game and held advantage until the St. Louis youth managed to break service in the eighth game to knot the score.

Then the dogged match, played in sweltering heat, followed service until the eighteenth game when MacKay fell into volleying errors and Buchholz clinched the set with a forehand passing shot.

In the second set MacKay failing to get to the net, was broken at love in the second game and won only one point in losing service again in the sixth.

MacKay managed a single rebreak in the seventh game, but Buchholz tightened to run out the set.

The third set was a complete rout as MacKay made only half hearted gestures at getting into the fight.

The rangy crewcut St. Louis boy, son of a professional, reached the last round of the New South Wales tournament at Sydney with scintillating victories over Olmedo, Roy Emerson and Mal Anderson, but he lost to Wimbleton Champion Ashley Cooper in the final.

South Africa's Sandra Reynolds and Renee Schuurman, who yesterday gained the women's final to be played tomorrow, teamed to reach the women's doubles final. They trounced Australia's Beryl Wattleworth and Helen Waters, 6-2, 6-2.

Olmedo again had a series of heat treatments today for the strained stomach muscle which forced him out of the championships.

His physician said the sore spot was much relaxed. He indicated that with several days' rest and further treatment the United States cup star from Peru would be in good shape for the Australian national championships beginning Thursday in Adelaide.

Chris Crawford of Piedmont, Calif., and Sandra Reynolds of South Africa gained the mixed doubles final by defeating Australia's Geoff Strang and Jill Langley, 6-3, 6-4.

Mr. What Entered In Grand National

The world's toughest horse race, run over a course that stretches four miles, 856 yards, and has 30 jumps, will be held at Aintree, March 21.

One of the Irish hospitals sweepstakes is based on this race.

Mr. What, a 9-year-old bay gelding, will be seeking to become the fifth horse to win the famed race two straight years. Reynoldstown last accomplished the feat by winning in 1935 and 1936.

Police Raid Radio Station PANTS

MIAMI, Jan. 9 (UPI)—Detectives said today that some horse players may have been getting advance race results from a tiny transmitter in the seat of John Quartrone's pants.

Quartrone, 31, was picked up yesterday by officers who charged that he had a tiny transistor transmitter attached to his belt and that the antenna ran down his leg.

Investigators surmised that Quartrone sent race results from the track to an accomplice in a nearby automobile who in turn relayed them to someone who used the information for wagering in handbooks.

Quartrone was charged with violation of a law which prohibits transmission of results until 30 minutes after each race.

Bills' Nordmann Out For Wichita Game

Coach John Benington of St. Louis University said today that the Billikens' giant reserve center Bill Nordmann probably would sit out tomorrow night's basketball game at Wichita because of a sprained ankle.

The 6-10 sophomore suffered the injury yesterday in practice when he fell after grabbing a rebound. Nordmann is expected to be back in action Monday night at Tulsa.

The injury to Nordmann may hamper the Billikens rebounding potential, which had been expected to be matched for the first time this season by the tall rugged Shockers when the teams renew their Missouri Valley Conference schedule.

The Billikens are 7 and 2 for the season and have been beaten by Cincinnati in their only league start.

The Wichita team, which has split evenly in 12 games altogether and in two conference games away from home, has not been defeated on its home court. Ralph Miller's Shockers have a deceptive record.

There have been only four Wichita games at home and the Shocker victims there have been Texas Western, Arizona State, and Santa Barbara and Southern California. But perhaps the significant part of the record lies in other games.

"Wichita used to play a lot at home early and run up a big record, then fall apart on the road," Benington recalled. "This season they played away earlier and in recent games away they've been beaten only by small margins."

It's a team with height and rebounding strength. The Shockers have recovered 58 per cent of the rebounds and there is no better percentage among Valley teams—not even St. Louis's 55 per cent.

"It should be a rough game on the board," Benington said in agreement, "and because we're about even in speed and over-all shooting potential, whichever team is best on the boards should win."

The St. Louis coach predicted it would be a defensive game. The Billikens have the edge there. In fact they are beginning to look like perhaps the best defensive team in the league.

In another department St. Louis may not claim quite so great an edge. That's in free-throw shooting. Wichita has hit about 73 per cent of its free throws, the Billikens only 61.4 per cent.

The leading Shocker free thrower is John Gales, 6-5 sophomore who teams with Al Tate (6-5) and Elbert Urban (6-8) on the front line. Gales has hit about 84 per cent of his free shots. But top scorer for the team is Tate with a 16-point average. Gales is averaging about 14 and Urban 11.5.

In recent games St. Louis has been winning on the strength of fairly balanced scoring, but Benington will be looking for more offensive punch. Bob Ferry is averaging 20.6.

Robinson, D'Amato Invited to Attend Officials' Meeting

PATERSON, N. J., Jan. 9 (UPI) — Middleweight Champion Ray Robinson and Cus D'Amato have been "invited" to attend next Thursday's important N.B.A. executive committee meeting at New York's Sheraton-Astor Hotel, Commissioner Abe J. Greene announced today.

The meeting, originally scheduled for Sunday, has been changed to Thursday so that committeemen may attend Thursday night's annual dinner of the Boxing Writers' Association at the Waldorf-Astoria.

D'Amato manager of heavyweight champion Patterson, and Robinson will be given "some instructions" about title defenses, explained Greene.

Patty in Semifinals

PARIS, Jan. 9 (AP)—Californian Budge Patty, Kurt Nielsen of Denmark and Jaroslav Drobny of Egypt gained the semifinals of an indoor international tennis tournament. Patty defeated Xavier Perreau-Saussine of France, 6-1, 6-3. Nielsen ousted Jacques Malosse of France, 6-0, 6-0. Drobny eliminated Jean-Claude Molinari of France, 12-10, 6-3.

Cepeda Named N.L. Rookie of the Year

BOSTON, Jan. 9 (AP) — Orlando Cepeda, heavy-hitting first baseman for the San Francisco Giants, today was named the National League's "Rookie of the Year" in 1958.

Cepeda, a husky 6-2, 200-pounder from Ponce, P.R., won a berth with the Giants last spring after a sensational 1957 season with Minneapolis of the American Association.

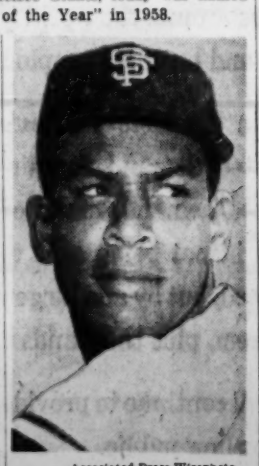

Cepeda gathered the votes on all 21 ballots counted under the supervision of B.B.W.A.A. Secretary-Treasurer Hy Hurwitz. Three writers in each of the National League cities were eligible to vote, but three ballots were missing.

The son of a former Puerto Rico League player, Pedro Cepeda, the young San Francisco slugger kept the Giants in the thick of the pennant race until late in the season.

Cepeda, who bats and throws right, wound up with a .312 batting average, seventh in the league, 25 homers and 96 runs batted in. He had 309 total bases, including 38 doubles and four triples, to rank fourth behind Ernie Banks, Willie Mays and Hank Aaron in that department.

Despite his size, Cepeda has a lot of speed. He stole 15 bases against opposing clubs last season.

Cepeda gained his chance with the Giants after hitting 25 homers, driving in 96 runs and batting .312 with Minneapolis in 1957. He still was considered a year or two away from the majors but changed that idea with his performance in spring training and the Giants kept him.

Illinois U. Faces Big Battles

CHAMPAIGN, Ill., Jan. 9—Illinois basketball players knock off for first-semester final exams next week, but first must meet a couple of Big Ten tests Saturday and Monday.

Michigan State and Iowa, Monday opponents with Iowa winning on its own floor, 80-68, visit Huff Gym in that succession to provide opposition to the Big Ten (2-0) leaders. Both are expected to be tougher than Wisconsin and Ohio State, beaten by the Illini.

The Spartans still rate as the stronger of the two. They were playing their fifth game in eight nights, four of them on the road, when they ran out of gas at Iowa in the second half. Coach Forddy Anderson still has fabulous Johnny Green.

Their record is 7-2, identical to Illinois, but was made against better competition. MSU's most impressive feat was reaching the final of the Dixie Classic last week before losing to powerful North Carolina State.

Illinois Coach, Harry Combes is well pleased with his team's start but has warned it will have to play its best to handle MSU and Iowa, and perhaps that won't be good enough. Chief encouragement to Combes was Illinois's ability to slide by a good Ohio State team without Capt. Roger Taylor.

Taylor broke in after 10 minutes at Wisconsin and showed he was just about over his leg muscle injury. He still rates as Illinois' hard-luck kid, though. Wednesday he went back to the hospital with a touch of flu.

Combes is hopeful his alternating centers, 6-7 Johnny Wessels and 6-8 Vern Altemeyer, can offset the board wizardry of the 6-5 Green, who can touch within five inches of the top of the backboard, and another great Spartan kangaroo, 6-3 Horace Walker. The latter has snared only two fewer rebounds than Green this season.

Northwestern, with victories over Iowa and Michigan will entertain defending champion, Indiana, tomorrow night. The game brings together two of the top scoring teams in the league as well as two of the best individual point-makers, Frank Radovich and Joe Ruklick.

The Hoosiers' Radovich and Northwestern's Ruklick each has scored 44 points in two Big Ten starts. The 6-7 Radovich has a remarkable .741 field goal percentage, hitting 20 baskets in 27 shots.

In other Saturday games, Ohio State (0-1) is at Michigan (1-1) for an afternoon regional television shot and Wisconsin (0-2) is a Purdue (0-2) at night. Iowa and Minnesota are idle.

Cooper and Rose Lose Pro Matches

MELBOURNE, Jan. 9 (AP)—Ashley Cooper and Mervyn Rose, two of the newer Australian recruits in the pro-tennis army, were beaten in straight sets in the first round of a $14,560 tourney last night.

The matches were played on a moveable floor placed in the center of the Olympic cycling track and workmen were so slow in finishing the job that Promoter Jack Kramer and ball boys had to help dry the floor with towels after its final scrubbing. Play was delayed about half an hour.

Cooper, the United States and Wimbledon amateur king, who turned pro Monday, bowed to Frank Sedgman, another Australian, 6-2, 6-2. Tony Trabert of Cincinnati, whipped Rose, 6-3, 6-3.

Thomas Named Coach

SALEM, Ill., Jan. 9 (AP)—Joe Thomas, 32, has been named head football coach of Salem Community High School replacing Howard Thurman who resigned. Thomas moves to Salem from Okmulgee, Okla., where he coached the high school athletic teams. He is married and the father of a 2-year-old boy. Mrs. Thomas is a former Flora resident.

Missouri May Show New Front

By a Special Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

COLUMBIA, Mo., Jan. 9—The Missouri Tiger basketball team has multiple incentives to defeat the Kansas Jayhawks here tomorrow night upon returning to friendly confines of a home court.

In the first place, the Tigers would like to end a losing streak that has stretched to an embarrassing six in a row and left them with a 3-9 record for the season.

In the second, they'd like to avenge an 84-73 loss to the Jayhawks in the Big Eight tournament.

And in the third, they'd like to do something about their standing over a half century of competition that has let K.U. run up a 99-50 record against the Tigers, including wins in their last five games over a three-year period.

Coach Wilbur (Sparky) Stalcup, whose team has a 2-1 record at home, but played at only a 1-8 clip on the road, may make lineup changes for the Jayhawk game, although he is undecided about all but one position. Al Abram, St. Louis (Sumner) junior, leading Tiger scorer and rebounder, is certain to be a starter, while contenders for the other positions include Rich Pullam, Edwardsville, Ill., Joe Scott, Gainesville, and Charlie Henke, Malta Bend, all sophomores, Cliff Talley, Wood River, Ill., and Mike Kirksey, Buffalo, veterans; and J. C. Leimbach, Junior College transfer from Plattsburg.

Abram paces the Tigers with a 16.3 point average, with Talley hitting at a 12.2 clip and Scott at 10.4, the only players in the double-figure range. Abram has collected 115 rebounds, with Henke ranking next with 93 and Talley following with 51.

Coach Stalcup can't complain about Tiger scoring with a 68.2 average, but it hasn't been enough to win from opponents, who have averaged 72.4.

Bowlers Practice For Meet

BUFFALO, N. Y., Jan. 9 (UPI)—A record field of 288 of the world's top bowlers will begin warming up today for the eighteenth annual Bowling Proprietors' of America All-Star tournament and $36,225 in prizes.

Each of the contestants—both men and women—will bowl two practice games today on 24 new alleys constructed in the old 174th Armory. Actual match-game competition starts at 9 a.m. tomorrow and will continue morning, afternoon and night for six days of preliminary rounds to eliminate half the field.

Thirty-four states and the territory of Hawaii are represented by the 192 men and 96 women who survived from among 7000 keglers who entered local competition.

Only four of the contestants are seeded into the finals, which begin Jan. 15. They are men's defending champion Don Carter and runner-up Buzz Fazio, both of St. Louis, and women's titleholder Merle Matthews of Long Beach, Calif., and the 1958 runner-up, Mrs. Marion Ladewig of Grand Rapids, Mich.

To keep their games sharp, these four will engage in private matches throughout the preliminary rounds for extra cash prizes.

The men bowl a 24-game preliminary round beginning tomorrow and running through Tuesday. On Wednesday the 95 high scorers roll 12 more semifinal games with the top 14, based on total pinfall for 36 games, joining Carter and Fazio in the finals. The finals, which run through Jan. 18, will be based on the Petersen point system of one point for each game won and one point for each 50 pins felled.

The women will roll four games daily through the preliminary round, with the top 47 scorers qualifying for the semifinals at the end of three days. On Wednesday, the elite 14 top women join Miss Matthews and Mrs. Ladewig in competing for a $2000 top prize.

Carter has won the championship in four of the last six All-Star tournaments, including the last two in a row.

Miss Matthews had to go down to the final frame last year in Minneapolis to win the title from Mrs. Ladewig. This was the first All-Star crown for Miss Matthews, While Mrs. Ladewig has earned the title six times in the nine years women have participated.

Kentucky-LSU Game Tomorrow on KSD-TV

The Kentucky-Louisiana State basketball game tomorrow at Baton Rouge will be televised by Post-Dispatch Station KSD-TV, starting at 2 p.m.

Final post-season football game of the season will be telecast Sunday by KSD-TV when the annual Pro Bowl game is played in Los Angeles. Air time is 3 p.m.

There will be no pro basketball game telecast Sunday.

W.U., Beloit Renew Rivalry Tomorrow

By Robert Morrison

Some years ago, when Beloit College teams were racing up and down basketball courts and building a national reputation of sorts, the Wisconsin school and Washington University played one of the stranger games of the modern college era.

The score of that game in 19[illegible] was b[illegible] 24-[illegible] ington 21, and the recollection of it still makes local followers grin a bit.

Washington's coach, Blair Gullion, recalled some details today as he prepared his team for a renewal of the Washington-Beloit series tomorrow night at the Bears' field house at 8:15.

Dolph Stanley was the Beloit coach then. He since has become Drake University athletic director.

A Freeze Game.

"In that 24-21 game," Gullion recalled, "Stanley elected to play a freeze game. He had more speed than we had and so when his team got ahead, they just held the ball. At that we missed four easy shots under the basket near the end of the game that might have won it."

What had inspired Stanley to play the freeze game was a contest the previous season when the Bears, with an extreme, control offense, deefated high-flying Beloit, 52-49.

"Beloit came here for that game just after it had beaten DePaul in Chicago Stadium and had run up 100 poin[illegible] a number of times that season," said Gullion.

It was enough to make Stanley bust a gusset.

Now Bill Knapton, a former assistant at Marquette, is in his second season at Beloit and his present team has a 7 and 3 won-lost record. The team will be continuing a close series in which Beloit has won seven of the 13 games from Washington.

Running Team.

Beloit still is a running team, said Gullion, and as usual the Wisconsin Buccaneers offer the prospect of good basketball entertainment.

Washington will have a considerable height edge, and the visitors likely will find that the Bear team will toss the ball at the basket more often than some of the Washington teams in the past. In the latest Bear game, a 69-44 victory over weak Wayne State, Washington took 77 shots. It was one of the highest shot totals any of Gullion's teams have taken.

"Actually, some 15 of those shots were on rebound taps," the Bear coach observed, "so we really were taking just a few more shots than we normally do. It was as good a rebounding job as any team has had since I've been here. But once we rebounded eight times in a row on the offensive board and had no score to show for it."

Improved Condition.

Bob Schaulat, the Bears' 6-5 forward, who has played in just six games for a 13.5 average, may be ready to go without the bandage protecting his broken hand, Gullion said. Paul Hudgens, six-foot guard, is the only returning regular on a Beloit team that won 12 and lost nine last year. He has sparked second half rallies which gained the last two victories for Beloit.

Ferguson Triumphs

Cape Has Height on Preachers

Concordia Seminary will concede a height advantage to Southeast Missouri State when the Preachers journey down to Cape Girardeau for a basketball game tomorrow night.

The Cape Indians, 4-2 this season, have Les Hemmer, a 6-6½ graduate of Hadley Tech here and Ron Grey (6-7) on their front line. Wayne Crippen is 6-6, while veterans Tom Krebs and Doyle Mabury are 6-1 and 6-3, respectively.

Concordia's tall boys are Dennis Hartman, 6-4, Ron Blau, 6-4 and Paul Dorn 6-5. On the Preachers backline are 5-8 Bob Tewes and 6-2 Dave Ludwig. Jim Nickel, a 6-1 forward, has recovered from a knee injury and probably will see considerable action. Nickel had a 12-point average before he was injured.

Pete Pederson's athletes built up a 5-2 record before they took a 27-day layoff over Christmas. In those seven outings, Dennis Hartman recorded 192 points for a 27.4 average. Ludwig has been the playmaker, setting up 40 assists to go with his 12.7 average.

Dorn started the season as a reserve but he scored 10 points and collected 16 rebounds in the victory against an aggressive Philander Smith team.

Eastern Dog Wins

PINEHURST, N.C., Jan. 9 (AP)—Tancanhoosen Air Flight, a white and liver male pointer owned by Leb F. Bissell of Rockville, Conn., won the open shooting dog stake, last event in the forty-second annual Pinehurst field trials. The dog, handled by Carl Beattie of Manning, S.C., and Fulton, N.Y., ran a good level race and had one excellent covey find.

Doc's Girl Sis, owned by Frank Ash of Fulton, N.Y., and handled by Luther Smith, of Pinewood, S.C., was second. Flash's Rambler Boy, owned by Ambrose Sanson of Niagara Falls, Ont., and handled by Beattie, was third.

By a Special Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch

DALLAS, Tex., Jan. 9—Bob Pettit . . . Cliff Hagan . . . Hot Rod Hundley . . . Dick Garmaker . . .

These names came alive here last night as professional basketball paid its annual one-stop visit to this southwest city.

Except for this brief invasion once a year, professional basketball stirs little fever in these parts. Pettit, Hagan, Hundley, Garmaker—these are only names from St. Louis and Minneapolis, that appear in print on occasion. They materialized into real athletes and the 4217 fans on hand at Southern Methodist's Coliseum saw quite a show.

Here were the St. Louis Hawks, making a blitz of the National Basketball Association's western division, and there were the Minneapolis Lakers, also-rans but running pretty good at that.

For a change, the Lakers put a stop to St. Louis's run for another championship. Hard-pressed though it was, Minneapolis did it, 95-93.

Actually, the score was secondary. The fans came to see the great players whose names they read, and they were not disappointed.

Pettit Steals the Show.

Here were Pettit and Hagan, one-two in N.B.A. scoring, and they came out in that order just like advertised. Pettit got 29 and Hagan 26, the only two Hawks to go into double figures.

On the other side were Hot Rod and Garmaker. The latter collected 22 points and won the game outright in the last four seconds when he hit two free throws for a 4-point Laker cushion to thus make a buzzer-sounding St. Louis basket worthless.

Pettit it was who stole the show. The Hawks were down by 18 points going into the final quarter and behind by 20 just seconds later.

But Big Bob made 11 of his total points in this stanza as he personally took charge and led the Hawks to within two points of Minneapolis before Garmaker counted those charity tosses.

Pettit it was who also captured the imagination.

"Here comes Silky," went the shout from somewhere in the vast Coliseum as Pettit, with about four minutes to go and the Hawks down six points, stole the ball and drove downcourt.

He made the two points too, and the comparison to Silky Sullivan caught on. The crowd went with his every move, but he couldn't quite do it, even with the help of Hagan.

Except for a short-lived outbreak in the first quarter, the Hawks never were in the game until Pettit and Hagan went on their spree in the final minutes.

Trailed by 18 Points.

St. Louis took a slim lead twice in the opening 12 minutes, but quickly fell behind.

The Lakers, with Hot Rod Hundley at the wheel, managed a narrow 25-23 first period lead and went into half-time intermission with a 49-40 margin.

In the third quarter Minneapolis went nine-points up on the Hawks scoring 29 to 20 for a 78-60 lead as the fourth period got underway.

Prep Teams in Busy Weekend; DuBourg Opens Against Mercy

By Harold Tuthill

Nothing like starting the Catholic Athletic Conference basketball chase with a bang. The six-team league will play two rounds in three days, competing tonight and Sunday afternoon in the opening of a double round-robin program.

Du Bourg, the defending champion, and McBride are expected to fight it out for first place honors again with St. Mary's, a dark horse. Mercy, De Andreis and Laboure probably will trail.

Du Bourg, which entertains Mercy tonight, plays at Laboure Sunday. McBride drew St. Mary's and Mercy as its first two opponents. De Andreis entertains Laboure in the third game tonight.

Interest elsewhere will center on the progress of the district's three major unbeaten powers—Beaumont, Lincoln of East St. Louis and Belleville Cathedral.

Crusaders on Long Streak.

Beaumont, 10-0, opposes O'Fallon Tech at St. Louis U. High tomorrow afternoon and should not have too much trouble picking up its eleventh victory against O'Fallon which has won just one in nine.

Lincoln (9-0) plays at Decatur tonight against an Eisenhower team that has proved troublesome to East Side opponents. Eisenhower bowed to East St. Louis in overtime, 72-68, but thumped Belleville last week, 69 to 38.

Cathedral, currently 11-0, entertains Marquette with a dual purpose in mind. The host Crusaders would like to register their twelfth triumph of the season as well as gain their thirty-seventh straight Catholic League decision. Their hardwood streak started late in the 1953-54 season.

Lutheran at Pattonville.

John Burroughs, 2-1 in non-league play, entertains Country Day (0-4) in the first round of the ABC. Tomorrow Principia (0-4) visits Western (1-3). Lutheran Central, new member of the circuit, now 1-4, will try to break a four-game losing streak at Pattonville, which is 1-0 in North County competition and 3-2 overall.

One of the most interesting games in the second round of the Suburban Big Ten is that between St. Charles and University City tonight on the Indians' floor. Big DeWayne Bond will try to guide the Pirates to their tenth triumph in 11 starts against a U. City team which sports a 5-1 record.

"We've had seven practices since we lost to Normandy in the Christmas tournament and I've had trouble getting the boys 'up'," St. Charles coach Gene Bartow said recently. "When you keep on winning by 20 or more points as we were doing in the early part of the season, it's hard to convince the boys that they are doing some things wrong. We know now how much Harold Oetting's 'bird-dogging' meant to us last winter." . . .

Hancock, 1-0 in Group II and 8-1 overall, visits Mehlville, 1-1, in one of four league engagements. Others are Brentwood (1-0) at Eureka (0-1); Affton (0-1) at Clayton (1-0) and Lindbergh (0-1) at Bayless (1-0).

Alton vs. Collinsville.

Three first round winners will try to improve their Group III (North County) positions. Parkway plays at Hazlewood (0-1), Wellston at Jennings (0-1) and Kinloch at Maryland Heights, likewise 0-1. Berkeley, making its first league start, entertains Fairview (0-1).

Champion Collinsville, leading the Southwestern Conference chase with a 3-0 record, takes on highly-regarded Alton, 2-1, in the league and 10-1 overall, the only loss being to East St. Louis, 67-62.

East St. Louis (2-2) visits Wood River (2-1) the home of high-scoring Jerry Messick who has averaged 27.3 points in three SW contests. The third game tonight has Edwardsville (1-2) at Belleville (0-4).

Tomorrow's three-ply program is Belleville at Alton, Collinsville at Edwardsville and Wood River at Granite City.

St. Louis U. High and C.B.C. will match goals Sunday afternoon on the Cadet floor in another meeting between the strong independent rivals. The Junior Bills beat C.B.C. three times in a 28-0 season last winter, but this time the Cadets would seem to hold a slight edge. They are 11-1 as compared to 5-3 for the Blue and White.

N.C. State Five Gains 11th Win

NEW YORK, Jan. 9 (AP) — What was shrugged off as a year of rebuilding looks as if it could turn out to be a good deal more for Frank McGuire and his North Carolina Tar Heels.

The Tar Heels, still well fed by McGuire's talent pipeline from the north, bagged their ninth victory in 10 starts against grade A opposition last night with a 44-34 defeat of Wake Forest.

So far the Tar Heels, beaten only by Michigan State, have been outgunning them in the race and shoot matches and outsmarting them when the opposition tries a slowdown.

Wake Forest tried it last night, holding the ball four minutes at the start of the game, attempting only seven shots in the first half and generally using possession to try to match North Carolina's superior height and manpower.

The Tar Heels, trying rival North Carolina State's 4-0 record in the Atlantic Coast Conference, shook loose for a 17-11 halftime advantage and stayed comfortably ahead the rest of the way.

West Virginia, with Jerry West whipping in eight of his 32 points in overtime, downed Penn State, 89-81. It was the Mounties' 11th victory in 14 starts.

St. Bonaventure, one of the nation's four major unbeaten teams, kept its record intact despite sloppy play by defeating Iona (N. Y.), 68-54, in the opener of a doubleheader at New York's Madison Square Garden. Tom Smith, a promising 6-4 sophomore, scored 19 points to lead the Bonnies to their seventh in a row. Seton Hall won the other part of the doubleheader, nipping Muhlenberg, 57-55, on Hugh Dunnion's jump shot with 12 seconds left.

Centenary bagged the 63rd and last title of the holiday tournament avalanche, spilling Spring Hill, 71-57, in the Senior Bowl final at Mobile. Murray (Ky.) took consolation honors, 74-71, over Tennessee Tech.

Stockton To Speak At Dinner

Branch Rickey, who built the Gashouse Gang, and J. Roy Stockton, who glamorized it, will be speakers at the St. Louis baseball writers' dinner Monday night, Jan. 19, in the Gold Room of the Sheraton-Jefferson hotel.

Rickey, semi-retired former general manager of the Redbirds, Dodgers and Pirates, wrote from his suburban Pittsburgh home that he had changed plans for a Mexican vacation and would be here to accept the first Dr. Robert F. Hyland meritorious service award, which will be awarded him and the late Sam Breadon. Together Rickey and Breadon built a baseball dynasty that produced nine pennants and six world championships in 20 years.

Stockton, who covered the Cardinals during their championship peak, will come from his St. Petersburg (Fla.) home for a reunion with some of the players about whom he wrote so skillfully and humorously. The retired Post-Dispatch sports editor is the author of a book —"The Gashouse Gang and a Couple of Other Guys"—about the capable and colorful Cardinals of the pennant past.

Another former Post-Dispatch sports editor, John E. Wray, and the publisher of The Sporting News, J. G. Taylor Spink, will be introduced at the dinner at which awards will be made in their names. Wray and Spink were ill and unable to attend the writers' fiftieth anniversary dinner last January when it was announced that awards would be made annually in their behalf and for the late Dr. Hyland and John B. Sheridan, former Globe-Democrat sports editor.

Tickets for the dinner are available at $10 each from St. Louis chapter, BBWAA, Post Office Box 1003, St. Louis (88), Mo.

Bowling

By John J. Archibald

The Answer Man

Archibald

"What if a guy hasn't bowled in a league this season or last season either—can he get in the Booster division?" inquired the voice.

It was one of hundreds of questions that A.B.C. officials have received since establishing their temporary office here in August. Right now the phones are ringing more frequently than ever before because the deadline for entering the national meet is Tuesday night.

This particular questioner was told by Joe Smolen, who is in charge of the entries, that a man who has not bowled in recent seasons may compete in the Booster division, but that he must assume a theoretical average of 170 when figuring his team's average. Five-man teams with combined marks of 850 or less are eligible for the Booster prizes.

These final days of accepting entries are similar to the week before Christmas for a department store. Many bowlers put off filling out their entry blanks and sending in their checks ($10 per man per event) until virtually the last minute.

This time the A.B.C. representatives are welcoming a final rush, however. The total number of entires is still hundreds short of the 5350-team total needed to fill the schedule when the tournament is held at the Armory from Feb. 14 to April 23.

Jay Batchelor is the supervisor of the A.B.C. tournament. His job has many facets, but its chief duties include the arranging of all contracts for the construction and operation of the big meet, promoting the event for many months in the city where it is to be held, and supervising the building of the tournament lanes.

Work Starts Monday

The construction work will start Monday. Trucks loaded with lumber, tools and even bowling pins will begin driving onto the Armory drill floor. Some of the 38 lanes are expected to be laid within a week. In a short time, the installation of the automatic pinspotters will begin, and it will be up to Batchelor to see that everything is done according to A.B.C. tournament regulations and custom.

It is Smolen's job to make sure that there will be 38 teams of men pouring in and out of the Armory every few hours. Doubles and singles entries will roll during the day, usually starting at 8 a.m., and the five-man teams will shoot either at 7 or 9:30 p.m.

When an entry blank and a check are received, the senders are assigned to the date requested whenever possible and a letter of confirmation is sent. If the entrants live more than 75 miles from St. Louis they will bowl their doubles and singles the day after the team event, unless otherwise requested.

Not only the date, but the time of day and the lanes to be used are assigned when the entry blank is received. This information is then forwarded to the A.B.C. office in Milwaukee, where the programs are printed.

One of the more common questions that the A.B.C. receives after the tournament is under way concerns whether partners for the doubles event may be changed after being submitted on the entry form. The answer is yes, as long as the tournament heads are notified at least 24 hours in advance.

Occasionally there are doubles teams made up involving strangers whose original partners were unable to make the tournament. In 1949 this happened to Don Von Boxel, of Green Bay, Wis., and Gene Bernhardt, of Sturgeon Bay, Wis. After meeting on the train to the A.B.C. in Atlantic City they decided to pair up.

Although both had averages in the 180s, Boxel and Bernhardt combined for a three-game total of 1332 and the first prize of $1000.

Burr Rides $269 Winner At Tropical

MIAMA, Fla., Jan. 9 (AP) — Mainrock, a 3-year-old brown gelding that never had won a race previously, took the six-furlong fifth race at Tropical Park yesterday and paid $269.10, $65.70 and $21.50 across the board. Mainrock had started five times.

The colt, owned by S. T. Sheehan, was ridden by Charles Burr, who rode his first winner at Fairmount Park in Collinsville, Ill. The time for the distance was 1:11. Flight Request was second and Florence H. third.

N.C.A.A. Set to O.K. Tougher Amateur Policy and Enforcement

Syracuse, Royals Set New Mark

CINCINNATI, Jan. 9 (UPI)—Coming from behind to tie in the regular game and two overtime periods, the Syracuse Nationals finally defeated the Cincinnati Royals, 145-138 last night in the third overtime session of their National Basketball Association game before 1547 at Cincinnati Gardens.

The 283 points set a new N.B.A. record for two teams in one game. The old mark of 282 was set by St. Louis and Syracuse at Detroit on Dec. 21, 1957.

It was a tight game all the way, with the Royals pumping in 19 points in the last four minutes to take the lead, 119-115, with a minute to go. But the Nats' Ed Conlin scored two free tosses and Johnny Kerr hooked in a bucket with two seconds left for a 119-119 tie.

In the first overtime Hal Greer hit a free throw and Conlin a layup in the last minute to come from behind again for a 126-126 tie. In the second extra period, Kerr earned the tie with two field goals in the last minute and a half.

Then, with the frustrated Royals finally out of gas, the Nationals hit with ease in the last period to outscore them, 11-4.

For Syracuse, Kerr had 30 points, Dolph Schayes had 28 and Larry Costello had 26.

Pressure On Coach To Comply

CINCINNATI, Jan. 9 (AP)—Member schools of the National Collegiate Athletic Association today received a sharp double-edged mandate from their 18-man ruling body.

The powerful N.C.A.A. council, in moves to strengthen its enforcement program and tighten its principle of amateurism, warned, in effect:

1. Crack down on coaches or other school staff members involved in serious violations of the athletic code, even to the point of firing them, if necessary.

2. Steer clear of any financial deals, direct or indirect, which would enable baseball teams or other professional sports organizations to provide athletic scholarships.

These points were emphasized in the council's report, released yesterday. The report was read today to delegates attending the business session, climax of the week-long activities centered around the fifty-third annual convention of the N.C.A.A.

It was at this session that all new legislation, resolutions, amendments and interpretations had to be approved. And it was considered highly unlikely that the council's two-pronged bid for more athletic purity would be voted down from the convention floor.

In fact, the delegates forecast a quiet business session in which most matters brought before the convention would be indorsed speedily.

Some Fireworks Likely.

There are two amendments that were considered likely to cause some wrangling.

The first would give the three-man eligibility committee complete authority to rule on the eligibility of any athlete for intercollegiate athletics. At present this power is held only by the council. Appeal from an eligibility committee ruling would be to the council. The committee would rule only on eligibility questions submitted by member institutions, but opponents of the proposed amendment feel it may be vesting too much power in a small group.

The other proposed amendment that could cause a fuss dealt with recruiting. It would prohibit institutions from providing preparatory education to prospective athletes, but would make specific exemptions for the service academies because of their stiff entrance requirements.

Amendments to create a national championship tournament in soccer and to give small colleges more representation on the various rules committees also were on the agenda. Both were expected to ease through harmoniously. The soccer tournament would be the N.C.A.A.'s sixteenth championship event and would be held for the first time next November.

The rules committee proposal represented a more positive approach to the problem of bringing N.C.A.A. rules in closer alignment with those of the National Association of Intercollegiate Athletics, a small college organization in which non-N.C.A.A. members predominate.

The national letter of intent system of signing prospective college athletes drew such diversified comment in a round-table discussion that it appeared unlikely to reach the convention floor. It is a device to prevent raiding of athletes between conferences.

New Enforcement Plan.

Under the more stringent wording of the enforcement program, the N.C.A.A. can discipline individual staff members, although still indirectly, by telling member-schools indirectly, telling member schools involved in athletic code violations to clean house of undesirables or risk suspension from the association. The council stressed, however, that only in serious violations, and when the school does not take the initiative in disciplinary matters, will it ask the school to show cause why an individual should not be suspended or fired. The tougher policy in no way applies to the athletes involved.

The question of professional teams paying for athletic scholarships was raised by the Detroit Tigers baseball club, which wished to help promising baseball players through college. The N.C.A.A. answer, in the form of a new interpretation of the principle of amateurism, was that it is not sound policy for college sports to be dependent in any way on professionals. The schools were warned that any such gifts, even though administered indirectly by the institutions, would be investigated closely for possible indirect benefits.

The council's report noted that most of the recruiting violations reported in the last few years have been relatively minor, as compared to some that were handled earlier.

Following up this report, A. D. Kirwan of Kentucky, chairman of the N.C.A.A. committee on infractions, said he considered the enforcement situation "considerably better" than it was four or five years ago.

The N.C.A.A. announced that first-round games of the 1959 collegiate basketball tournament will be at the University of Kentucky March 10, with the Ohio Valley Conference champions and Mid-American at-large teams. The winners of Southeastern Conference champions and the Big Ten champs, respectively, at Evanston, Ill. March 13.

Armstrong Choice Over Fighting Cop

NEW YORK, Jan. 9 (AP)—Gene (Ace) Armstrong, unbeaten Elizabeth, N.J., middleweight, hopes to solve all Eddie Dixon's problems tonight by sending the Newark Policeman back to his midnight-8 a.m. beat.

Dixon, torn between the comparative security of a $4600 patrolman's job and the lure of a potential $20,000 a year in the prize ring, probably will make his decision after tonight's fight at Madison Square Garden.

If the odds favoring Armstrong are right, it may be that Dixon will be happy enough to go back to the beat and forget fighting. Armstrong has a perfect 15-0 record, beating Charley Joseph and Rory Calhoun last year. He has knocked out only one opponent but dumped Calhoun four times en route to a unanimous decision in his most recent outing, Aug. 8. (The bout will be televised by KSD-TV).

Dixon has appeared in the garden in two semifinals. Victories over Bobby Gordon and Eddie Thompson earned him his first main event.

C.Y.C. Sports Night

The C.Y.C. Spring and Summer Sports Night will be held at Cathedral Parish Auditorium tonight when some 400 awards will be presented. The public is cordially invited to attend. The auditorium will be open after 7:45 o'clock.

Gallatin's Team Seeks Key Victory

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

CARBONDALE, Ill., Jan. 9—Southern Illinois University basketball team hopes to continue its bid to move into the Interstate Conference title contention here tomorrow night when the Salukis entertain Western Illinois.

Coach Harry Gallatin's fast-breaking team put a dent in the Leathernecks' conference crown last month with a 94-92 shocker on the Western floor. Another victory over the perennial league leaders could shoot Southern into the title picture.

The Salukis stand 1-1 in league play. The lone loss, matched with the Western win, was to Illinois Normal, 68-81.

Southern, using new coach Gallatin's run and shoot professional style of play, is being paced by Charlie Vaughn with 247 points. Vaughn, who became a legend in southern Illinois high school circles when he scored 3378 points in his career at Tamms High, is averaging 24.7 points per game in his first season as a Saluki forward.

Coupled with the deadly marksmanship of Freshman Vaughn is the steady play of Captain Seymour Bryson, Quincy senior center. Bryson, who led S.I.U. in scoring last year, broke the school scoring record of 27 points with a 40-point effort against Rockhurst in the Quincy Holiday tournament. Bryson has 177 points for a steady 17.7 average.

Also hitting over the one hundred mark is Gene Velloff, rookie transfer from Alton. Velloff has 109 and was one of the big factors in the Salukis' capture of the Quincy consolation trophy.

U.S. WON'T OBJECT TO KRUPP EXPANSION

© New York Times News Service

WASHINGTON, Jan. 9 — The United States will raise no objection to the purchase by Krupp interests of the Bochumer Verein, which will increase the steel-making capacity of the Krupp industries by one third.

State Department officials explained yesterday that, while the United States remains bound by treaty to uphold the objective of deconcentration of German industry, it does not consider the Krupp purchase to fall under the heading of prohibited concentration.

This is the case, they said, because Bochumer Verein had not previously been part of the Krupp holdings. The purchase therefore does not involve what is technically known as "reconcentration," they pointed out.

Nor is there any bar to the expansion of the Krupp corporation concerned, which is known as Rheinhausen, A.G., the official said.

While owned by Krupp, Rhenhausen A.G. is operated by trustees installed by the Allied occupation authorities. Their task is to sell Rheinhausen A.G. and in the meantime to maintain efficient operation. If they deemed the purchase of Bochumer Verein necessary to efficient operation they would have the authority to buy it.

These are points the State Department will make if consulted by the British Foreign Office. The inquiry the British plan to make, according to London reports, has not yet been received here.

The United States, Britain and France have for months been studying a German request to relieve German industry of the obligation to complete the deconcentration program. While the State Department declines to discuss its attitude towards this request, representatives of German industry believe it is favorable.

This program, adopted by the Allied control council in the early years of the occupation, was incorporated into the treaties signed in Paris in 1954 that restored German sovereignty. The Bonn Government at that time undertook to complete deconcentration.

According to some estimates, all but about 10 per cent of the deconcentration program laid down by the Allies has been completed.

Ocean Studies

ain's National Institute of Oceanography to run a series of 10 east-west profiles across the Atlantic from the Arctic almost to the Antarctic.

It was a survey in depth. The use of buoys which could be set to linger at a fixed depth made it possible to confirm the existence of a current, flowing in the opposite direction beneath the Gulf Stream.

These buoys were simply thrown overboard and could then be followed, in their drift, by their sound signals.

Another technique, which involved anchoring in water several miles deep, was used for current operations in the Pacific. This was done by an expedition of the Scripps Institute of Oceanography of La Jolla, Calif.

This work showed that the eastward flow of water near the Equator was about three times earlier estimates. This was due in part to the unexpected depth and volume of the equatorial countercurrent, a surface feature which flows east between the west-flowing north and south equatorial currents.

Below the last-named an under current was discovered, likewise flowing east with a water transport described as comparable to 1000 Mississippi rivers.

Many of the discoveries were made possible by new devices. These included cameras capable of taking photographs of the trench floors, trawls which could be set to capture drifting life at any level, down to great depths, current measuring buoys and devices to measure water movement by electromagnetic means.

Manganese Nodules.

The use of the cameras led to the discovery by both American and Soviet expeditions of manganese nodules carpeting the floor of the South Pacific. They were estimated to be worth $500,000 a square mile.

One of the more ingenious devices was one which operated like a radiosonde balloon, only in reverse. The balloon carries expendable weather instruments high into the sky and reports their readings by radio. The new device was thrown overboard and sank, sending out temperatures and other data by supersonic signal. It was unnecessary for the ship to stop.

An objective of the IGY ocean study was to keep track of mass movements of water and changes in sea level. To this end, 350 tide gauge stations were operated by 25 countries.

Another goal was to determine whether it would be safe to dump the radioactive wastes of atomic industries into the ocean troughs. Soviet scientists said their observations indicated that this would be dangerous.

They said the oxygen content of the water, even at the deepest points, the existence of life there and other evidence of continuous water circulation showed that any radioactive material in the troughs would soon be carried back to the surface. There it could enter into sea life and thus eventually reach man.

Plutonium

and the White House for approval.

A key factor in changing the Defense Department's position was said to have been the possibility that an international agreement may be reached barring atomic tests. With further weapons development halted, the Defense Department would have to rely on already developed tactical size nuclear weapons, which because of their inefficiency demand considerable amounts of plutonium.

Question of Approval.

There was no immediate indication whether the Administration, under the tight spending limitations it has imposed, would approve the outlay of the amounts required.

The Defense Department recommendation, however, gives the joint congressional atomic energy subcommittee on research a powerful argument for pushing an expansion of plutonium production through Congress. One $145,000,000 plant was authorized by Congress last year, but President Eisenhower called the project "unsound" until the Defense Department could solidly establish that more plutonium was needed.

The long-term statement of requirements also has the effect of breaking what committee members have felt was a buck-passing impasse holding up plutonium production. In the past, committee members complain, the department has argued that its plutonium requirements were geared to AEC production capacity, while the commission has taken the position it could not increase production unless greater requirements were established by the department.

rope" has not entirely disappeared, and his appointment is likely to arouse the suspicion of France's five continental partners, despite De Gaulle's assurances that the French will respect the Common Market treaty.

Having become a "prince" in his turn, Premier Debre may become less intransigent, but neither he nor President De Gaulle is likely to swerve from their main objective—to raise France once more to the rank of a great power. On this they agree, and the lieutenant will probably follow loyally the route chosen by his chief.

U.S. Economy Today

STATE OF UNION'S BUSINESS GOOD

By Sam Dawson

NEW YORK, Jan. 9 (AP)—The State of the Union's business today is good. It's so healthy, in fact, that President Eisenhower will offer a federal budget based in part on the expectation that corporate profits in 1959 will reach a record 48 billion dollars.

This compares with the $31,750,000,000 annual rate in the first three months of last year, the trough of the recession.

Sam Dawson

Many industries have climbed back from the slump in output remarkably fast. Compared with the low point, they look good indeed. Compared with the peak of the preceding boom, they still have quite a way to go.

WHAT CONGRESS WILL do for and to business this year is anyone's guess. But some of the guesses are fairly gloomy. Involved are such things as: taxes, labor legislation, antitrust inquiries, monetary policies bearing on inflation, foreign trade. But some think that what business will do for and to itself is still more important. The very rapidity with which profits are bouncing back—at a faster pace than output, sales, and particularly employment—may open up a Pandora's box of its own.

IF PROFITS REACH A peak of 48 billion dollars, that could inspire labor leaders to raise their sights. With prospects for labor-management strife this year already strong, this could increase the threat of major strikes. And enough of these for long durations could play hob with the expectations of the Administration to balance the budget with the aid of tax collections on record profits. Peak profits probably wouldn't go unnoticed by consumers either. They might ask embarrassing questions about the need for such high prices. This would be especially true if industrial capacity continues in excess of output. And some Congressmen might raise their pet charge that in this case there must be an understanding between companies in the specific fields.

INDUSTRIAL LEADERS ALways deny this and produce figures to show that rising operating costs are the basic reason for rising prices. Most business men seem content with the steady, if moderately paced, industrial recovery. Some chafe whenever the Federal Reserve Board tightens up on credit when it fears more inflation, which could be the aftermath of the current federal deficit and the continuing pressure of higher wages on prices. But as many, probably, fear inflation as much as they do tight money. Foreign competition is more worrisome this year. This could be either domestically — European nations with their industrial and fiscal houses in better order are now able to offer more goods here. Or it could be in overseas markets where foreigners now can offer more goods at a lower price than can Americans.

THE ACTIVITY OF CONgress over the next seven or eight months will be a major concern of business. The chances of corporate tax relief, strict regulation of labor, and a balanced budget seem poor. More preoccupation of Congressmen with mergers and the growing size of big business is widely expected. Numerous industries will have their special congressional problems. One example: The oil industry's depletion allowance in reporting income for taxation and its internal fight over imports. And another: The tariff worries of a long list of industries hurting, or fearing hurt, from foreign competition. The state of the union's business is good. It should get better. It still needs watching.

A.T.&T. EARNINGS FOR QUARTER AND YEAR SHOW RISE

NEW YORK, Jan. 9 (AP)—Bell Telephone System earnings for the three months ended Nov. 30 were $264,156,383 compared with $216,857,566 in the similar 1957 period, Frederick R. Kappel, president of American Telephone & Telegraph Co., said.

Of the total, $255,993,938, equal to $3.64 a share, was applicable to A.T. & T. stock, he said. This compared with $210,957,860 or $3.27 a share a year earlier.

For the year ended Nov. 30 net income of the Bell System was $967,305,398, of which $938,867,470 or $13.91 a share was applicable to A.T. & T. stock. This compared with net income of $858,303,202, of which $834,708,628 or $13.11 a share was applicable to A.T. & T. stock, for the year-earlier period.

In each case, the balance not applicable to A.T. & T. stock went to minority shareholders in subsidiaries not 100 per cent owned by the system.

FOOD INDUSTRY PROGRESS AND PLANS AHEAD

NEW YORK, Jan. 9 — The nation's food industry did the greatest job in its history in 1958, and is faced with an even bigger job in 1959, Ralph W. Burger, president and board chairman of The Great Atlantic & Pacific Tea Company, said.

"But if we are to continue to fulfill our public responsibility and make our full contribution to the national economy, we must improve upon even this stellar performance in the year ahead."

Mr. Burger cited five major facets of the industry's accomplishment during the past year: There are almost 3,000,000 more people in the United States today than at the end of 1957, and the food industry has had to provide the food and facilities to serve this growing population. The food industry did a great job in holding food prices down despite rising costs. During the month of November the cost of food declined for the fourth straight month, at a time when the overall consumer cost-of-living index was creeping steadily upward to hit an all-time high of 123.9.

To provide improved service, retailers built thousands of new stores and did major remodeling on additional thousands of existing outlets. This represented a total investment of well over one billion dollars in construction and inventory. The trend towards built-in services to simplify the housewife's tasks through package mixes, pre-packaging of foods and the expansion of the frozen food industry continued at a phenomenal pace.

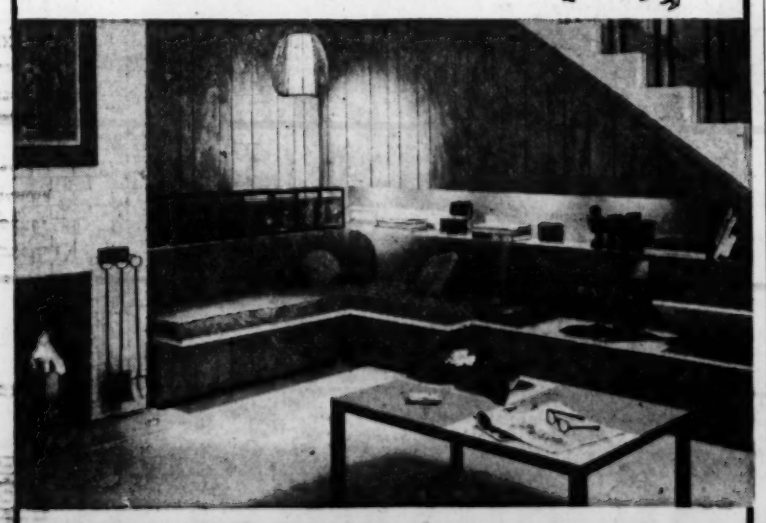

The entire food industry adhered to its traditional low-profit rate. Chain retailers, for instance, continued to operate at the low rate of 1.25 cents profit on each dollar of sales, while the profit rate for food manufacturers was 2.5 cents.

"All thees factors served to keep the American public the best-fed people in the world," Mr. Burger said.

STOCKS PUSH ON TO A NEW PEAK; VOLUME HEAVY

NEW YORK, Jan. 9 (UPI)—Stocks today registered their ninth gain in 10 sessions with trading heavy and the averages in new high ground trading, helped by many large blocks, set a new high since Nov. 6.

Steel shares and metals assumed leadership in the afternoon. Their gains ranged to more than 2 points in several of the top ranking issues.

Chemicals generally moved higher with their gains running to 2 points. Drugs improved. Rails moved up and held gains well. Utilities ruled firm. Toboaccos got into action on gains running to more than 3 points. Motors ruled firm all day.

Special issues rose 1 to more than 7 points with a long list of them in new high ground. High-priced stocks scored some wide advances.

The market started higher, ran up sharply in the first hour with the tickers as much as five minutes late. It sagged on profit-taking at noon.

The street took President Eisenhower's message in stride with the comment that it containe dnothing that had not been expected.

The Associated Press reported that of 1267 issues traded, 725 rose and 324 fell. There were 152 new 1958-'59 highs and no new lows.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks rose $1.20 to a new high of $218.20 with the industrials up $2.30 to a record, the rails up 50 cents and the utilities up 40 cents to a 1958-'59 high.

Volume was 4,760,000 shares compared with 4,030,000 yesterday and was the largest since Nov. 24 when 4,770,000 shares were traded.

U. S. BOND PRICE DOWN ON HIGHER NEW ISSUE RATE

NEW YORK, Jan. 9 (AP)—The U. S. government bond market turned quiet late today with long term maturities down about 4-32. They had been down around 6-32 to 8-32.

Intermediate issues, off a little during the morning, recovered to where they were about unchanged.

The market reflected overnight announcement of new treasury financing. Dealers said the 3½s of 1960 appeared to be most effected by the financing news. They were off 6-32.

Corporate bonds were mixed. Rails tended higher and a few of the convertible issues made good gains.

Cuba railroad 4s jumped 2⅝ at 25⅞ by late.

The Treasury will issue a 21-year 4 per cent bond to raise $750,000,000 in cash. It will be priced at 99 to give an effective interest rate of 4.07 per cent. Simultaneously, two and one-half billions of 16 months notes will be offered to yield 3.45 per cent.

Government bond dealers felt both issues were generously priced.

Latest News From World Of Business

MONEY IN CIRCULATION decreased $448,000,000 in week ended Wednesday, the Federal Reserve Board reported. A sharp drop following pre-holiday's sharp rise is usual. Gold stocks rose $8,000,000 in the week, contrasting with constant outflow weekly throughout last year. The total still is $2,247,000,000 below corresponding date year ago.

JANUARY SALES PROMOTIONS pulled shoppers into the nation's retail stores in droves this week, according to a Dun & Bradstreet Inc. survey. The result was a sharp increase in purchases of linens, appliances and apparel which helped push total retail sales well above the year-ago level. If cold weather hadn't discouraged shoppers in some areas, commented Dun & Bradstreet, the sales gain would have been even larger. Total dollar volume of retail trade for the week ended Wednesday was estimated at unchanged to 4 per cent higher than a year ago.

DEBITS TO DEMAND DEPOSITS, except interbank and United States Government, at 25 St. Louis banks, amounted to $2,837,651,000 during December the Federal Reserve Bank reported. This represents a 27 percent increase over November and a 6 per cent increase over December 1957.

Burly Import

Massive hog overshadows Judy Walker who was part of the welcoming committee when the pig arrived at Dallas yesterday. Shipped from Norway, the pig weighs 1000 pounds and is eight feet long. Crunching Time in Chesapeake Bay

A major waterway, Chesapeake bay resembles vast skating rink with ships struggling to crunch through the heavy sheet of ice that covered most of the bay yesterday. Larger vessels were able to punch their way through but Coast Guard cutters and icebreakers were working around the clock to free smaller craft hung up in ice which was 10 inches thick in some places.

Master Calendar Of Civic Events

THE WOMEN of the Firmin Desloge Hospital Guild had an inspired idea and a sample of it has just arrived in the mail. It's a Master Calendar of St. Louis, a device whereby they hope to help solve the conflicting date problem in Metropolitan St. Louis and provide busy people with a reminder of where they're supposed to be on a given day.

CLARISSA START

You've all had that awful experience of committing yourself to a speech or a banquet or a luncheon and then finding that it conflicts with the big event of the season for one of your pet activities. With the master calendar you can avoid mixups.

The first two pages of the calendar consist of "The Year At a Glance," and list important annual dates. You can observe, for example, that Dr. John S. Badeau will speak to the Ambassadors Club on March 11, that the Bal Masque is set for April 3, the Women's Ad Club Gridiron dinner for April 22, the Hadassah House Tour for May 29, and the Missouri-Arkansas District Kiwanis Convention for Sept. 20-22.

Opposite the January calendar with its big open boxes for filling in your own dates is a more complete listing for that month. A separate February calendar also is included, and other monthly up-to-date supplements will be mailed regularly. A telephone date listing checking service may be reached at PRospect 3-8880, each week day from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m.

The calendars themselves may be obtained at several downtown stores, at the Desloge Hospital gift shop, and the Master Calendar Bureau, 1325 South Grand boulevard. Assembling these date listings was no small job but was done for a good cause; the calendar proceeds go to support vital projects at the hospital.

I immediately used the calendar to check a few dates of my own. Today, I'm to be in Jacksonville, Ill., and this date sounded so familiar I was sure it must be something important locally. But I find I'll only be missing a Japanese film at Washington University, a Symphony luncheon, a South Seas lecture and the Fontbonne College Sleighbell Ball.

On Feb. 13 I'll be out of town again but this will conflict only with a basketball game, Leslie Parnas and the Spring Ice Breaker dance at St. Louis University gym. No one had asked me to go to it anyway. And I'll be back in time to hear Mrs. Roosevelt speak on Feb. 15.

If someone should call and invite you to hear "The Messiah" by the St. Louis Symphony at the Opera House on March 28, at 8:40 p.m. you may say—after consulting your master calendar—"I'm dreadfully sorry but that's the opening night of the Home Show at the Arena; how about 'The Messiah' at 3 p.m. March 29?" To which your friend, consulting her master calendar, may retort, "It says here the Home Show continues through April 5. Why can't you go to it later and hear "The Messiah" on the night of the 28th?"

Well, you girls fight it out. It's my birthday and I couldn't possibly make either one.

Marathon Questions

AS I DO EVERY YEAR during my Eight-Week Self-Improvement Marathon, I use one column to answer some questions from Marathon entrants.

Q. "Does it matter when I take my exercises?"

A. No. The exercises have the same value no matter when they are taken. Fit them into your daily routine at the most convenient time. You will not feel like exercising right after eating and it is best not to exercise when digestion is at its height, which is about two hours after eating.

Q. "If I should be one of the Marathon winners and you publish the results in your column, would you use my name? I would not like this."

A. No, I never print names in my column.

Q. "Just how much can I expect to accomplish if I am faithful to your Marathon routine?"

A. You can make great improvement in any defect you have. You can lose as much as 20 pounds overweight, decrease your measurements by inches. You can greatly enhance the attractiveness of your skin and hair. You can improve your posture. If lack of curves is your problem, you can increase your bust and calf measurements by an inch or so during this time. In fact, you practically make yourself over.

Q. "When do I start Marathon?"

A. You begin whenever you receive your booklet. I am sorry that I am unable to get the booklet to all of you at the same time. The mail is so large that this is impossible. However, we are sending them out as fast as we can. Count your eight weeks from the time you get your booklet and start using it.

Q. "If I hold my calorie count to 1200 a day, how should I divide them?"

A. So far as weight loss is concerned, you can eat your allowable calories at any time. However, the most successful reducers usually eat three meals a day. Otherwise, you are likely to feel weak and become so hungry that you eat more than you should.

Q. "I am in earnest about losing 20 pounds during the eight weeks of Marathon. Would it help if I take steam baths? I can afford to do this."

A. "No, this is not necessary. Any weight you lose this way is simply a loss of water, not a loss of fat. You regain this sort of loss as soon as you drink liquids.

Q. "How often should I weigh myself?"

A. Weigh yourself before you start and thereafter at the end of each week. Weigh at the same time and on the same scales and with the same clothes, if you are dressed.

If you would like the Marathon booklet, send 10 cents and a stamped, self-addressed envelope with your request to Josephine Lowman in care of the Post-Dispatch.

Why Marie Torre Defied Court Order

Chose Prison Rather Than Name News Source; Believes Press Freedom Is Involved

By Virginia Irwin

A Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch

NEW YORK, Jan. 9.

MARIE TORRE, TV-radio columnist for the New York Herald Tribune, is a woman who can keep a confidence. She has gone to jail to prove it.

Sentenced to 10 days by United States District Judge Sylvester J. Ryan for contempt of court when she persistently refused to divulge the source of a story she wrote about singer Judy Garland, Miss Torre is now in the Hudson County Women's Prison in Jersey City, N. J.

After entering the eight-story prison, she was booked, fingerprinted, and given a blue and white-striped prison dress in exchange for her black dress. She was allowed to keep her shoes and stockings.

She was assigned to a seventh-story room normally used for court witnesses or civil prisoners. Warden Harry McFarland said Miss Torre would be allowed to keep a pencil and paper in her room, but a television set was prohibited. She will be allowed visits from her husband and two children on Wednesdays and Sundays.

"She'll get very good food here," McFarland said. "We don't want her to have any complaints."

Miss Torre's case, which may help define freedom of the press, has had nation-wide attention. After serving her present sentence, she can be recalled for questioning and again sent to jail if she still remains silent.

Only 12 states guarantee by law a reporter's right to refuse to divulge sources of information given in confidence. New York is not one of them.

However, a bill was introduced in Congress yesterday to exempt newspaper, radio and television reporters from being compelled by federal courts to reveal their sources, except in cases affecting national security.

A confused case from the outset, the contempt charges against Miss Torre grew out of a column she wrote two years ago. In that column, printed Jan. 10, 1957, she attributed to an unnamed CBS executive certain unflattering statements about Judy Garland.

After the column appeared in the Herald Tribune, Miss Garland promptly filed a $1,393,333 breach of contract and libel suit against CBS. The suit named neither Miss Torre nor the Herald Tribune as a defendant, but the singer maintained that for her to proceed with her suit she must have the name of the CBS executive.

In pre-trial examination, Miss Torre was asked to identify the executive. She declined.

Throughout the proceedings she has taken the position that as a general principle "forced divulgence would inflict upon the reporter permanent and irreparable injury" and that news sources would dry up if a reporter could not guarantee that identity would not be disclosed.

During proceedings in Federal court to compel her to give the name of the CBS man, Miss Torre was asked: "Did this network executive ask you to withhold giving his name?"

She answered, "No, he did not. It is just that, having worked in the business so long, in cases like this you don't mention the man's name." Later she said, "You are asking me to violate a confidence."

Radio and television columnist MARIE TORRE plays with her two children, ADAM, 21 months old, and ROMA, 8 months, before starting her 10-day prison term for contempt of court.

In October 1957, Judge Ryan called Miss Torre "the Joan of Arc of her profession." But in November, after saying he was sympathetic with her position, he held that he had no alternative but to sentence her to 10 days for criminal contempt. He said that he could find "no judicial support" in federal law for her position that newspaper men can refuse to disclose their sources of information.

On appeal, the sentence imposed by Judge Ryan was sustained, with the Court of Appeals unanimously upholding Judge Ryan.

The Herald Tribune took the case to the United States Supreme Court, which last month refused to review the matter.

Last week Miss Torre once more faced Judge Ryan and was offered an opportunity to purge herself in court.

Said Judge Ryan: "I don't want to commit you, unless you compel me to."

Then he offered her another opportunity to give the name of the CBS executive.

She answered: "I respectfully decline to answer."

Judge Ryan lectured her severely, saying in part: "No citizen has a right to set herself above the Government of this country, and that is what this woman has done."

He said he could no longer feel sympathy "for her both as a man and a judge."

"When," said the judge, "we have a citizen who pretends or represents herself to be a loyal citizen of the United States... and defies her Government and the lawful mandate of the court, she is no longer a loyal citizen."

The Herald Tribune said:

"The Herald Tribune hopes that the legislative branches of the federal and state governments will give serious consideration to proposals clearly establishing the rights of reporters to protect confidential news sources.

"If the courts can compel reporters to disclose such sources, newspapers will be seriously handicapped in their efforts to present news which the citizens of this country have a right to know."

Marie Torre has not taken her part in this fight lightly.

Talking to her only a short time before she was taken to the prison, I received the impression that she is, if anything, humble about the part she has been given to play in this test case which is of very great importance to the American press and to the public as a whole.

Born Marie Torregrossa, the daughter of an Italian immigrant who prospered in this country as an importer and exporter of extracts and essential oils, she grew up in Brooklyn. She was attending New York University when she wangled a job on the New York World-Telegram as a part-time copy girl. After three months on this job, she had fallen so completely in love with newspaper work that she switched to night classes at the university and worked full time as a copy girl.

Eventually she became secretary to the managing editor of the paper and then gravitated to the paper's amusement department. In five months she was amusements editor of the World-Telegram, and in June 1955 moved to the New York Herald Tribune, to write a daily TV-radio column, which is now syndicated in 49 newspapers throughout the country. She is also assistant editor of the Herald Tribune Sunday TV magazine.

A hard-working reporter, a talented and warm-hearted young woman, Marie for eight years has been married to TV producer Hal Friedman. Their children are Adams, 21 months old, and Roma, 8 months. While Marie serves her sentence for contempt of court, the children will be cared for by her mother and a faithful housekeeper.

Miss Torre, 34 years old, is respected by fellow reporters as a dedicated "newspaper man." Among hundreds of letters she has received from all parts of the country are many heartwarming communications from newspaper men.

On top of a stack of mail on her desk one day last week lay this telegram from a reporter on the Boston Globe: "All newsmen are with you and feel you are fighting over-all battle for all of us. You will shine as living symbol of the free press. Blessings for you and your children on the New Year." Her eyes misted when she read that.

Her determination to stand up for a reporter's right to protect news sources has had considerable attention abroad. The Manchester Guardian has pointed out that a decision by the Supreme Court "seems imperative if the present confusion so disturbing to the American press is to be removed."

By refusing to review the case, the Supreme Court indorses the appellate court's decision limiting a reporter's right to protect his sources and casts doubt on the statutes in 12 states which establish this right, the Guardian said.

New York's new Governor, Nelson A. Rockefeller, said he would support legislation in the State Legislature to protect reporters in their freedom to gather news.

Antoine of Paris Sizes Up U.S. Women

By Dorothy Roe

Associated Press Women's Editor

NEW YORK, Jan. 9 (AP).

AMERICA'S most elegant women live either in New York or in smaller cities such as San Diego, says Antoine, Parisian dean of hairdressers.

After a two-month tour of American cities, his first in several years, the temperamental and fabled Antoine airs these views:

"Small-town women often are better dressed than those who live in big cities. San Diego women, for instance, are much smarter than those of Los Angeles. San Francisco women are charming, but the elegant ones live in the clouds—you never see them in public. Those seen in restaurants look neat and clean, but styled by mass production."

On the whole, says the silver-haired but ageless Antoine, the women of this country have learned a great deal in the last few years about how to dress and do their hair for the most flattering effect. But he adds:

"Everybody looks well here in America, because of your wonderful mass production. People learn fashion and manners from show windows."

Philadelphia: "As to elegance, very poor."

Hollywood: "It's not real. Everybody's on exhibition."

Chicago: "There's only one good thing about Chicago—the lake."

Antoine says he finds few mistakes in good taste among American women—but there is a lack of individuality.

"Everybody's too rushed here," says he. "People don't have time to be different. Buyers order dresses by the thousands, and customers buy them the same way. If every woman has the same hairdo, it's because the hairdresser is too busy to be creative.

"In Europe, life is more leisurely. People are not in such a hurry. They take the time to express their personalities. Of course individuality is a luxury, and so is simplicity."

Antoine has little admiration for most Hollywood movie stars. Says he:

Antoine predicts a trend to greater simplicity in both dress and hair styles, because:

"Designers cannot change the lives of women. Today's way of life makes simplicity a necessity. Women do not have the time for elaborate dress or hair styles. The formal, elegant life is no longer possible for most women. So the designer must adapt his creations to real life — not his own dream."

They'll Do It Every Time

Let's Explore Your Mind

By Sylvanus and Evelyn Duvall

Punishment makes a child good.

Right—— Wrong——

WRONG. A Harvard University study of ways of bringing up children concludes: "The unhappy effects of punishment have run like a dismal thread through our findings . . . our evaluation of punishment is that it is ineffectual over a long term as a technique for eliminating the kind of behavior toward which it is directed." When a child "asks for it," you may "give it to him"; but don't think that punishment alone makes the youngster good.

Why do you "knock on wood"?

Your opinion——

Investigator Marmor Judd made a study of "knocking on wood" and found that it results from a fear of the envy of others. When things have been going well for you and you feel particularly fortunate, you knock on wood when telling about your success as a way of keeping your friends from envying your advantages.

Many people are leaders and don't realize it!

True—— False——

True, says Psychologist Raymond B. Cattell. Anyone who influences a group at all is, to that extent, a leader. Just being there will make some difference; and if you offer suggestions, some of which the group may take, this is a kind of leadership. According to this view, a group has leaders who differ in the amount of influence they have, rather than some one "leader." How much do you lead the groups to which you belong?

A Novel Rib

THE BRITISH NOVEL about fascinating tales of adultery among the titled classes is ribbed in a gently ironic English comedy, "A NOVEL AFFAIR," now at the APOLLO ART THEATER.

This has been cleverly done by the writing-directing team of Muriel and Sydney Box who give us a dry and good-humored lesson on the differences — sometimes — between real humdrum life and the fanciful flights of fiction.

It opens with a handsome but quiet-mannered young Italian chauffeur (Carlo Justini) coming to the home of an English professor (Sir Ralph Richardson) and his novelist-wife (Margaret Leighton). The professor is paralyzed and confined to a wheelchair and the services of a strong chauffeur are necessary to lift him in and out of the automobile. The wife, an authoress who likes to pluck her characters from life, writes a novel utilizing the set-up and characters from her country home. She takes it to town to deliver it to a publisher, and the meek chauffeur, while waiting in the car for her, reads the manuscript.

Does he get ideas! No wonder. For the novel is along the lines of "Lady Chatterly's Lover," and called "The Passionate Stranger." All the characters are blown up flamboyantly from their obvious models. The professor becomes Sir Clement Hathaway, brilliant and dictatorial atomic scientist. His wife becomes a svelte concert pianist. The chauffeur becomes an ardent wolf, and the prim, shy housemaid a bold hussy. The fiction scenes, with the same actors, unroll, appropriately enough, in Eastman color in contrast with the black and white of the drabber real life. Anyway, there are all sorts of lurid things in the book—a night spent by the lady and her chauffeur because of a car accident, at a quaint village inn, passion overcoming the two, a pregnancy resulting with the husband offering to rear the child, and finally, the murder of the husband by the dismissed chauffeur.

The aroused and now ardent chauffeur tries to relive this plot in real life but finds the reception to his advances much different. Some of his mishaps in trying to recreate the scene at the inn by causing a car break-down are mildly amusing, but I think they could have been made a lot funnier. Nevertheless, with its expert actors and sure direction, the picture is intriguing.

The co-feature, a broad English comedy called "THE LOVE LOTTERY," is trivial and passable. David Niven, as a Hollywood star hounded by lovelorn feminine fans, suggests as a joke he be made first prize in a love lottery. The proprietor of a European casino (Herbert Lom) takes him seriously, and finally forces him into such an arrangement by making him lose an enomous amount at roulette. Peggy Cummins is the lucky girl who wins David, and finds out his life isn't so glamorous after all. Playwright Harry Kurnitz wrote the screenplay, and Charles Crichton, usually an adroit man with comedy, did the direction. But the humor is only mild.

One Joke Comedy

THE BURLESQUE of the Western isn't easy to do successfully, and "THE SHERIFF OF FRACTURED JAW," at the FOX soon finds its comedy bogged down in the wagon ruts of a one-joke premise. That is, the assumption it's awfully funny when a tenderfoot but imperturable Englishman goes into the Wild West and blunders his way through a lot of tough situations including escaping with his scalp from Indians, being mistaken for a gunman with a fast draw and being made sheriff, and getting out from under when two rival factions want to kill him. Kenneth More's breezy cheerio personality soon sags under the load, but he bears up manfully and is rewarded in the end with saloon queen Jayne Mansfield, looking more like a caricature of Jayne Mansfield than ever.

When Mother Works

"I WISH YOU WOULD say something about bringing up a child when the mother works," said one who has an 8-year-old. She went on, "So many of us work these days that I know there must be others who wonder as I do how to manage things so that it's all right for the child."

Yes, there are many mothers who wonder and ask about this. There is no one answer. It has to be worked out in each home in the way that fits that home. There are, however, three very important basic things to which one does well to give careful thought.

One is the amount of time that the child will be on his (or her) own. By this is meant the time he will be left without some responsible adult within call and knowing what is going on. No little child should ever be left alone, for safety's sake if for nothing else. Even at 10 or 11 a youngster needs an adult in the offing to furnish the guiding hand that helps him stay on the track, and keeps him from feeling at loose ends.

The second matter is the grown-up who will look after the child. One can hardly be too particular in making the choice. Once made, the youngster's comments about the things they do and talk about—and his evident feelings about the person—tell whether or not the selection was a good one.

The third thing is the time spent with Mother. Any child wants and needs a feeling of closeness with his mother. This means time to be together, to talk together, to do things together. Plenty of working mothers have found ways of providing for this. The important thing is to realize how necessary it is for the child's well-being that it be done.

It is not so much the actual hours spent in each other's company that counts as it is what is done in those hours, and the feeling with which it is done. If that feeling is warm, close, understanding, it carries over into the other hours of the day and warms them.

The mother of two girls now 15 and 17 has worked since they were little. She says that she, Dad, and the girls do more things together than many families where the mothers do not work because they make a point of seeing that they have time together. They all help with household affairs when they get home. They are all on hand at mealtime. They save some part of the weekend for family fun. They love their time together and make the most of it.

Try and Stop Me

HARRY KURNITZ, author of "Once More With Feeling," has devised a plot for a Soviet comedy which he predicts will have all Moscow in stitches: "A Communist novelist writes a book that wins the Nobel Prize, and this time he's allowed to go to Stockholm to receive it. But then he refuses to go home, so the mortified Soviet officials bump off his wife. Then the novelist happily returns to Russia. Turns out that all he wanted was to get rid of his wife."

TV PRODUCER in Hollywood was complaining of the trouble he had encountered casting the role of a detective in a new serial just contracted for.

Teacher's View: Chaos in Classroom

Tulsa Substitute Finds Bright Children Are Slighted Because Disinterested Ones Take Over

By Beatrice Levin

A Special Correspondent Of the Post-Dispatch

TULSA, Okla., Jan. 9.

AS A SUBSTITUTE in the public schools, I am becoming convinced that the insistence upon equal education for all children is a distortion of our democratic ideals. What is happening to the reticent, the intelligent, the well-behaved average child, the brilliant, talented, gifted, and even the artistic and mechanically adept is shameful.

Under the present plan, the obnoxious, the obstreperous, the purely ornery youngster is so diverting the attention and emotion of the teacher and school authorities that the other children are getting a raw deal.

My contention is that the public schools sooner or later will have to abandon the pretense of equal education and recognize the need for trade schools at one end of the intelligence scale and for enriched programs for the gifted on the other end of the intelligence scale.

In the multi-varied aspects of our society, not all youngsters can benefit from a classic education. Many youths would be far happier and better off in a school emphasizing practical trades, electricity, plumbing, repair of household appliances, carpentering, painting, tile-laying or glazing.

For young women with little scholastic aptitude, a school which concentrates on the arts of home-making, home-nursing, child care and intelligent budgeting might more easily persuade a girl who has never seen any value in learning to read, write, spell or do sums that these skills have meaning and value to her in relation to menu-planning and holding a husband.

The youngster who is kept in school by law, chafing at an age limit and wishing away his days until 16, is a disruptive influence in class. The girls are no less troublesome than the lads. The hair-combing, whispering, note-passing, lipstick-exchanging that goes on is nerve-wracking to a teacher who would like very much to teach.

There is no decent reticence on the part of these youngsters. They shout out any remarks which come to mind. "What kind of an accent is that?" "Are you a foreigner?" "Where you from?" These are the questions asked of me, a former New Englander who has lived in the home town of these children as long as some of them have lived!

While a college seminar of 10 or 12 people may be conducted so permissively that the participants may speak out at will, a classroom of 40-odd children in which they neither request permission to speak nor wait until another child is finished is obviously bedlam. Many of their questions and statements are simply diversionary tactics to keep the teacher from teaching.

"How do you spell —?" may be asked 60 times in one period. At least 20 children will need a drink of water and another 20 will require passes for the bathroom or the library. One little girl needed a pass to go to the nurse for a broken fingernail! The grind of the pencil sharpener is incessant. In desperation, I finally had to take the sharpener off the wall with a borrowed screwdriver on my last day of a week of substituting. The sound had become intolerable and nerve-grating.

During the week in five classes of over 40 youngsters in each class, the students were requested to write essays for me on any one of the following topics: "What I Want Out of Life"; "What I Hope Someday to Be"; "What School Means to Me" and "What Education Means to Me."

Of the 200 essays, not one dealt with a desire to be a teacher! And who can blame them? They see their fellow students coming to school with a chip on their shoulders, without pencils, notebooks or the texts the schools provide. They destroy public property, tear the covers off play scripts and workbooks, litter the room with paper airplanes, scraps of paper, tissues, broken crayons and pencils.

Most of these students have the ludicrous idea that a college education is a virtual guarantee of employment. "I want an education so I won't have to worry about getting a job," writes one eighth grade boy. "You can't go wrong with an education no matter how hard you try." Or: "You can always do a better job easier if you have an education."

While the majority of the girls have surprisingly realistic ideas regarding their potential husbands ("he may not be handsome — that's o.k."), the boys have unrealistic notions about jobs. Most of them hope to play baseball for a living or be "a engenair." The number of engineers in embryo — if judged by my students—will overwhelm American industry a decade from now!

One attractive Negro girl wrote, "When I get to be a doctor, I would like to be a mother of twin girl and one boy I would like to be a loving mother and I would like for my husband to be a lawyer. I hope he be able to understand my children's problems and my problems. I would like to live in a nice home. Not a fancy home but a nice warm loving home."

Many girls express the hope of being airline hostesses or scientists, since the new emphasis in education is science. Wrote an eighth grader: "When I grow up I would like to be a Scientist or a model. I would like very much to be a very famous Scientist and study about animals, insects and disect their bodys to see what makes them tick. I would like to study the rockets and atoms. I would also like to be a model if I can. If I can't be a model I want to be a Scientist. If I want to be a model I half to have a good figure, and be pretty."

One of the boys who dreams of being a professional ball player concluded his essay: "I don't know what I want to do between seasons and when I have retired from baseball. I thought I might own a motel or restaurant."

A boy in the eighth grade, wrote: "I think I would like to be an Engeneer of some kind mabey a automotive or civil engineer. I like math sicence and cemestry and like to study engineering. I would also like to travle so mabey I could travle over the United States and mabey to some foreign countries in my work with all the unexplored regions in the world that need briges bulding and other things."

Such lofty dreams have motivated many fine professional men to careers of great achievement. What is distressing to the English teacher is the blatant disregard for spelling and punctuation, not simply because the young man's writing makes such a poor impression, but because the career he dreams of requires meticulous attention to detail and accuracy!

Many of the students who wrote on the subject "What School Means to Me" stated their hatred of learning to spell, "grammar and that jazz. I don't know beans about it." The inability of the teacher to relate the learning of proper spelling and punctuation to material which has real appeal for the students results in boredom and tedious inattention. In many cases, the students sleep on their desks while the teacher is taking one word at a time in the spelling list and trying to explain its proper pronunciation, spelling and meaning.

With few exceptions, the children seem aware of the fact that the family will play at least as important a role in their lives as their chosen careers. Most girls expressed the desire (some quite poignantly) to have children and a "kind, considerate" husband. Most hoped to be able to help their children with their "problems."

The role of religion (particularly verbalized), has great emotional appeal for young people. Religious sentiments were commonly expressed in these essays, with duty to church and to God taken for granted. Yet the true concepts of religion — respect for parents, teachers and for learning —are very little honored by the very students who are most vociferous in their piety. "I would like to be a missionary," wrote one boy, "because I think that the people should at least hear the name of our Lord."

One girl wrote, "I would like a successful marriage with a kind considerate husband with high standard's and also a good Christian, since I'm a Baptist I would expect my husband to be also. I would like two children, a boy and a girl, with extremely good manners and took their religion seriously." (Extremely, no less!)

One lad was very plain in his attitudes: "I do not like school," he wrote, "because it take to much time and they give to much homework and the teacher do not exclane the assignment well ennoff. The teacher are so craby and mean. The only subject I like is woods and meltet (metal) because you can make what you want with out the teacher graping at you ever time you turn a round."

An eighth grade young woman, already married, wrote, "I want to be a very good mother. I would like my to be fore bedroom one with a swimming pool." Then she went on to say, "I don't like spelling but I have to take it every week. I don't like English so it is hard for me."

A number of girls are interested in careers in nursing, acting and art. One bright tiny girl wrote with appealing warmth and intelligence about her dreams of being "a great artist." "Every day," her essay reads, "after school I relax and release tensions by drawing. Sketching is my main interest. Once in a while I will just start drawing. Not protraying any peticular person or object, but just drawing. I do not plan to make art my whole life because I do want to get married and have a family. I dream of having a small studio in or near my house where I do my art work. Being a working mother I want also to be a good mother and wife. I don't want to have a luxurious home, but just a cozy little house with a flower garden and cobblestone walk. I want most of all to be able to present a warm feeling of love and security and Christian fellowship in my family as well as express my feelings as an artist."

Who can help but admire so mature an attitude? "I don't plan to make art my whole life!" What the public school is doing for such sensitive people falls far short of the goals of democracy simply because the best energies and the lion's share of time are diverted to disciplining those who are restless and distracting in the classroom. The teacher has no choice but to stop and answer the insane questionings of the deliberate time-waster. Meanwhile, the bright child, the curious child, even the average but good-hearted child, must sit and wait, usually as impatient with the obstreperous noise-maker as is the teacher.

The sensitive youngster also has to pay for the insensitivity of the adolescents interested only in catching a smoke between classes, sex talk, and withdrawing from school.

Such a boy asked the teacher for whom I had substituted because the teacher's parent had passed away, "Did you have a good time?" When the substitute, at the end of a harrasing, distracting and utterly unnerving hour, put her head in her hands and rested briefly at her desk, two sensitive little girls stood nearby and quietly apologized about the behavior of their class. "Those people don't know any difference!"

Many of the boys wrote that the only courses in school which had any appeal at all were shop, woodworking and gym. In the other classes, the teachers just "yakked." Why are we making such children the privileged in our public schools, and the really bright, the really earnest, curious, intelligent children—why do we make them the underprivileged?

This is not to imply that the youngster of moderate intellectual ability need not have aspirations for a good life, a craft or trade in which he reaps real satisfaction, joy and a decent salary. As one boy wrote in his essay, "Who wants to be a garbage man, thirty dollars a week and all you can eat?"

They tear the covers off play scripts and workbooks, litter the room with paper airplanes, scraps of paper, tissues, broken crayons and pencils.

Cracks in Floors

By Hubbard Cobb

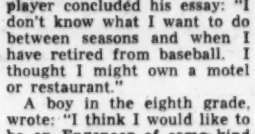

THERE are all sorts of wood floors and in many of the older ones you'll find cracks of varying sizes between the boards. These cracks are usually caused by the shrinkage of the wood and they are not only unsightly but are great places for dirt and dust to accumulate. Our topic for today is how to get rid of them.

The best way to handle this job is to carefully rip up the floor and put it down again, but this can become quite a project and one that few people may wish to tackle.

Another remedy is to fill the cracks with some sort of filler. This will prevent them catching dust and dirt and will make the floor easier to keep clean. It will improve the appearance somewhat but you might as well face the fact that it's not going to be perfect.

The first thing to do is to clean the cracks and a brush and a vacuum are great aids for this part of the work. Now as for a filler, you can use plastic wood or a commercial wood filler.

If you prefer, you can make your own filler by mixing sawdust from the same wood as the floor is made of with wood glue. Pack the filler into the cracks allowing it to come slightly above the surface of the floor. This is necessary because as the filler dries it will shrink somewhat.

When dry, the surface should be sanded down and then the filler stained and finished to match the finish of the floor. It is best if after the filler is dry, the entire floor can be sanded and refinished.

With plank floors there may be very wide cracks between boards and these are sometimes easier to fill with wood strips glued into them than with a plastic filler. The wood strips must be cut so that they fit snugly into the cracks and this is really a job calling for a power table saw. After they have been glued into place and the glue is dry, the surface can be planed and sanded down, then finished to match the rest of the floor.

Fable of the Famous

CORRESPONDENCE: Cornelia Otis Skinner, whose father, Otis Skinner, was one of the great actors of his day, learned at an early age that there are certain advantages in having a famous parent.

Whenever Skinner went on tour, his devoted child would write to him daily. Pleased by her thoughtfulness, he would answer letter for letter. His daughter, however, was not burning up the mails purely out of filial devotion. There was a touch of the mercenary in her thoughtfulness.

From the envelopes containing her father's letters, she would snip off the name "Cornelia." What remained was her father's autograph, which she would sell to her friends at a neat profit.

Bridge Deck

By Florence Osborn

HERE IS A bidding problem for you to consider. How would you handle it? The suggested answer is presented below along with the play of today's hand.

1. You are South and hold these cards:

♠Q
♥QJ107
♦AKQ93
♣AQ7

The bidding has gone:

South	East	North	West
1♦	Pass	2♥	Pass

What call do you make?

2. You are declarer of today's six-spade contract and West opens the four of clubs. Study only the North-South cards, then plan your play.

	♠Q1095 ♥983 ♦AQ10 ♣AJ5
	♠AKJ8 ♥AJ106 ♦KJ94 ♣Q

The bidding:

South	West	North	East
1♠	Pass	3♠	Pass
6♠	Pass	Pass	Pass

ANSWERS TO QUIZ

1. South jumps to four hearts. As there should be a fine play for game, even if North is light, South does not risk a three-heart bid which might be passed. The jump to game is not a shut-out, and North will take further action if he holds a good hand.

2. South, makes his spade slam by a dummy reversal play, drawing trumps with dummy's spades and using his own spades for ruffs. He sees that he will lose two heart tricks if he takes two finesses in the suit and finds both the king and queen with West. To avoid this risk he ruffs two clubs in the closed hand, permitting him to discard two hearts on North's third and fourth spade.

Declarer takes the opening lead with the club ace, trumps a club, plays the ace-queen of spades and trumps another club with his last spade. Next he enters dummy with a diamond and plays dummy's last two spades, discarding two hearts from the closed hand. He cashes the heart ace and his remaining high diamonds, giving up one heart trick at the end.

An hour after luncheon, which is scheduled for 12.30 p.m., the meeting will convene in the auditorium with Mrs. Roy Brackman, section chairman, presiding. The afternoon program will be a water color demonstration by Mrs. Charles F. Chevillon. Mrs. Chevillon, who had a show at the Monday Club last year, has received several prizes here for her work. She studied in Seattle, Alaska and San Diego under nationally known water colorists. Mrs. Robinson Craig, program chairman, will present Mrs. Chevillon.

The history and literature section will meet at 10:30 a.m. the same day to hear papers on "The Arab World." Mrs. Harold L. Reader will speak on "The Koran and Its Teachings," and Mrs. Leo J. Vogt will have as her subject, "Modern Trends in Islam." Mrs. D. Walter Roberts, section chairman will preside. Mrs. Harry J. O'Neill is program director.

Martha Carr's OPINION

Girl Who Is in Hurry to Grow Up

Dear Martha:

I LOVE MY PARENTS very much but I think they are old-fashioned and make my personal life very unhappy. I am 12 and in the seventh grade. Most of my girl friends are my age and they are going steady. Mother and Dad have put their foot down on my going steady and tell me I am too young. Please, Martha, give me your advice as I have promised my parents I will abide by your thoughts on this subject. My parents are making me different and making me miss out on a lot of fun. KAREN.

I hate to say definitely that one or the other of you is absolutely wrong because I don't know the circumstances. I realize that when ALL one's friends do a certain thing with their parents' permission, it's especially hard to be different. On the other hand, being "different", is sometimes good, especially when a girl is standing up for what she thinks is right regardless of the ideas of others. But going steady at 12? I can't say this is good. You'd be surprised how many parents won't even let their daughters double-date at your age. In fact, some won't let them attend boy-girl parties. Please don't be in such a hurry to grow up. Enjoy your friendships with all the girls and boys and don't, at your age, start singling out one as your favorite.

Dear Martha:

I AM 16 YEARS OLD and will graduate from high school a year from next June. I have been going steady for three months with a boy from my class. He wants us to get married after we graduate from school. I want to go on to college but he laughs at me and says that's silly. He already works part-time in a plant and the boss has offered him a full-time job when he gets out of high school. I love him, Martha, but I don't want to get married before I get more education. He says if I go on to college I'll meet some other boy and forget him. I know I won't, but I can't persuade him of that. Please tell me what to do and how to convince him that I'm right.

BETTY ANN.

Chances are you will meet some other boy. But don't let that stop you from going ahead with your education. Don't sacrifice that to pacify him. If he wants to remain where he is, that's all right, but, because you have proved yourself ambitious, you wouldn't be satisfied with someone who doesn't share that ambition.

What's your popularity rating? Test it with Martha Carr's raters for daters, a feature of her free leaflet "E for Etiquitte," compiled especially for teenagers. Write today for your copy, inclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope with your request.

Visit to Fort Bragg

NEW YORK, Jan. 9.

LATE MONDAY AFTERNOON I left New York by air for Fayetteville, N.C., and on to Fort Bragg. I had not been to Fort Bragg, as far as I could remember, since the early days of the war, and changes that have occurred there certainly are great. It is now the headquarters of the Eighteenth Airborne Corps as well as the Army installation.

I was rather late in arriving, which must have upset the general and his staff. But they were very kind and took me at once to Holland House, which is one of the guest houses on the post. Lt. Col. Helen H. Bouffier was my hostess during my stay and no one could have been more thoughtful and kind.

Quite naturally, they wanted to show me some of the work that went on there, so we started quite early with a press conference at 8:30 a.m. on Tuesday. At 9:30 the tour of the post began and I went to the jump school where paratroopers are trained.

The training of these soldiers is certainly tough—physically, mentally and emotionally. These people have to control their bodies, their minds and their emotions. Seeing the way they go about this training was very interesting to me. Later I saw barracks, mess halls and hospitals.

Curiously enough, you would expect the hospital to have many accident cases from jumping. They do have some, but there are far more hospitalized soldiers because of motor accidents than there are because of their jump training.

I was given a book which shows some of the history of the paratroopers as well as the training, and I wish I had had more time to see more of what is done by this airborne group. By 11:30, however, I had to meet with some members of the Women's Club who invited me to Fort Bragg.

THE REPUBLICAN LIBERALS seem to have won a victory in Congress in the election of Representative Charles A. Halleck as minority leader to supplant Joseph W. Martin. Of course, some of the people who supported Mr. Halleck would seem to belong to the conservatives, so it is a little difficult to decide whether this will really change the Republican attitude in the House.

The Democrats unanimously re-elected in the House their old leaders, Sam Rayburn and John W. McCormack. Whether this indicates that they are considered as liberals or that the liberals are not trying to put over any new candidates is difficult to ascertain. On the whole, these two Democratic leaders have been pretty close to the Democratic members of Congress of every age and every type of thinking.

Social Problems

DEAR MRS. POST: I called a friend the other day to ask her for some information. She said she could not give it to me offhand but would call me back. It's been two days since I called her and I still haven't heard from her. In such a situation would it be proper for me to call her and ask her if she has the information or must I wait for her to call me, and if she doesn't do so, try to get the information elsewhere? I wouldn't want to seem persistent but she may have forgotten about it and needs reminding. On the other hand, she may have a reason for not wanting to give me the information and I don't want to force her to do so. Will you please tell me the proper thing to do in this situation?

Answer: There is no reason why you should not telephone her and ask if she has been able to get the information you asked her for the other day.

Winter Float on Current River

By Leonard Hall

DURING THE HOLIDAYS we were honored to receive a letter according us honorary membership in the Ozark Wilderness Waterways Club. This organization of white-water enthusiasts had its beginning in Kansas City three years ago and has grown ever since, enlisting canoeists from all over Missouri. On the roster of winter's activities, although we haven't heard how it worked out, was a holiday float trip down the Current. The hardy boatmen were to meet on the gravel bar above Akers Ferry, near the headwaters of the stream. Armed with canoes and camp gear, they would celebrate New Year's eve in this enchanting, if somewhat chilly, spot.

There have been seasons, back in our salad days, when we floated the Current during every month of the year; a fact which may account for the twinges we note in our joints on these sub-zero mornings. I recall a December float that Glenn Hill and I made from Powder Mill Ferry to Van Buren when, as the old mountain men used to say, "the whisky froze on the gun barrels." We made the trip clad in hip boots and enough other apparel to sink a good sized craft, but managed to come through without getting our feet wet.

We did, however, have a wonderful experience. After it warmed up a bit in the mornings so we could cast without having the line freeze in the guides, we took some of the finest bass I've ever seen caught on the Current. We'd put the small fish back and the big ones on our stringer that was tied to the stern thwart. Coming through one bad chute Glenn had lifted the string of bass into the canoe. Before he dropped them over the side again, I latched onto a fine 3-pound smallmouth. After a good tussle I worked it back to Glenn who was at the stern paddle; and he lifted the fish aboard, unhooked my lure and put the bass on the stringer. Then he took the string of fish, which by now must have weighed over 15 pounds, and dropped it overboard.

A short second later came a shout of horror and I turned to see Glenn make a desperate grab for the stringer—but too late. In some way he had untied it from the thwart as we came through the rapid and then forgotten to tie it back again. Quickly we back-watered to the fatal spot and looked down into the stream which is always at this season, to use the native expression, "gin clear." And there on the bottom in perhaps six feet of water was our string of bass, with the stringer caught on a snag. We fished with plugs attached to the ends of our rods and with a sycamore pole cut from the bank, but to no avail.

Finally Glenn, with the courage of desperation, announced his determination to dive for our fish. I figured out a slightly safer plan and cut a long sapling which I jammed into the river bottom close beside the stringer. Then when Glenn had hung his clothes on a hickory limb he simply went down my sapling hand-over-hand and rescued our fish. A big fire soon had him warm again, along with his clothes, and we went downstream no worse for the adventure.

Regardless of winter float trips this is going to be a year of activity in the Current-Eleven Point River country. Some of the things in prospect are good and some are bad; and which ones prevail depend on the efforts of conservationists throughout our state. The best thing that can happen is progress in the plan proposed two years ago for "Development of the Recreation Resources—Current and Eleven Point River Country of Missouri." Some changes and modifications may prove necessary in this plan which was worked out by our Division of Resources and Development with the help of the Conservation Commission, State Park Board and National Park Service. But it looks as though there is an excellent chance of progress here because of a joint resolution which will be presented in both houses of the Missouri Legislature, urging action and implementation of the plan.

Other proposals for preserving and developing this area have been made. One came from Senator Symington who suggested at the recent Forest Resources Conference that we set these free-flowing streams aside as National Rivers for recreational use by the American people. The "plan in being" of the United States Forest Service to further develop campsites and access facilities on their lands flanking the streams has only the drawback that, with all of the 365,000 acres of national forest on these watersheds, the Federal Government owns only a very few miles of stream-bank and this is all on the lower reaches of the river.

Plans for industrial development of the southeastern Ozarks, including the possibility of pulp mills, lie some years in the future. They depend on further development of the forest resource and closing of free range to insure fewer fires and better tree growth. A greater threat at the moment is probably the latest move to arouse interest in damming the Current; an effort that revives every few years but so far has always ended by welding together and calling into action all those who want to preserve this most beautiful of American rivers in its natural state.

Life in New Amsterdam

By Ramon Coffman

A house in old New Amsterdam. The figures over the door in which it was built,

THE DUTCH residents of New Amsterdam kept many of the ways of their old life in Holland. Their homes suggested the dwelling in the mother country.

Usually a New Amsterdam house had a high, steep roof. It was built solidly, and had a broad fireplace. The cellar was used to store food, and on the outside of the house there was likely to be a flower garden.

The women were excellent cooks and neat housekeepers. With their spinning wheel, they spun thread to be used in weaving clothing.

During the evening, the family gathered around the fireplace. The father (the "goodman") might smoke a long pipe and relate stories while his wife was busy with spinning.

At Eastertime, the shops in New Amsterdam were decorated with colored eggs and ribbons. The celebration of Easter was held on Easter Monday, instead of on Sunday. The custom of cracking eggs, which had been known in Holland, was followed in the Dutch colony.

For half a century, the Dutch held New Netherland and its chief town, New Amsterdam. Then came a British fleet which demanded the area on the basis of old claims, going back to the voyages of the Cabots. Feeling unable to commit New Amsterdam against superior force, the Dutch surrendered it.

As a kind of payment, Great Britain agreed that Holland should have the colony of Surinam or Dutch Guiana, in the northern part of South America.

The Duke of York, brother of the British king, was granted control of New Netherland. That area became the colony of New York, and New Amsterdam became the city of New York.
